Delegates to Astoria Convention

WHITE LEADS IN BALLOT

Decision of Men in Camp Not to Participate in Election Due to Committee Antagonism.

In view of the antagonistic attitude of some of the members of the executive committee of Portland post of the American Legion, members of the post who were at national guard encampment at Camp Lewis, Wash., when the election was held, decided not to join in the recent election of delegates to the state convention of the legion by casting their votes in camp and mailing them to Portland, said George A. White, adjutant-general of Oregon, in his return from camp last night.

Though absent from the city, Mr. White led in the balloting for 23 delegates Monday night at the post election, getting a total of 82 votes, with the second highest candidate polling 75.

Result of the balloting Monday night was held tentative because permission had been granted for soldiers out of the city to participate in the voting. As they did not vote the post election finally determined the selection of representatives of the local legionnaires at Astoria July 20, 21 and August 1.

Time Given for Voting.

Though he had received definite word a week ago from Mr. White that the guardsmen declined to vote, James K. Bain, acting post commander, announced at the Monday night meeting that he would give the men out of the city until Tuesday night to get their votes in. Considerable wrangling at the post meeting was over the question of permitting the post members who were not at Camp Lewis to participate in the election, resulting in a 2 to 1 victory in favor of allowing them to vote. Ballots had been mailed to Camp Lewis more than a week ago, said Mr. White last night, but had been accompanied by a brief note from Mr. Bain asserting that they were being sent over the protest of some of the executive committee of the post.

Canvas Is Ordered.

"Captain Frank Waters was detailed to canvass the Portland legionnaires at Camp Lewis to find out whether they still desired to vote in the election, in view of the fact that some Portland post officers thought they desired an unfair advantage in the balloting," remarked Mr. White. "They were shown a copy Monday of Bain's letter and were unanimous in their decision not to vote under the circumstances," he said. Mr. Bain of the decision. He telegraphed me later that he was going to put the advisability of the absent post members voting before the post and to go ahead, but I did not reply as the decision already had been made. Mr. Bain's letter was sent throughout, and our decision not to vote was made merely to avoid any confusion or misunderstanding over the matter at the post election."

The vote Monday night being decisive, the following, in the order named, will receive Portland posts at Astoria: George A. White, Thomas Sweeney, James O. Conville, Jerrald Owen, Frederick W. Conroy, Frank Franklin P. Krell, James R. Bain, Wilbur Henderson, Edward J. Evers, Henry Boyer, Fred Cook, G. L. Goodell, Merle Campbell, Ben Morrow, Arthur A. Murphy, Walter B. Gleason, Arthur W. Galt, George Walker, Fred C. Hammond, Jane V. Doyle, Frank M. Moore, James F. Alexander and J. Guy Strohm. As many alternates were picked.

DEPUTY "STEALS" 3 DAYS

"Mistake" Takes Three Days Off Vacation Periods.

When vacation time was allotted in the district at the Cooks' convention, Deputy was given from July 5 to July 30. When the time for quitting the law office expired, Deputy grew restive, and one evening after an arduous day he grabbed the calendar and, looking at the June page instead of July, discovered that his vacation was due the next day.

The mistake—if it really was one—gave Deputy three extra days of rest, and it is keeping one of the other deputies back in the office a like number of days.

Walter Evers, chief of the office, has not yet decided on the form of punishment for the vacationist.

"SAND" and "Solid Concrete"—these are the titles of the two Columbia stellar attractions this week. They are as strong dramatically as the titles suggest and are bravely reinforced by their stars, William S. Hart and Larry Semon.

In actuality there are two stars in "Sand," Mr. Hart and his pint pony, "The Boss." His leading lady, Mary Thurman, also comes in for a share of the glory. The locale of "Sand," which is from the pen of Lambert Hillier, is in the great southwest where population is sparse and daring outlaws and ranchmen correspondingly prevalent. A band of alleged Mexicans had been holding up trains and making a series of valuable catches in that vicinity. They had been discovered by the police, but their identity by leading their ponies into a river from which they apparently never came out, for no tracks leading out have ever been discovered.

