

OREGON ELKS HERDS BOONE A SALEM

Capital Gaily Decorated in Purple and White of Order.

JUSTICE HARRIS SPEAKS

Musical Programme Is One of Principal Features of First of Convention Sessions.

SALEM, Or., July 21.—(Special)—The state convention of Elks formally opened here tonight when Mayor Wilson, in the presence of a large crowd assembled in the armory, presented the keys of the city to Harry G. Allen, president of the state Elks' association. The response on behalf of the honored head was given by Mr. Allen who thanked Mayor Wilson for his laudatory reference to elksdom and urged the people of Salem and Oregon to join with the lodgemen in making the convention the best ever held in the history of the association.

SALEM, Or., July 21.—(Special)—The Washington state convention will be held in Vancouver in August. The Elks to be held there will be held here Thursday.

Salem Ruler Is Named.
SALEM, Or., July 21.—(Special)—E. A. Kurtz, exalted ruler of Salem lodge No. 225, Elks, has been named as a member of the Elks' state hospital board. Announcement of the appointment was received here today in a telegram from Harry G. Allen of Portland, state president of the Elks. It is understood that the establishment of a home in Oregon for aged Elks will be considered at a meeting of the hospital board to be held here Thursday.

Among the outstanding features of the opening programme of the convention, the address delivered by Supreme Justice Harris, member of Eugene lodge No. 257, and a solo by Miss Ruth Johns, daughter of Charles F. Johns, member of the Oregon supreme court and 25 years ago exalted ruler of the Baker lodge of Elks. Other numbers included musical selections by the Elks' orchestra and singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the convention singers.

Dressed in its gayest attire, with purple and white colors predominating, Salem tonight presented all the evidence of a convention city. All trains arriving here during the day brought their quota of visitors, while hundreds of automobiles thronged the streets. In most instances the automobile parties established camp at the state fair grounds.

Portland Officials Arrive.
Harry G. Allen, president of the state Elks' association, and James Olson, secretary, arrived here from Portland tonight. They will start Thursday morning and the afternoon will be left open in order that the visiting lodgemen may participate in the many entertainment features arranged for the occasion. At Saturday's session officers will be elected and the 1921 convention city will be chosen.

Hotel gossip among the delegates who arrived here tonight indicated that Marshfield will have easy sailing for the next convention of the association. A few weeks ago it was rumored that Pendleton and Astoria would make bids for next year's gathering, but it was said tonight that both of these cities had withdrawn. Officers of the association are: Harry G. Allen, Portland, president; James Olson, Portland, secretary; C. A. Hayden, Klaimath Falls, treasurer; E. C. Jerome, Medford, sergeant-at-arms; Walter L. Toose, chaplain; J. E. Hildebrand, Marshfield, Tyler.

LODGE SENDS ADVANCE GUARD

Special Train and Several Hundred Automobiles to Carry Members.

Forty members of Portland lodge No. 142 of Elks, composing the advance guard of the delegation selected to represent the city, left Portland yesterday for Salem to attend the annual convention. At 6:30 o'clock this afternoon the special train will leave Union station with 500 Portland lodgemen and their families. Several hundred automobiles carrying Portland lodge members will also leave Portland for Salem to participate in the convention.

Among arrivals in Portland were E. P. Mahaffey, exalted ruler of Bend lodge; Benton Burdick and Jay Upton, members of the Bend delegation, who stopped here to campaign for Bend's candidate for the presidency of the state association, Dr. J. H. Rosenberg.

The Bend delegation claim they have been "smoked" out in the campaign that has been waged in behalf of R. Alexander of Pendleton, a candidate for the presidency.

Linked with the candidacy of Dr. Rosenberg in the Elks' campaign is the proposed dam at the head of the Metolius river, 40 miles from Bend. Here the Bend lodgemen propose the construction of a great resort to be operated in connection with a hunting lodge, the building itself to be constructed by the grand lodge Elks and the resort to be operated under the direction of the Oregon State Elks' association.

Mr. Mahaffey is anxious to have a man at the head of the state association at this time who is familiar with the project, which has already received the indorsement of the grand lodge. At the Chicago convention, through the efforts of the Bend delegation, the good of the order committee reported the plan favorably, a report which was adopted by unanimous vote, and the convention voted to postpone the appointment of a committee to inspect the site and report on the project at the next grand lodge convention, which is scheduled to be held next summer in Los Angeles.

