FUGITIVE BANDITS ELUDE POSSEMMEN
Slayer and Comrade Are Seen by Train Crew.

HART INJURED, WAKING UP.
Indian Chief and Tracker Leading Man-Hunters.

FRESH HOUNDS ON TRAIL.
Coyote Fox on Outlaws Notch-Beam; Party Closing in on Refuge Believed in Canyon.

CONFLICTING, July 15—The Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, got the scent of the band in the vicinity of a certain ridge last night, and now both are bent on laying a ambush to cut off the band's retreat. The Indian Chief's party was overtaken by the rear guard of the band last night, and the Indian tried to sneak up the rear of the band, but the band saw him and gave chase. The Indian was seen to run to the rear of the band, and then disappear. When the band was forced to halt and make the break for it, the Indian Chief set fire to the trail and tried to chase the band, but was forced to give up the pursuit. The band was seen to be making for the rocks on the other side of the ridge, and the Indian Chief is now following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

DUPLIN, July 15—A telegram received at the Duplin courthouse from the Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, states that the band has been sighted near the trail. The Indian Chief and his tracker are following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Thursday, July 19, 1900

CITY & BUSINESS.
FUGITIVE BANDITS ELUDE POSSEMMEN
Slayer and Comrade Are Seen by Train Crew.

HART INJURED, WAKING UP.
Indian Chief and Tracker Leading Man-Hunters.

FRESH HOUNDS ON TRAIL.
Coyote Fox on Outlaws Notch-Beam; Party Closing in on Refuge Believed in Canyon.

CONFLICTING, July 15—The Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, got the scent of the band in the vicinity of a certain ridge last night, and now both are bent on laying a ambush to cut off the band's retreat. The Indian Chief's party was overtaken by the rear guard of the band last night, and the Indian tried to sneak up the rear of the band, but the band saw him and gave chase. The Indian was seen to run to the rear of the band, and then disappear. When the band was forced to halt and make the break for it, the Indian Chief set fire to the trail and tried to chase the band, but was forced to give up the pursuit. The band was seen to be making for the rocks on the other side of the ridge, and the Indian Chief is now following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

DUPLIN, July 15—A telegram received at the Duplin courthouse from the Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, states that the band has been sighted near the trail. The Indian Chief and his tracker are following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Thursday, July 19, 1900

CITY & BUSINESS.
FUGITIVE BANDITS ELUDE POSSEMMEN
Slayer and Comrade Are Seen by Train Crew.

HART INJURED, WAKING UP.
Indian Chief and Tracker Leading Man-Hunters.

FRESH HOUNDS ON TRAIL.
Coyote Fox on Outlaws Notch-Beam; Party Closing in on Refuge Believed in Canyon.

CONFLICTING, July 15—The Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, got the scent of the band in the vicinity of a certain ridge last night, and now both are bent on laying a ambush to cut off the band's retreat. The Indian Chief's party was overtaken by the rear guard of the band last night, and the Indian tried to sneak up the rear of the band, but the band saw him and gave chase. The Indian was seen to run to the rear of the band, and then disappear. When the band was forced to halt and make the break for it, the Indian Chief set fire to the trail and tried to chase the band, but was forced to give up the pursuit. The band was seen to be making for the rocks on the other side of the ridge, and the Indian Chief is now following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

DUPLIN, July 15—A telegram received at the Duplin courthouse from the Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, states that the band has been sighted near the trail. The Indian Chief and his tracker are following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Thursday, July 19, 1900

CITY & BUSINESS.
FUGITIVE BANDITS ELUDE POSSEMMEN
Slayer and Comrade Are Seen by Train Crew.

HART INJURED, WAKING UP.
Indian Chief and Tracker Leading Man-Hunters.

FRESH HOUNDS ON TRAIL.
Coyote Fox on Outlaws Notch-Beam; Party Closing in on Refuge Believed in Canyon.

CONFLICTING, July 15—The Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, got the scent of the band in the vicinity of a certain ridge last night, and now both are bent on laying a ambush to cut off the band's retreat. The Indian Chief's party was overtaken by the rear guard of the band last night, and the Indian tried to sneak up the rear of the band, but the band saw him and gave chase. The Indian was seen to run to the rear of the band, and then disappear. When the band was forced to halt and make the break for it, the Indian Chief set fire to the trail and tried to chase the band, but was forced to give up the pursuit. The band was seen to be making for the rocks on the other side of the ridge, and the Indian Chief is now following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

DUPLIN, July 15—A telegram received at the Duplin courthouse from the Indian Chief and his tracker, who have been leading a pursuit of a band of outlaws through the mountains of the Northwest for the past two weeks, states that the band has been sighted near the trail. The Indian Chief and his tracker are following the band's trail through the mountains, trying to catch up with them. The band is believed to be made up of five or six men, and is reported to be armed with rifles and shotguns.