Kurrie, played by Hart, comes into the community as a minor official in the railway station, but soon he comes under the shadow of several questionable deals and is fired. To add to his sorrows his sweetheart, while another girl has captured his heart, announces her engagement to a rival suitor. With "The Boss" he is traveling to ranch where he has been promised work, but he accidentally makes an important discovery that leads him back to the little railroad station and to the girl he loves forms the climax. An outing Chester picture showing the hunting trip made by a party of editors at Banff, Canada, completes the program.

Efforts are being made by A. A. Bruce, manager of the Peoples theater, to locate a real fortune teller, who will read the future of the coming week and if he can find a competent spiritualist he plans to employ him.

Gold Braided Uniform Belongs to Municipal Band, Asserts One.

HOW should a chief of police look? This question was the source of heated argument between two women who visited in the city hall yesterday. As Chief of Police Jenkins passed, arrayed in his full uniform gold braid and all, one of the women remarked that the chief of police was a good-looking man.

"That's not the chief of police. He's too sweet looking. I think probably that man leads the municipal band," stoutly asserted the other woman.

"Well I know that he doesn't look like a regular policeman, but he's the chief, just the same, because I called at his office one day last week to complain about my neighbor's dog. And he's a good chief, too, because since I told him about the barking that kept me awake nights, the dog has been as quiet as a mouse. No, you can't always tell folks by looks."

Furs and Mystery

By N. M. Ungar.

It is very apparent that misnamed furs are always inferior to those under whose titles they masquerade. Certainly a high-grade fur is never offered under the name of a common or low cost skin, for misnaming is done solely to secure larger profits. The fur which is obtained in selling the fur for what it really is.

Now it happens that some furs of the medium high grades are both imitated and used to imitate. Mink, for instance, is imitated by unhairing and dyeing it black, which is correspondingly higher in price.

It is evident, then, that only the highest priced species of fur, such as sable, black and ermine, escape being used as substitutes, and this merely because there is nothing higher to imitate.

We may, therefore, say of ermine, sable and black fox, that they are decidedly "the real thing" and "the real thing" ermine, for example, imitating nothing, yet imitated most vigorously.

The ermine is found in the mountains of the family, found in northern Canada and Siberia. Strangely its coat is white only during the winter months, and the little animals are therefore caught only under the great weight of hardships and handicaps.

Another common substitute for ermine is white rabbit—a skin of little value, but which is sold for a large margin of illegitimate profit when sold as the "fur of royalty."

Carlson Suffered 5 Years From Indigestion and Rheumatism; Tanlac Restores His Health.

"Tanlac has rid me of a case of rheumatism from which I suffered for five years and increased my weight nineteen pounds besides," declared Oscar Carlson of Kirkland, Wash., a well-known employee of the Price Shipping Co. recently.

"The rheumatism bothered me mainly in my back, and I was so weak so it was hard for me to get about and do my work. The pains in my back were so bad that I could get very little sleep at night, and I had a catch in my back which made it agony for me to bend over and straighten up. I never enjoyed a meal as I should and what I ate did me very little good. I lost weight and finally got so weak that the least exertion would tire me out completely."

"I had read so much about Tanlac and I felt that I never enjoyed a meal as I should and what I ate did me very little good. I lost weight and finally got so weak that the least exertion would tire me out completely."

Cocoon Oil Makes a Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep hair in good condition be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful to the hair. The cocoon oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, is much better than any other shampoo. It cleanses the hair thoroughly, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulified cocoon oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces are enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Adv.

Farmer's Wife Finds Astonishing Relief

"For ten long years I had suffered with my stomach. I tried everything without relief, but after one dose of Myrtle Wonderlax Remedy I knew I had obtained what I had been looking for, and I took the full course of treatment. It is going on 4 years now and I have never had any pains or bloating since." It removes the cause of indigestion, the stomach troubles and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will give you relief or money refunded. At all drug stores.—Adv.

How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, just take a bath or a shower made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saosite in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this more refreshing than an hour's rest.

As a wrinkle-remover the saosite lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deepest furrows, as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour improved, wrinkles smoothed. The simple ingredients of course can be had at any drugstore, and you need not hesitate to try the lotion, as it will not harm your skin in the least.—Adv.
