

GOVERNOR COX GOES BACK TO OLD HOME

Afternoon Is Spent Amid Scenes of Boyhood.

REPORTERS SHARE LUNCH

Democratic Presidential Candidate Talks on Agriculture and of Plans for Future.

DAYTON, O., July 8.—Governor James M. Cox, presidential nominee for president, put aside the cares of being a presidential candidate and spent this afternoon on a farm, his boyhood home, 36 miles from Dayton.

Newspaper men who trailed the governor found him with his coat off, roasting potatoes and broiling lamb chops over a campfire in a small ravine.

Taking the intrusion of the newspaper men good-naturedly, he invited them to share the luncheon he was preparing, but during it would take more potatoes, chops and sandwiches than he had, he dispatched one of his men to Middletown for more. Lunch was served later.

While the potatoes were roasting and the chops burning, the governor answered many questions concerning his early boyhood, which he spent on the farm. He also discussed many phases of farming.

"Pasture Club" Organized.

While sitting in the shade of a large willow tree, one of his thoroughbred cows came wandering up to have a look at the democratic candidate. The governor said she is milked three times a day and gives two gallons at each milking.

At the governor's suggestion, the "pasture club" was formed, having for its membership the democratic candidate and the score of news writers and camera men. Miss Marjorie Wilson, of Cleveland, the only woman reporter in the company, was unanimously elected president after being placed in nomination by the governor.

Since he acquired the old Cox homestead two years ago, Governor Cox is fast transforming it into a model farm.

Governor Cox intimated this evening that he might soon be making a trip to the telegram of Richmond P. Hobson, anti-saloon league leader of Alabama, requesting that he make a definite statement on the enforcement of the federal dry amendment and congressional action to modify the Volstead act as to alcoholic content of liquors.

Cox May See Wilson.

It was also intimated by the governor that he may go to Washington soon for a meeting with President Wilson. Telephone conversations between Secretary Tamm and the governor have been held within the past few days, it was said.

The civic demonstration in honor of the democratic nomination will be held July 18. Interest now is turning to the approaching conference of the democratic candidate with the subcommittee of the national committee and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the vice-presidential nominee, which probably will be held in St. Louis as soon as the party arrives from San Francisco. The governor will make no speaking engagements until he has conferred with the committee. Hundreds of invitations to make addresses have been received.

ON BOARD WESTERN PACIFIC SCENIC LIMITED, Wendover, Utah, July 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy and democratic nominee for vice president, arrived en route east from San Francisco, said today he would complete his campaign plans after consulting with Governor James M. Cox, the presidential nominee, and members of the democratic national committee.

His personal preference is to have the official notification of nomination take place at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y. He will, however, he said, bow to the will of the national committee.

Mr. Roosevelt will stop at Glenwood Springs, Colo., tomorrow morning. He will see at least one of the yacht cup races off Sandy Hook from a destroyer, and will then go to Washington. Mr. Roosevelt is to have his family at Eastport, Me., beginning July 25.

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—Governor Cox is scheduled to return to Columbus next Monday, it was announced today. The Cox here primary campaign headquarters will be reopened next week, and campaign plans will be discussed.

TRENTON, N. J., July 8.—Governor Edwards today received the following telegram from Governor Cox of Ohio, replying to a message congratulating him on receiving the democratic presidential nomination:

"Glad to get such a message from New Jersey. Victory is ours."

JOHNSON TO SPEAK HERE

NOTED PROHIBITIONIST WILL ARRIVE TOMORROW.

Three Sunday Talks to Be Made by Man Who Lost Eye in Furthering Cause.

William E. Johnson, better known as "Pussyfoot" Johnson, prohibitionist, is due here tomorrow morning and will deliver three lectures here on Sunday. He is coming under the auspices of the National Temperance society, and while here will be the guest of the local branch of the organization. The exact time of his arrival has not yet been learned.

Johnson will give three talks here, as follows: In the morning at 11 o'clock at the First Congregational church; in the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the municipal auditorium, and in the evening at 8 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church. His talk will be along temperance lines, the subject being "What I Can See Through My Glass Eye."

The occasion of the subject of his address is brought about by the fact that Johnson several months ago lost his eye for the temperance cause, when a meeting which he was addressing in London was broken up by rioters from the streets and he was assaulted by men supposed to be of the "wet" element. The event brought Johnson wide notice.

