Delays in the completion of the public auditorium, caused by changes city authorities and representatives, proved costly to the contractor and threw the work on the entire building into the winter months, thus cutting down the efficiency of the workmen down the efficiency of the workmen and adding further costs to the building which were not paid by the city. Such was the gist of testimony given last night by G. D. Ellsworth, who was assistant superintendent and engineer on the auditorium construction work. The appearance of Mr. Elisworth, who entered the servive shortly after the auditorium was completed and did not return to Portland until a few months ago, was a land until a few months ago, was a distinct surprise to the city, and was considered by the claimants as an addition of strength.

The testimony of Mr. Ellsworth was given before the auditorium was given before the auditorium claims committee, composed of W. Y. Masters, chairman; W. C. North and Richard Martin Jr., which opened its formal hearings in the council chamber. The claims before the committee total approximately $75,000, and the city has been asked to assume payment of at least a portion of this amount and thus relieve N. F. Schanen and J. F. Kelley, bondsmen for Hans Pederson the contractor. Hans Pederson, the contractor, Brick Selection Discussed. Mr. Ellsworth testified that the selection of face brick was entirely in the hands of the architects, contrac-tors having been instructed to place a price of $30 a thousand in their ntracts for the face brick, and that the event that the cost of the brick exceeded this figure the city would pay the difference.

Hans Federson, according to the witness, received written notice that he should negotiate a contract with the Pacific Face Brick company for the face brick, which was done. The The Yellow Typhoon" is from a renle, it was accepted by the contrac-tor. The second shipment was con-demned, however, and immediately negotiations were started for the re-letting of a contract for the face brick. After months of delay a contract was entered into with a com pany in South Dakota. Delay Held Detrimental.

The delay caused by the change in contract for the face brick, the wit-ness averred, not only held up the son for the work, Ellsworth contended that the morale of the workmen was weakened and efficiency impaired. Much of the testimony of Ellsworth was of a technical nature, concerning

At the very outset of the work, Mr. Elisworth testified, ground tests were ordered, tests which he contended were usually handled by the architect and which consumed several months' time. Because of the many delays and the rumors circulated concerning the low bid entered by Pederson for the work, Elisworth contended that the morale of the workmen was
