

NEW PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER ARRIVES

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Bowman Pleased With Portland.

POLICY IN PULPIT TOLD

Successor to Dr. John H. Boyd Says Spectacular Will Be Avoided in Church Services.

That they will like Portland and were delighted with the masses of roses and sweet peas which filled their room at the Portland hotel were the assurances of Dr. and Mrs. Harold W. Bowman who arrived in Portland yesterday afternoon. Dr. Bowman is the new pastor of the First Presbyterian church, which, since the resignation of Dr. John H. Boyd last year, has been without a permanent pastor. Dr. Bowman will occupy the pulpit tomorrow morning and evening.

Dr. Bowman undoubtedly will qualify as the youngest pastor of any of the larger Portland churches. This is partly due to the recent war and graduation from the McCormick Theological seminary in Chicago only four years ago. He comes to Portland from the Woodlawn Park church of Chicago, which he has served three years. Prior to his course at McCormick, he taught three years in the Syrian Presbyterian college at Beirut. The college, he explains, with its 100 students, furnished him an opportunity for service in the calling for which he planned to fit himself, and gave him an opportunity to familiarize himself with the Holy Land and to travel through the European countries.

Marriage in 1916.
His marriage to Mrs. Bowman was in 1916. Mrs. Bowman was formerly Miss Gertrude Butterfield, one of his classmates at Coe college, Iowa, from which they were graduated in 1916. Following her graduation she taught and also served as student Y. W. C. A. secretary at the Iowa State college at Ames. It is the first trip west of Colorado for the Bowmans and they are greatly interested in the Pacific coast life.

"Presentation of the essential, fundamental truths of the Bible—age old—in a manner adapted to the modern and scientific age is the challenge of the church of today," said Dr. Bowman. "Christ must be re-related to each generation. The essentials of his message must be preached in a way which will give practical help in the daily life and its problems."

"Today there is a great hunger for knowledge of things that count. This is partly due to the recent war and very much because of a growing reaction against the complexities of life. People are realizing that which money and power cannot fill. The new religious faiths are in a way a result of the consciousness of this growing need."

Spectacular Not Desired.
"The ideal services are those which make the public realize this need and come to the church with a devotion and should be in a practical way bring people into an intimate contact with God. There must be a need present which will command conviction. In the past we have been too theoretical and have devoted too much time exclusively to doctrines. Doctrines may be very worth-while Christianity but no doctrine is of itself worth a sermon. It is only in its application to man and his problems that it becomes all important."

"I want to get away from the spectacular in church services. I have no intention of competing with the theaters for audiences. I do not mean to criticize the methods of others, but my own belief is that the message may be presented so that persons will of their own accord want to come."

Officers of the church assembled last evening at the church house at a welcoming dinner to Dr. and Mrs. Bowman, prepared by the Women's association. None present could doubt the warmth of the welcome or the pleasure given to the new pastor and his wife by the hearty greetings accorded them.

The formal reception by the congregation will be announced later.

SUMMER TALKS PLANNED

Lectures Arranged by Knights of Columbus Service Club.

Several interesting summer lectures have been planned by the Knights of Columbus Service club, organized primarily to conduct welfare work, according to an announcement made yesterday by Joseph Little, general club secretary. The first lecture will be given at 8 o'clock this evening. Judge Robert G. Morrow having been asked to speak upon the subject of the mistakes and impossibilities of a government without a head. His lecture will be preceded by a musical programme and moving pictures. The entire programme will be given at the headquarters of the service club, 245 Couch street.

Other lectures during the summer are planned to benefit strangers as well as club members. W. H. Fitzgerald of the state bureau of labor will speak July 16 on the various provisions of state labor laws, while on July 23 Judge Kanzler of the court of domestic relations will outline the duties of American citizenship. There will be a singing and instrumental musical programme at each lecture.

Complaints Made About Boys.
HOOD RIVER, Or., July 9.—(Special.)—Complaints have been laid before the Hood River County Game Protective association against boys of the city, who, armed with small caliber rifles, are said to be killing silver gray squirrels and robins.

A New York family lately held a celebration in honor of a woman servant who had been in the family's service for 50 years.
