No Sign of Agreement Is Seen at Convention.

DARK-HORSE HUNT ACTIVE

Exasperated, Tired, Muddled Delegates Hark for Word From White House; Fireworks Due.

Davis Strongest of His Group

Of the four heading the lesser group, Ambassador Davis had the greatest strength. His vote on the final rollcall was 52.

Ranking next to Davis on the last ballot was Senator Owen with 35, which included Nebraska votes controlled by W. J. Bryan. It was recognized that Bryan had been deprived, by his defeat in the prohibition issue, of most of the power he might have held over the destinies of the presidential contest.

There Was Still Talk of Senator Glass

Entrusted by the president to conduct the fight for an administration platform.

In all darkhorse camps the attitude was the same; they were hoping for a break tomorrow, but were convinced that they would have to abide their time whether it came in the form of leading three tried out new arrangements they might have arranged over Sunday.

Tangle Is Called Hopeless

The situation with respect to the balloting is much the same as it was at Baltimore eight years ago. In that convention the deadlock caused the convention to adjourn over Sunday.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York

received a telegram from Al Johnson, the comedian, which said: "Telegraph me name of probable nominee."

"I wish he would tell me who it is going to be," Johnson said.

"I can't make anything out of the situation; it's all a hopeless tangle," Senator Ruffin said.

Senator Ruffin said numerous conferences were held and the Palmer outlook was hopeful.

Old-Time Oratory Brief

Lincoln Named for President in Just 26 Words.

Doubt Expressed by Historians If There Was Any Speech at All When Jackson Nominated.

CHICAGO, July 4.—The nomination oratory which marked the two great political conventions this year is in sharp contrast to the nomination speeches of the early days of the party.

This has been brought out afresh by inquiry at the Chicago Historical society and the Newberry library here.

In the first great republican convention Abraham Lincoln was nominated for the first time by Mr. Judd of Illinois in these words:

"I desire on behalf of the delegation from Illinois to put in nomination as a candidate for president of the United States Abraham Lincoln of Illinois."

The first national nominating convention of the democratic party was held 28 years earlier in Baltimore, May 21 to 23, 1832. It was at this gathering that Andrew Jackson was endorsed for his second term.

Jackson had been nominated previously in a number of states by the methods which were then passing away and according to the Newberry library, it is doubtful if there was any speech at all placing him in nomination at the first democratic national convention.

The business of this convention was principally to nominate for the vice-presidency.

The convention adopted a resolution concurring in Jackson's "repeated nominations." The resolution was drawn in 60 words.

Previous to that time (from 1800 to 1831) nominations for the presidency and vice-presidency, the well-known reference library says, were by congressional nominating caucus, consisting of party members of both houses of congress.

The last congressional caucus was held in 1824, Jackson opposing the "King caucus," as it was termed, as undemocratic, as it was in 1828 he was nominated by state legislative caucuses and conventions held in various states.

Following this the popular state conventions grew up and out of them came the national conventions.

NEW YORK, July 4.—(Special.)—The will of Joseph Kramer of Perth Amboy, N. J., which denounced his wife and a daughter and forbids their attendance at his funeral, will be contested by those two members of his family.

The document calls for the division of the greater portion of the estate between Arthur, a son, and the second wife, Esther. There also are bequests to Perth Amboy City Hospital and the Jewish Memorial building fund.

Boy Slain in Dog Fight

Father Shoots to Quiet Animals and His Son.

NEW YORK, July 4.—(Special.)—A fight between two dogs had a fatal ending today when Frank Ceravallo, a baker, accidentally shot and killed his son George, 21, at Nutley, N. J.

The dogs were owned by the elder Ceravallo and John Furnari, a barber, neighbors and friends. Furnari went to separate the dogs and struck Ceravallo on the doorway and the elder Ceravallo, thinking the dogs had got into the hallway, fired a shot.

The bullet entered his son's heart. The father was arrested on a charge of murder.

Bird Life to Be Studied

W. L. Finley Leaves Tomorrow for Yellowstone National Park.

To make a study of the various animals and birds which inhabit the Yellowstone National park region, W. L. Finley, accompanied by his family, will leave for the park tomorrow.

Following his outing in the Yellowstone, Mr. Finley will journey into the wilds of Canada where he will take motion pictures of wild animals in their habitat.

