London Globe Declares McAdoo or Ambassador Davis Might Win for Democrats.

LONDON, June 14 .- Evening paper editorials on the republican nomination were devoted largely to speculation on Senator Harding's chances would have on the American foreign Both the Globe and Westminster Gazette declared that Senator Harding's election is by no means assured if the democrats are able to find a strong candidate. The Globe declared a republican defeat is not impossible, if such a man as William G. McAdoo or Ambassador John W. Davis is nominated. The Westminster Gazette declared Great Britain must preserve neutrality in a presidential conflict, but cannot disguise its interest. It is doubtful in the opinion of the paper, if the elections can settle the question whether the United States will pursue a purely American polity or take a hand in international politics. Democratic Side Viewed. "Had President Wilson been avail-able," said the paper, "he might have boldly carried his banner into the fight and rallied the majority to him by the lofty appeals he knows so well how to make. But in his default it is unlikely any democratic nominee will do this, or get the sanction of the democratic party for a pure league of

"Senator Harding is a middle-of-the-road republican and the social re-forms, as urgent in the United States as here, will receive from him, we fear, neither sympathy nor solution."
The Morning Yorkshire Post asserted: "There is better prospect of helpful European policy than we could have looked for had the choice of the delegates at Chicago fallen on a politician holding the opinions with which Hiram Johnson is credited."

"Public sentiment was echoed in the cheers for Hoover from the gallery, but the 'old guard' is always proof against popular impulses. Hoover Is not of the professional type of politician and the 'old guard' prefers a man who is 'safe' from its ewn point of view. Harding has no black marks on his public record and he illustrates in his own career as a self-made man the qualities which appeal to the bulk of his countrymen."

SAVINGS IN THIS SALE AVERAGE 20% and Surpass 50%-Welcome News for Thrifty Purchasers

There are three things a store must conscientiously adhere to if it is to judiciously gain and hold the confidence of a growing patronage. First, it must sell quality merchandise; secondly, it must advertise that merchandise honestly, and third, it must maintain an efficient and courteous organization to dispose of that merchandise to patrons who respond to the advertising, whether the advertising be direct or indirect. Interlocking are these things, and where one finds a confiding public, one finds a store which has adhered well to these three principles. Or find the institution with an earnest, honest regard for these three, and you will find a large or steadily growing clientele of worth-while patrons. You may judge us from either angle. Inherent in our service, merchandise and appeal, these three ideas make us new friends and better old friends every day. Comparison and contrast will develop interesting things for you if you will take the time to think—to investigate and make this store YOUR STORE.