Johnson has been working for the temperance cause for some years, is well known in Portland, having spent three months here in the summer and fall of 1914, when the state campaign was in progress. In 1917 he was named to take charge of an office in London for the World Temperance society, to explain to the people of the European nations how temperance legislation was brought about in the United States and what the experience has been in the various parts of the country as they have gone dry.

At the present time he is on a tour of the Pacific coast, and expects to return to London in September to continue his work there. He was scheduled to speak in Tacoma last night, in Seattle tonight, and to arrive in this city some time tomorrow for the three addresses here Sunday.

DRUG DEN BELIEVED FOUND

RETREAT OF ALLEGED GANG UNDER FLOOR OF DOCK.

Negro Accused of Being "Hop Head" Arrested and Said to Be Implicated in Robberies.

As the result of the discovery yesterday by inspectors Coleman and Price of the den of an alleged gang of drug users and thieves under the dock at the foot of Flinders street, the police at once began a campaign to put to an end the activities of the alleged gang.

Two men, believed to be members of the outfit, were taken into custody and the inspectors announced last night that they had been declared to have been robbing box cars, establishments in the north end and on Front street, and in various parts of the city, the various stolen articles being sold for the purpose of purchasing cocaine and other drugs from the Chinese.

Isaac Jackson, negro, arrested at Front and Flinders streets, was the first alleged member to be taken into custody by inspectors Price and Coleman. Jackson, according to the inspectors, had a check for $18.30 given him by the Oregon Brass company. This check, they say, he confessed was given him for goods which he had stolen from two establishments on Front street.

Inspectors Price and Coleman also arrested Peter Coppitt and are holding him at the police station for investigation. He was picked up at Second and Flinders streets. He gave his occupation as dishwasher and his age as 32.

Information regarding one Chinese, who is said to have been selling cocaine, was turned over to the government authorities last night for action. Purchasers of drugs are said to have been taken into custody, and the money, and later find their purchase on the window sill.

FIRE CHIEF EULOGIZED

Centralia Commission Honors Memory of Late T. E. Cunningham.

CENTRALIA, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—Resolutions were adopted by the city commission yesterday expressing regret at the death of Thomas E. Cunningham, fire chief, who lost his life on June 25 while fighting a fire at the home of the late Mrs. Cunningham. The resolution was adopted to express the commission's "desire to make official record of his sterling worth and high esteem in which his name is held by the people of this city."

Following the appointment of Frank Rowwell as fire chief yesterday, the commission named Fred Crowl as captain to succeed Mr. Rowwell.

DEATH STAVED OFF AGAIN

2 Slayers Reprieved for 11th and 12th Times, Respectively.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 8.—Alton B. Cole and Alvin Karpis, who were reprieved yesterday for the murder of Mrs. Lulu Voigt in Howard county, July 4, 1917, today received a reprieve until August 6 by Governor S. R. McKelvie, because Grammer said he had appeal pending in the United States circuit court of appeals.

This is the twelfth reprieve for Cole and the eleventh for Karpis, since they were sentenced to death just two years ago.

MARTENS CASE DEFERRED

Hearing in Deportation Proceedings Again Postponed.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Hearings in deportation proceedings against Ludwig C. Martens, German-born ambassador in the United States, were postponed again today to July 14.

The labor department's action was at the request of former Senator Hardwick, counsel for Martens, who was detained in San Francisco by the convention.

Portlander Gets Appointment.

SALEM, Ore., July 8.—(Special.)—Olecutt today appointed W. D. McCurry of Portland as regional director of the Oregon board of pharmacy. Mr. McCurry was recommended by Mr. Hatch, the retiring official, as well as by members of the drug association in Portland. Mr. McCurry is president of the latter organization.

Centralia Has Navy Recruiters.

CENTRALIA, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—A. M. Shackelford, local gunner's mate, is in charge of a temporary navy recruiting office in Centralia. The office will remain open until July 10. Four men have enlisted to date, Marvin M. Hogan and Frank Chitty, both of this city; Elmer J. Blake of Rochester, and Harold C. Smith of Gate. Chitty is a veteran of the world war.

Lewis County Bank Deposits Grew.

CENTRALIA, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—The total deposits of the Lewis county banks at the close of business on June 30 were $9,089,477.87, an increase of $248,164.09 over the deposits of May 4, the date of the last call for statements, and an increase of $2,968,772 over the deposits of June 30, 1919.

S. & H. green stamps for cash. Holman Fuel Co. Main 124, 460-21. Adv.

FRANCE REBUILDING SPENT $250,000,000

Prodigious Progress Made in Restoring Provinces.