VANCOUVER, WASH., SENDS 200

Salem Elks Expected to Attend Convention in Neighboring States.

SALEM, Or., July 21.—(Special)—Nearly 200 Elks in automobiles will start from the Elks' temple here at 7:30 A. M. Friday, July 23, and will go to Salem, Or., to attend the Oregon state convention. The Elks to be held there will be held here Thursday.

Mother of Family, Ill in Portland, Recovers When Told Loved Ones Are Safe.

Rarely does a welcome to incoming relatives or friends, no matter how touching, interest a casual onlooker at the union station, where hourly the stories of the comely and tragedy of life are enacted. But last night a few Elks, business men, noticed with wonder the exuberance of joy with which a party of ten weary travelers were greeted.

The onlookers didn't know that the grown men who threw their arms around the neck of the oldest of the travelers and kissed him frantically were welcoming a brother, whom they had, until recently, thought dead. Nor did they know that the woman who accompanied him had been miraculously saved from being massacred.

For these travelers were a party of Armenians who have journeyed for four and a half months from their homes in Sivas, Armenia, to their new life in America with their relatives, the Cartozian brothers, of Portland.

Pilos O. Cartozian, the oldest of the brothers, who brought the party to Portland, was saved after being taken away by Turkish government officials to be killed. The Turk was a Mason, as was Cartozian, and putting his views above his religion and his government, he took Pilos Cartozian into his home and kept him protected there all during the war at the risk of his own life.

Family Is Saved.
Through the aid of this Turk, the other members of the family were also protected, but they found it difficult to send word to their anxious relatives in America, who thought they had been massacred.

The Cartozians' sister, Mrs. Malweh Kirishian, and her four children, were also in the party which arrived in Portland last night. Her husband was killed in 1917 in battle while protecting his home against the Turks.

The children range in age from the tiny black-eyed baby, a year and a half, to girls of 18 and 15.

"It seems almost too good to be true to think that they are really here," said Hovsep Cartozian, youngest of the brothers, last night. "We have much to be thankful for."

The mother of the boys, Mrs. Marguerite Cartozian, 78 years old, prepared a welcome for her son and daughter and their families, to celebrate their home-coming in the biblical fashion. Two lambs were sacrificed with ceremony last night and a feast prepared. Symbolical of the fact that the new life was begun and the experiences of the past were to be forgotten, the mother, with her daughters-in-law, has been preparing the feast for the past two weeks.

The mother has been seriously ill for several days, but when she heard that her children and grandchildren were safe, she recovered at once.

Love for Each Is Great.
No celebration is to her too great to welcome those whom she had believed to be dead.

The Cartozians explained last night while they waited for the train that the reason for their coming here was the love of children for a father.

The family became interested in the west through Miss Frances Gage, an American secretary, who was in the Anatolia girls' college in Marsovan, Turkey. Miss Gage lost her life during the war. She was a sister when she had followed some of her charges who had been taken away by the Turkish hordes.

Massachusetts had to get from Armenia at the present time, but through letters written by Wallace McCamant to the Society of Friends in Washington, D. C. the precious papers were finally obtained.

The party was met in New York June 22 by Meger Kirishian, a nephew of the brothers, who was a volunteer in the Rainbow division during the war. "He entered the war," said Hovsep last night. "to revenge indirectly the sufferings of his nation. On the way they visited one of the brothers in Chicago and Aram Cartozian at Spokane. Aram was the first to come to America in 1903. He established the business here and in Seattle and Spokane. He accompanied them to Portland at this time for a family reunion."

Pilos' son Neres preceded the party and arrived in Portland in June. There are now 20 members of the family in the United States.

Weary Party of Armenians Welcomed by Relatives.

TEETH'S EFFECT ON HEALTH EXPLAINED

Oregon Dentists Hear Talk by Dr. W. A. Price.

FREE CLINICS TO BE HELD

Progress of Modern Dentistry Illustrated in Addresses by Prominent Specialists.

The vital relationship of teeth to a person's health was explained last night by Dr. Weston L. Price of Cleveland in his lecture at the public library before the members of the Oregon State Dental association, which is holding its 27th annual convention here this week at the North Pacific Dental college. Several hundred laymen and doctors also attended the lecture.