Accompanying him on the last trip will be John Keating of the Lumbermen Trust company, Stanley Jewett of the United States biological survey, L. A. Nelson of the West Coast Lumbermen's association, and F. I. Jones of the Jones Mercantile company.

Salem Man Seriously Injured

SALEM, Or., July 4.—(Special.)—Robert Young of West Salem was seriously injured about the head and shoulders when thrown from a truck in West Salem last night. The truck, in charge of A. C. Gregg, of the state highway department, was crowded into a ditch by a large touring car.

Mr. Young was taken to Salem hospital where the extent of his injuries had not been determined tonight.

The voice of the Cheney is like the song of birds—clear, serene, satisfying. The natural and human-like quality of the Cheney tone is due to the fact that in the Cheney are embodied the old well-known principles of pipe organ and violin construction.

Prof. Cheney, the musician, has built an instrument free from the scratch and grind which has been so objectionable in the ordinary phonograph.

JAM IS LAID TO PALMER

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 4.—(Special.)—Every clump of redwoods, every eucalyptus grove, every valley within 25 miles of San Francisco is full of vacationing delegates today.

All they know or want to know is that they have got away from the job a while and have nothing to do tomorrow. Leaders are paging called in the hotel corridors and not finding them. Now and then an individual delegate is discovered and led in chains into camp.

But the fact that this is the day of rest and a particularly joyous one as to weather isn't helping the least to settle the deadlock.

Tonight the leaders (if leaders they may be called) are in the hotel corridors and talking to them seriously.

Convention Seems Futile.

After all this is a convention. It would be a rather exceptional convention if it did neither of these things. Yet if affairs keep going the way they are going now, there will be nothing but a platform with less than $75 punch in it to show for all this trip across the continent and all this San Francisco hospitality.

Today the boys that owned booms in the last few days are around in the hotels trying to pretend that they still hold the reins of power.

Palmer-Generals Burleson, who staked his life, his liberty and his sacred honor on the nomination of McAdoo, is still in the fifth ballot, is trying to compromise his bet.

Cox Boosters Faking.

The Cox boosters are determined, but it is fake determination. They know they are through.

A Mitchell Palmer, who is still holding tenaciously to his 160-odd votes and gumming the game by refusing to get out.

Nobody can be nominated as long as he maintains the attitude that he will stick to his plan and not being managed to give him what is vulgarly called the "bum's ruck." An ultimatum very often applied to candidates who continue to stick around after their last chance is faded.

What you, as a reader of convention tidings, would like to know is whom these delegates are going to nominate.

Delegates Don't Know.

Well, in that respect you have nothing whatever on the delegates. This is a generally dedicated convention. There is no fake about it. The candidates that deadlocked it did such a good job in stopping the other booms that they staled their own. In getting rid of their chief enemies they got rid of themselves, a consummation which they little expected, and now bitterly regret.

Three or four plans are suggested for breaking the deadlock and nominating a candidate tomorrow. One is to get strong masterful man to address the delegates and tell them to nominate a candidate who can unite the entire party.

There are two objections to this. One is that there is no strong masterful man—the other is that there is no candidate who could unite the factions.

Release of Delegates Disastrous.

A second plan to abrogate all unit rules and release all instructed delegates. That could, of course, be done, but if it was done and these birds already intoxicated with liberty were permitted to select their own candidate without any help or duress, they would probably stay here the rest of the summer.

Tomorrow we'll know more about it. The balloting begins early in the day. If you read that either John W. Davis or Vice-President Marshall is picking up, you'll be in a position to do a little predicting. If you read that the votes are going to Colby, be careful. The many by a demonstration in Colby's favor, but the democratic party is a 33d degree lodge and

POOR WOMAN MADE RICH

Deed Dated in 1848 Brings Possession to Valuable Property.

NEW YORK, July 4.—(Special.)—To be raised from comparative poverty to sudden wealth is the experience of Mrs. Mary A. Barney, negro, of Flushing. She has just obtained possession of a valuable property through the discovery of a deed dated November 21, 1848, which had been misplaced for 72 years.

The deed conveyed the property to Mrs. Barney's grandfather, Daniel Bayman, but because of the disappearance of the papers and the failure to record the deed at the time, the ownership could not be legally established. The deed was recently found among some old papers and gives Mrs. Barney full possession of 15 acres of property at Oyster Bay, overlooking the sound. The present value of the property is said to run well into five figures.
