Pantomime in High Carnival With African Dominoes Sends Audience Into Hysterics.

BY LEONE CASS BAER. With the fascinating jig trots and haunting waltz themes and jazz notes of the Fanchon and Marco revue still lingering in memory and constant happy reminder of its daintiness, charm and humor, it is obligatory to say that the production, which opened a week's stay at the Heilig last night, is gladsome and gay and makes for joyous and beguiling entertainment. It is all so very well done-from the wonderful dancing of the airy, fairy Fanchon and the athletic graces and dance skill of her prother Marco and dance skill of her prother Marco to the tonic comedy of lil' Arthur West, a kewple comedian whose drolleries are convulsing; from the dainty measures trod by a splendidly drilled chorus to the gorgeous costumes worn by the same; from the first blare of the jazz cornet in the orchestra to his final shrick, it is original and delightfut. and delightful.

Production From Pacific Coast. It is a Pacific coast production, too, ore power to the nimble wits and feet and hands of the clever Fanchor and her brother. Theirs was a vaude ville act of three years ago headlinville act of three years ago headlining on the Orpheum, and now they have built a whole musical revue around their own brilliant dance idea.
A group of girls—the Wright dancers—are youthful editions of the Morgan type of dancers, athletic and amazingly graceful, and good for tired eyes to look upon. Every occasionally they leap into the picture and give us a flock of thrills. Other leapers who leap are two white gents leapers who leap are two white gent from Dixie, Ed Nelson and Dell Chair who are simply marvelous acrobati dancers. Apparently they are bone less and have double joints, and thei dance maneuvers become estropathly dance maneuvers become ostropathic demonstrations, set to comedy. By turns they appear as terpsichorcan hounds in evening clothes, and later they are two darkies, holding high carnival with African dominoes and sending the audience into hysterics with their pantomime. Their "sex which" and "how comes" call to mind Octavus Roy Cohan's types, and anyone familiar with the whimsicalities

With July 4 coming on Sunday this year, Monday, too, becomes a holiday, and as early as Saturday the exodus be-gan of those who planned the ob-servance of the 144th birthday of American liberty.

For Portland the July 4 celebration was in the highest degree safe and sane. There was no official celebration of any kind. Those who wished to enjoy the holidays in a quiet way left for the wooded highways and byways, and those who craved an old-fashioned celebration with lots of pink lemonade, races and patriotic addresses, not to mention fire crackers, sought the nearby towns, where such programmes had been announced. Outgoing street cars were heavily crowded during the early hours of the day, highways were loaded with plenic-bound automobiles, and only the few unfortunates remained in the city to celebrate in the mild way prescribed by the police authorities.