THOUSANDS BEGIN ANEW

Outside of Red Cross and What Other Societies Are Doing Little Aid Comes From Abroad.

BY LINCOLN EYRE.

(Copyright by the New York Herald Company. Published by Arrangement.) PARIS, July 8.—(Special.)—"Never in the whole course of the ages has my country had so many deaths to mourn as France has had since the war. Never has a government been confronted with so gigantic a heap of ruins. And never has a people faced with greater courage and with a more profound will to overcome the formidable obstacles that stand before the French people in their task of reconstruction."

So Emile Ogier, minister of liberated regions, voiced for me the French government's feeling about the stupendous job upon which it has been engaged since the armistice. The job rebuilding thousands upon thousands of cities, towns, villages, factories, farms, railroads, bridges and roads destroyed by the war in northern France.

The minister declined to formulate in the shape of an interview the exact number of the French people who are engaged in the rebuilding of their country. He said that the number of the French people who are engaged in the rebuilding of their country is about 10,000,000.

Figures Show Results.

"I am partisan, of course," he said, "and therefore what I say is special pleading. It is to the figures you must turn for the true account of what we have done. Let the figures do the talking."

Because France, when hostilities ceased, was very weary, very eager for a breathing spell of repose after her long agony of war, her people were disinclined to plunge immediately into the heart-breaking labor of reconstruction. The armistice meant for them a victory which they had sacrificed more than any other nation to achieve.

And to take things easy for a while. They felt, moreover, that it was up to Germany to repair the damages done their northern departments; of this they were assured by their statements. And some months passed before either the government or public opinion realized that while Germany would be compelled eventually to foot the bill, the capital and labor immediately required would have to be provided by France.

All Accomplished in Year.

Something over a year ago I motored through a large section of the devastated zone. The aspect of the country was more desolate even than it had been in war. Creative activity was conspicuous by its absence. A few small bodies of troops, mostly in the north, were "dug" shells out of the ground or tearing down barbed-wire entanglements, an occasional peasant meandered gloomily among the ruins of his home, here and there a detachment of soldiers employed on graves' registration, otherwise a silent emptiness like that of a haunted house.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

Today the liberated regions, as the north is officially styled, are alive again. The energy of constructive endeavor pulsates through these erstwhile moribund provinces. For many months past the army of industry and French brains have been strenuously engaged—without brass band accompaniment, it is said—in setting this very important wing of the French house in order. And the progress that has been made is almost prodigious.

have been restored. Thereby employment has been forthcoming for 257,874 of the 679,000 persons who formerly worked in the damaged factories. Incidentally, French production of cotton, linen, woollens and sugar has been considerably increased.

To defray the cost of materials for reconstruction, tools and housefurnishings the French government spent in 1918 110,977,000 francs; in 1919, 1,071,423,000 francs; and thus far this year, $4,126,542 francs.

PENDLETON AFTER PRIZE

La Grande Raced to Land Macca-bees' District Headquarters.

PENDLETON, Ore., July 8.—(Special.)—Seventy Pendleton business and professional men, who are applicants for membership in the local lodge of Macca-bees, were initiated to night, as a preliminary to the discussion of plans for the erection of a $150,000 Macca-bee home here.

Pendleton is racing La Grande for membership and the city that wins will receive the honor of housing the district headquarters of the order.

La Grande has the lead at present, but District Manager Christy appointed W. P. Dayton and W. R. Gray local managers, and nearly all the business men in Pendleton are behind the Macca-bees in their efforts.

Option has been secured upon a lot in the new section and at least a $40,000 building will go up. If the private concern builds, the structure will be called the Macca-bee home, and will house a modern theater, with stage large enough to insure road shows for Pendleton.

Women Macca-bees are making an earnest effort to help Umatilla tent land the prize.

SALMON RUN FALLS OFF

Yakima River Fisherman Alarmed at Decrease in Spawning.

YAKIMA, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—That the annual run of salmon in the Yakima river this year is 50 per cent less than five years ago, that more than 75,000 to 100,000 roval chinook salmon and only a few steelhead salmon fought their way to the spawning grounds this year, and that the Yakima Indians, who are rapidly becoming extinct, was claimed yesterday by Palutkin, head salmon man of the Yakima Indian tribe.

Palutkin has called a conference of the head salmon men of the seven allied Indian tribes of the Pacific northwest, at White Swan, on the Yakima reservation, to frame an appeal for legislation to protect the salmon.

