

PASTOR CHALLENGES SCOFFERS OF CHURCH

Scoffers Likened to Mob That Stoned Stephen.

SAUL CITED AS EXAMPLE

Dr. H. L. Bowman Relates How Bystanders Deduct Own Conclusions Regarding Religion.

Scoffers of the church and of organized religion were challenged yesterday morning in a sermon.

Dr. H. L. Bowman, new pastor of the First Presbyterian church, He based his address on the story of Stephen, the Christian, and the mob which stoned him because it did not understand.

"Saul, the Jew, could not comprehend the motive nor the ideal which carried Stephen triumphantly through his martyrdom."

"We shall let Saul the bystander bear for us a type that repeats the sad story of many people with whom we rub shoulders day by day."

"I wonder if the bystander realizes in what company he finds himself? Does he know that he is traveling in the same train with the one who, knowing nothing of art, condemns all art as silly and meaningless?"

"That is why we must contend that the bystander is an incompetent judge. As a witness of life and truth he must be ruled out of court."

"The steamer Rose City regularly operating between Portland and San Francisco ports, reached the river yesterday afternoon at 10 o'clock last night. She brings passengers and general cargo."

"The man who does not pray is utterly incompetent to discuss the subject of prayer. The man who does not devoutly study the Bible cannot discuss its inspiring power."

"The man who today dismisses religion as a useless element in modern life, who dismisses it as a superstition of a past age, that person is judging something of which he is ignorant as truly as were the judges who condemned Jesus or as was Saul who stoned Stephen."

"But what trouble is there in that within the church there are so many bystanders, people who are formally enrolled among followers of Christ, but to whom religion is a mere formality brought any vital religious experience. Christ can be understood and the saving power of his love only experienced when we kneel and humbly and surrender recognize his lordship in our lives."

forces within the party that opposed Tammany. On one occasion a Tammany congressman uttered his protest against this policy in so vehement a manner that President Wilson ordered him out of the White House.

Another of these anti-Wilson leaders who nominated Cox is George Brennan, an ex-member of the Illinois democratic machine. The bitterness of this machine resentment over Wilson's discrimination against Sullivan at the time the latter was running for the senate may have passed out of public memory, but to anyone who was present at the San Francisco convention it was vividly recalled by the pleasure of seeing a machine tool in getting its revenge.
