

WORKERS DISCUSS GIRLS' DELINQUENCY

Social Service Worker Says Conditions Bestial.

FOREIGNERS IN MINORITY

President Gephart Believes Immigrant Girls Represent Stronger-Minded Element.

In the midst of a rambling discussion as to the old and much-mooted question, "Why do girls go wrong?" Mrs. G. J. Frankel of the women's protective division of the police bureau led the annual conference of the social workers' association in Oregon at the public library yesterday to consider facts in place of theories.

Conditions are intolerable. Mrs. E. S. Routledge tossed a bomb among the social workers who were considering a study of delinquent women in Oregon by declaring that from her house that night she had seen young men and women go by in canoes on Sundays.

ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS TRUTH OF THE WORLD. (This advertisement appeared in the Indianapolis newspapers during the Advertising Convention, June 6 to 12, 1920)

Truth in Advertising "The Credit for Building the First Car Belongs to Mr. Elwood Haynes" (The above statement is from a letter to A. G. Seiberling, Vice President and General Manager of The Haynes Automobile Company, Kokomo, Indiana, by Richard H. Lee, Special Counsel of the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.)

EVERY advertising man attending this great convention will be proud over this tangible evidence of the constructive good being done for advertising by the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

"Truth in Advertising" is the motto, the slogan, and the code of the members of the Associated Advertising Clubs.

While The Haynes Automobile Company has never participated in the discussion over who made America's first car, further than to state that Elwood Haynes invented, designed and built it, and to rest its case with history, we admit a glow of satisfaction as we take occasion to express to the advertising men of the world our felicitations upon their National Vigilance Committee upon the thoroughness of its research and its conscientious insistence upon the verities in public statements.

Although the original Haynes automobile, invented, designed and built by Elwood Haynes, is a United States Government exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., bearing an official tablet giving its history, nevertheless the accuracy of this Government statement has been directly and indirectly questioned.

We asked the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, through their National Vigilance Committee, to sift the entire matter, knowing it would be done utterly without bias, for this reason:

Advertising is a force upon which we, in common with every progressive concern in the world, depend. We know what advertising has done for us. We know how jealously the Associated Advertising Clubs guard the good name of advertising. We know the sacredness of their slogan "Truth in Advertising."

The National Vigilance Committee went at its work conscientiously and thoroughly; it spent much time upon its investigation, in order that its finding should be final and decisive. The result is embodied in the letter from Mr. Lee to Mr. Seiberling, and in the straightforward statement:

"The credit for building the first car belongs to Mr. Elwood Haynes." This decision lends added emphasis to the principle of character which is associated in the public mind with the name of Haynes.

No matter how good advertising may be, it can only be as good as the product it advertises. It can only succeed with the product. We are naturally gratified that the Haynes has made good on its advertising. We give advertising full credit for carrying to the people the message of the four essential factors of character—beauty, strength, power and comfort—which are established in the Haynes. Our advertising led the prospective car owner to expect beauty, strength, power and comfort in the Haynes. The car itself completely exemplified this character. The result is that to-day the demand for the new series Haynes is just as far ahead of our production as it was a year ago.

Every advertising man will be pleased to know this, because Haynes advertising is a faithful echo of the car itself. It reflects the policies and principles of The Haynes Automobile Company, and is just as much our product as is the Haynes car itself.

The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have done great work, but never performed a greater act for the highest good of advertising itself, than when their National Vigilance Committee aligned the forces of good advertising with history, with recorded facts and with the U. S. Government's own official statement in the final, irrevocable decision that to Elwood Haynes belongs the credit for building America's first car.
