

CONFIDENCE IN LEADER CHOSEN BY REPUBLICANS EXPRESSED

Speech of Henry Cabot Lodge at Marion, O., July 22, Notifying Warren G. Harding of His Nomination for President.

SENATOR LODGE, in notifying Senator Harding of his nomination, said: Senator Harding, we are assembled here as a committee representing the states, territories and possessions of the United States to make to you formal announcement of your nomination for the office of president of the republic on June 12, last, at Chicago, by the republican national convention. This duty is to us as pleasing as it is honorable, but we are also deeply conscious of its far-reaching importance.

We fully appreciate that what you say to us today will not only be read and pondered by all the American people within the confines of the United States, but also by all other civilized nations. Here today you will chart the course to be followed by the republican party in the great electoral contest which lies before us and will declare your purposes and those of the party you lead when the authority of government is once more committed to our keeping.

We await this declaration untroubled by any doubts and with the most entire confidence. All who are familiar with your character and career and most especially those who have taken part with you in public service known beyond a peradventure that you are a patriotic American, imbued with the spirit of the great leaders of the past, of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt, whose services to the American people have become forever memorable in our history.

Country's Interests First. You will always, and instinctively, in meeting the difficult questions and weighty responsibilities which confront you, think with complete unselfishness of your country and your country's interests first, a high qualification for an exalted office not too familiar to us of late and therefore peculiarly necessary at this moment.

You will, we are certain, be ever faithful to the finest traditions of the republican party and, at the same time, we are equally sure that you are widely tolerant and open-minded. In sympathy with the best movements of the time, looking forward to the future and its needs but never unmindful of the great basic principles upon which the builders of the republic laid the foundation of our government.

Your public life has shown to us and all your fellow citizens that you believe in the system of government designed by the framers of the constitution.

Unwavering Conviction Shown. They established a representative democracy and had no sympathy with any schemes which would transform the government of the United States into an autocracy based upon a plebiscite and with all the intervening representative features of a democracy faced. You have abundantly shown your unwavering conviction that the government of the United States should be one of laws and not of men and that the three branches of that government should work together in the exercise of the powers conferred upon them severally by the constitution, for the common purpose of advancing the general welfare of the people.

The makers of the constitution intended to co-ordinate the three great elements of government and strove to guard against either usurpation or trespass by one branch at the expense of the other two. In that spirit, we all know well, you will enter upon your great responsibility.

Confidence in Expression. Domestic and economic questions of extreme complexity and difficulty must be dealt with at once in such a way as to meet the needs of the time. We shall not attempt to discuss these questions in any detail because we know that you will declare your policies in regard to them in accordance not only with the life-long principles of the republican party but also with the opinions recently declared by the republican convention at Chicago.

It is not for us to enumerate them to you for it is to you that we look to set forth the proper policies to be pursued by the republican party both in the campaign and when charged with the responsibility of administration and legislation.

Responsibility Grave One. Our immediate duty and that of all republicans and all true Americans who are thinking of the problems and perils of the present and of the future is to give you such generous and complete support that when you take up the duties of a great office for which you have been nominated, you will find a house and senate in full sympathy with your purposes and ready to aid you in every way in carrying them to fulfillment.

The present situation, however, brings with it far-reaching questions of foreign policy to a degree never known in our previous history. At our own doors we have Mexico in a state of disorder and disintegration to which our government, happily, most liberally contributed. Here is a grave responsibility not to be evaded or escaped. We rightly insist upon the supremacy in the American hemisphere of the Monroe doctrine, which was declared by us in order to guard the safety of the United States and save the new world so far as possible from the wars and misfortunes of the old. We justly demand the abstention of Europe from any interference with American questions, but this doctrine of ours brings with it not only its benefits but its duties.

The condition of Mexico, owing in large measure to the shortcomings of our government, could not well be worse, and we must make up our minds that we not only owe it to ourselves to protect there as all over the world, American rights and interests so long neglected, but to reach out a helping hand to the Mexican people to the end that law and order may be established in that country which has been plunged into anarchy and cursed with continuous civil war. It is of the highest importance to the United States that Mexico should be both prosperous and peaceful and we must face the fact that without our aid the Mexican people cannot properly or speedily bring about the improved conditions and the reign of law and peace, which, we are convinced, they desire as much as we do.

Wilson's Acts Answered. In defense of freedom and civilization and to vindicate our own avowed rights we entered upon the war with Germany and although we were tardy in taking part in that great conflict we came upon the field of action in time to turn the scale for right and liberty. Not content with aiding Europe to bring to pass the peace which all desired after victory was won, Mr. Wilson undertook to make us members an allies with foreign powers indefinite in extent and containing provisions which threatened the independence, the sovereignty and the safety of the United States.

This effort on the part of the president was arrested by the action of the republicans of the senate who proposed protecting reservations which he defeated together with the treaty itself. In that work, you, sir, took a conspicuous part and we know that you were in full accord with the belief of your republican colleagues that the league of nations as proposed by Mr. Wilson and upon which he and his party still insist ought never to be accepted by the American people. We have been and are quite ready to join in agreement with other nations, for the extension of the Hague conventions; for the up-building and codification of international law and the establishment of a world court of justice; for international conferences in regard to non-justiciable questions, and for arrangements to bring about a general reduction of armaments.

Constructive Measures Recalled. All these constructive measures are in accord with the traditional policy of the republican party which has done so much in the past to forward the cause of international arbitration. But when we are called upon to become an integral part of a permanent alliance of foreign powers, to put ourselves in a position where the youth of the country can be summoned by foreign nations to fight and die in quarrels not their own, to entangle ourselves in all the conflicts and disputes of Europe where we have no interest, to permit foreign interference with our domestic questions and with the Monroe doctrine, and to sit in an assembly where our vote is not the equal of that of every other country, we absolutely decline the proposition.

We stand for the policies of Washington and the doctrine of Monroe, and against the internationalism and the permanent alliance with foreign nations proposed by the president. If in 1917 we shall not fail in our duty, but we can help other nations far better if we are free and untrammelled and do not permit our strength and our resources to be wasted and our beloved country out of our young men to be sacrificed in endless hostilities with which we have no concern.

Grave Issues Involved. Such has been the policy of the republican party as represented in the senate and such its policy will remain. We are certain that you who helped so largely to frame this policy will, when the executive authority comes into your hands, carry it out in such manner that we can fulfill all our responsibilities to the world without binding ourselves by any obligations to a league which as submitted by the president is but another name for the evil combination which was attempted a hundred years ago by the ill-omened Holy Alliance.

No national campaign for the presidency has ever involved graver issues than this one, which now lies before us. Upon you, sir, will rest the great and heavy burden of executive authority. We look to you in full confidence to lead us and the people of our beloved country out from the darkness and confusion which the war has brought upon mankind into the light which shines upon a nation where peace reigns and the love of justice, of law and of order rules in the hearts of the people. Then we can again take up the work of advancing the United States along the broad road that leads to success, the road which we have followed for more than a century. Then indeed we shall not only rise to still loftier heights of achievement for ourselves but be enabled to render the largest and finest service to humanity.
