

SYSTEM OF PAROLES IN OREGON SCORED

Judge Says Leniency Plan Is Becoming a Farce.

2 OFFENDERS SENTENCED

Court Refuses to Extend Clemency to Automobile and Diamond Thieves—Youth Faints.

The parole system in Oregon was scored as an utter failure by Circuit Judge Stapleton, who refused to extend clemency to two first offenders before him yesterday, one guilty of the theft of an automobile, the other of larceny of a diamond ring. He sentenced both to two years in the state penitentiary.

"My experience on the bench in Multnomah county is that the parole system does not work, and that at least 75 per cent of the men paroled appear in court again on second offense. The granting of promiscuous paroles is getting rapidly to be a farce. Someone has got to take a stand against it, and it might as well be I."

23-Year-Old Youth Faints.
With these preliminary remarks, the judge told S. S. Corbin, 23-year-old youth who pleaded guilty to theft of an automobile last May, that his sentence was two years.

Without a word, the lad keeled over in a dead faint and it was several minutes before he could be brought to his senses.

"Does that mean the penitentiary?" he asked. George Graham, deputy district attorney, told him that it did, and the young man asked if he might speak to the judge.

"It wouldn't do any good," Judge Stapleton assured him.

His aged mother also sought to plead for leniency before he did not change the decision of the court.

Corbin had a poor alibi. He said the automobile, a 1918 Gladstone, found ten days after it was stolen, by Patrolmen Davis, Beck and Drennan, on Fisher road between Craig and Baker roads in a shack, was taken by a man named Wemberg, and that he did not learn it was stolen until after Wemberg had shown it to him and asked him to drive it. The car had been damaged to the extent of $150 and bore license plates taken out by Corbin.

Diamond Theft Confessed.
In attempting to shift the blame to Wemberg, Corbin overruled the fact that the grand jury had investigated Corbin's connection with the affair and had declined to indict Wemberg. The car was stolen May 19 and recovered May 28. Corbin had served in the Canadian army during the world war.

H. M. Parks, who was extradited from San Francisco recently, pleaded guilty to stealing a diamond ring valued at $100 from the jewelry store of A. & C. Feldeneimer. He is of Hawaiian-Korean blood and showed a previous good record for trustworthiness, but drew a sentence of two years in the penitentiary.

William Hurlburt, 19, pleaded guilty to the theft of an automobile from a garage on East Fort-street at 11:30, but threw most of the blame on his alleged companions, a man of 35 and a youth of 25. Hurlburt showed an excellent army record of five years standing. As his companions also have been indicted but have pleaded not guilty to the charges, Hurlburt received a continuance of sentence until September 7, by which time the cases of the others can be heard.
