

SUPPORT OF FAMILY CHARGED BY WOMAN

Release From Burden Is Asked in Divorce Suit.

TWO BOYS WITH FATHER

J. Edna Dow, Twice Married to Same Man, Says Husband in East Demands Financial Aid.

That she was married twice to the same man and then deprived of association with her two small sons is the charge of J. Edna Dow, who seeks release from this situation, according to a divorce complaint filed against Florian K. Dow, to whom she was married in April, 1919. She charges that he has failed to support her and compelled her to earn her own living as a stenographer while he is in the army, stationed in New York.

Mrs. Dow alleges that she has had to send her husband $20 a month and his government check in order to assist in the support of the two boys, who are 10 and 9 years old. She declares also that she was threatened with arrest on the charge of kidnapping if she brought the youngest child to Portland. She says she is willing to let the father have temporary custody of the two children.

An untidy home was not the sort of place Philip S. Dayl expected his wife, Aldyth Firchoff Dayl, to provide him with and in a divorce complaint he gives her methods of house-keeping as reasons why he wishes to be separated from her. She refused to cook his meals, he alleges, and neglected her adopted child to such an extent that the baby was taken from her by officers. After temporarily absconding herself during several fits of anger she finally departed in May, 1919, the complaint further says.

Hadie Manell Neff seeks a divorce from Ronald M. Neff, whom she married in December, 1919. She states in her complaint that she was but 17 years old at the time of the wedding and did not have her parents' consent.

George H. Eckels' failure to provide for his wife and child and exercise of a bad temper are cited by Mrs. Elizabeth Eckels in a complaint in which she asks for divorce. They were married in 1918. James V. Nellist is seeking separation from Viola Nellist, charging desertion.

Jealousy, threats to kill her and failure to provide proper food for his family are alleged in a complaint by Ella Mael as reasons for wishing a divorce from Grover Cleveland Mael, to whom she was married in 1909. The couple have three children.

Emily Walker has filed a divorce complaint against Harry E. Walker, who, she says, deserted her in June, 1918. The Walkers were married four years previous to that time.

Johanna Olsen also seeks a divorce from Andrew Olsen and custody of her four children. Since January, 1919, she says, he has failed to support her.

SEWER NOT TO BE BUILT

PROPERTY OWNERS PROTEST TO CITY COUNCIL.

Knights of Columbus May Secure Outlet on Yamhill Street for Swimming Pool.

Protests against the proposed substitution of a new sewer for the one now being used on Taylor street, between Front street and Sixteenth, were voiced by a large delegation of citizens, owning property affected by the projected assessment, to Commissioner of Public Works at the city council chambers yesterday morning. The commissioner after hearing the representations, decided that the sewer should not be constructed at this time, but gave warning that the encroachments of business firms into the district might render it imperative within the next five years.

The new sewer had been asked for by the Knights of Columbus, who recently completed their new quarters at the corner of Park and Taylor streets. A swimming pool in their building necessitated a larger and more modern outlet. In addition, according to Attorney Robert J. O'Neil, representative of the Knights, the swimming pool had been built below the level of the present sewer. Since January, this reason could not be connected. Estimates by the city engineers place the cost of construction of the proposed improvement at $2,000. It was decided by the commissioner yesterday that the Knights of Columbus might run an extension down Yamhill street to connect with one of the larger sewers.

First to enter his protest was Frederick V. Holman, one of the property owners. He characterized swimming pools as "unnecessary abominations" and declared that a number of citizens should not be taxed merely to benefit one organization.

Frank S. Grant, former city attorney, appearing in behalf of the property owners, said the present sewer is large enough for the use of his clients and declared that the expenditure of $2,000 for such a purpose at this time would be unwise. Representatives of the Pailing, Corbett, Stevens and Caswell estates and the Library and Art Association, as well as the First Methodist church, objected to the construction of a new sewer.

Last Night's Audience Mystified by Phonograph

Drawn from actual photograph

Hears famous Contralto

compare voice with RE-CREATION by Edison's new phonograph— could not tell the two apart.

MARIE MORRISEY, the celebrated American contralto, gave an extraordinary recital last night at the White Temple.

Miss Morrisey walked onto the stage and stood beside a stately cabinet. She began to sing "Dost Thou Know That Sweet Land?" The audience immediately yielded to the spell of her beautiful voice. Then suddenly there was a stir—a subdued murmur of surprise—and a perplexed rubbing of eyes. Miss Morrisey's voice continued to fill the auditorium with undiminished sweetness—your ears were proof of that—but her lips had become absolutely silent—your eyes told you that.

What wizardry was this? It was the test of direct comparison with the living artist, which Thomas A. Edison has developed to demonstrate that the Official Laboratory Model of his new phonograph will sing any song exactly as it was sung by the artist, and that his Re-Creation of a singer's voice, as it comes from his wonderful new phonograph, positively cannot be distinguished from the singer's actual voice, when both are heard in direct comparison.

Miss Morrisey made repeated comparisons—always with the same result. Then, to demonstrate that Edison's new phonograph has absolutely no limitations, Harold Lyman made similar tests with the flute. It was truly wonderful. This master achievement of the great wizard, Edison, marks a new epoch in music.