BAKER DIAMONDS FOUND

Seattle Firm Buys Pawn Tickets From Woman, Say Police.

TACOMA, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—Diamonds stolen from the home of Frank S. Baker, Tacoma publisher, last April, have been located in Seattle at the store of Joseph Mayer & Brother, jewelers, in Spokane. The Mayer admitted buying pawn tickets for the jewels from Mrs. V. H. Burt, detectives said today. Mrs. Burt is now in Spokane. It is said the diamonds are valued at $4000, yet they were pawned for $80, and Mrs. Burt was given $100 for the diamonds.

Mr. Baker, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert H. Baker, of Cleveland, and other friends left today for Alaska. If he does not return, the police say, the insurance company will do so as the loss was covered against theft.

SCHOOL HEAD IS NAMED

Brenton Vedder New School Superintendent of Clackamas County.

OREGON CITY, Ore., July 8.—(Special.)—Brenton Vedder, who has been six years county school supervisor, was appointed Wednesday night by the county board of education to succeed J. E. Calavan, which takes effect July 15. Mr. Vedder will take up his new duties at that date.

Mr. Vedder is favorably known in Clackamas county and was principal of the Gladstone school for a number of years. He has spent practically all his life in educational work.

Negro Convict Shot.

CENTERVILLE, Mo., July 8.—Fred Canafex, an escaped negro convict, was shot to death by a mob of whites near here late yesterday. Canafex had been sentenced to life in the Missouri state penitentiary for the murder of Frank Simmons, a farmer residing near Ellington, Tuesday night.

Pe Ell Elks Hold Initiation.

CHEHALIS, Wash., July 8.—(Special.)—At Pe Ell last night the Elks initiated 29 candidates. Tonight the Chehalis Elks held their initiation members at home. Saturday night a large Chehalis delegation will go to Morton to initiate a class of 25.

Creating Wealth by Subtraction

Once upon a time a millionaire was at death's door. He summoned all his relatives, near and far, to his bedside. He told them he was dying and because he was very rich they were, of course, stricken with grief.

Then the rich man's servants entered with bales and bales of bonds and money until his great fortune was piled high before them. And suddenly the pile was set afire and completely destroyed before the agonized onlookers could interfere.

We talk often of wealth and yet do we understand the difference, to us all, (—to the state) between the burning of a million bushels of wheat and the burning of its price equivalent in money?

Do we all understand the difference between the real production of wealth and increasing prices by decreasing production?

If the nation understood economics, could men successfully urge the limiting of production as a means of increasing our national fortune?

Would any one accept the principal of creating wealth by subtraction?

Our people should be educated in elementary economics.

And national advertising is the best means of national education.

Butterick—Publisher

The Delineator ($2.50 a Year) Everybody's Magazine ($2.50 a Year) The Designer ($2.00 a Year)

PALMER'S EXPENSE NEXT TO BE PROBED

Senate Committee to Open Hearings in St. Louis.

CHICAGO SESSIONS END

Georgia Negro Accuses Democrats of Buying Votes at From $5 to $5000 Each.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The senate committee investigating pre-convention campaign expenditures of candidates left here tonight for St. Louis where it will resume its hearings tomorrow.

Expenditures in behalf of Attorney-General Palmer, who was a candidate for the democratic nomination for president, are scheduled for investigation tomorrow and nearly a score of witnesses, including Edward Goltra, democratic national committeeman, and Joseph E. Davis of St. Louis, have been subpoenaed.

Reports that Goltra paid $3000 to delegates for expenses to the state convention which was hoped for the ousting of Senator Reed from his national convention seat, were said by committee members to be one subject investigated.

Chicago Hearings Ended.

Press dispatches from San Francisco today showed that Goltra and Davis still are there but Senator Kenyon and the committee would begin its inquiry into Mr. Palmer's campaign anyway.

The committee today finished its hearings in Chicago with the testimony of Henry Lincoln Johnson, Georgia negro, alleged to have received $8000 Lowden money, who declared supporters of General Leonard Wood spent more money than Governor Lowden in Georgia and that democrats spent more than both of the republicans.

Democrats Are Discussed.

Johnson confirmed the statement that he had received $9000 from the Illinois governor's campaign chest. He set his own expenditures in Georgia at $20,000, charged the Wood supporters had spent $50,000 and also accused the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.

The committee questioned Johnson about the democrats of spending large sums and buying votes at from $5 to $5000 each, in local elections.