Dr. Price, who gave as the subject of his lecture "The Relationship of Dentistry to Good Health," which he illustrated in showing some of the ways in which persons might suffer bodily ailments when the teeth are in poor condition. He said every condition which he presented had been brought to him in his private dental hospital in Cleveland where he has devoted nearly all of his time to research work and ferreted out the causes of ill health resulting from defective teeth.

The afternoon program included an address by Dr. T. H. Johnson of Ashland. Dr. Eugene Vaughn of Portland will have the opportunity of having their teeth extracted free and painlessly by one of the best known dentists in the country. It will apply at the North Pacific Dental college either today or tomorrow.

Dr. Arthur E. Smith of Chicago, who is holding a clinic before the Oregon State Dental association, will demonstrate to the 250 assembled dentists the technique of removing teeth painlessly by the nerve blocking method. Free extractions will be made all day during the convention.

Free Clinics to Be Held.
Dr. Price will lecture again today, choosing for his subject Applied Diagnostic Methods for Studying of Oral Sepsis. As in last night's lecture, he will exhibit and demonstrate on points, using as examples patients who will be selected from those who apply for relief from treatment.

This afternoon Dr. E. Underhill of Portland will lecture on "Gold Dentures With Porcelain Facing," while Dr. Eugene Vaughn of Portland will demonstrate the operation of a motion picture machine in the college.

The convention will close Saturday with a trip on the Columbia highway and a basket dinner at Bonneville park.

PORTLAND RENT LOWEST

CITIES OF SAME SIZE OUT-RANKED, SAYS BUILDER.

New York, Philadelphia and Minneapolis Highest; Coast Averages Below East.

Rents for quarters in apartment houses and rooming houses are substantially lower in the west than in the east, while rents in Portland are lower on the average than in any other city of similar size in the country, according to Eugene N. Fritz, chairman of the national apartment-house section of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Mr. Fritz passed through Portland yesterday on his way from Minneapolis, where he attended the recent national convention of the association, to his home in San Francisco.

A rapid comparison of average rents for rooms, in buildings similarly constructed and similarly located with reference to business districts and transportation lines was given by Mr. Fritz which showed Portland rents to be lower on a par with those of any other city of similar size or larger. Average rents for a number of cities were summed up by the national association officer as follows:

New York, $75 to $100 per room per month; unfurnished; Washington, $45 per month; Chicago, $35 to $50 per month; unfurnished; Chicago, two rooms, furnished; $85 per month; furnished; three-room apartment, furnished; Vancouver, B. C., two rooms furnished; $25 to $35 per month; Seattle, two rooms furnished; $35, unfurnished; $65, single rooms furnished; $25 to $30 per month; San Francisco, $25 to $40 per month per room furnished; Portland, $15 per month per room furnished, $30 to $35 per month per room furnished.

Frank Everhart Faces Charge of Assault Following Clash Over Alleged Insult.

"He threw them words out of his face and went at me like a wild man," explained B. E. Jones in the court of District Judge Jones yesterday in the assault and battery case against Frank Everhart, in which he was charged with striking and assaulting, pointing to the defendant: "That's the fellow that commenced beating me up on me. I'm not a fighting man, myself; I'm a butcher."

At wide variance were the stories leading to the assault on Everhart between Price and Everhart July 8, from which Price emerged with two black eyes. Price had given Miss Bertha Everhart, sister of the defendant, a ride on his automobile truck toward her home on Foster road. Her story was that he had insulted her and that she jumped from the truck to escape his attentions.

"No, I did not put my arm around her," denied Price on the witness stand. "I got a lady over there that suits me all right." He pointed at Mrs. Price.

Regardless of what may have started the fight, it was the man who was in the fair, called at the home of Price that night with the avowed intention of avenging the alleged insult to their sister.

What do you mean by insulting my sister?" were the words Price asserted were "thrown out" starting the fight, which he delayed.

The case went into the hands of a jury last night.

CITY BLAMED FOR COSTS

Auditorium Builder Entitled to $15,000, Asserted.

Contractor on Stand Says Changing Face Brick Caused Price of That Material to Double.

The delay caused by the change in face brick, which was asked by the city, caused the cost of that part of the work to double, testified W. Douglas, contractor, who appeared as a witness last night in the auditorium hearing in the council chamber in the city hall. Douglas, who has been a contractor for 56 years, stated that the claims of Hans Pederson, contractor for $18,000 for the delay in the construction due to the change in the brick, was reasonable.
