The highway commission then of fleially adopted a route for the Pacific highway, running from McMinnville to Bellevue, in Yamhill county, and thence through Dallas, Monmouth and Independence, and on November 27, 1917, a map showing this location was given out and published. Then in 1213, after changes in the personnel of the commission, this route was abandoned, the commission, announcing that the road would be constructed from McMinnville by way of Amity, Holmes Gap, Rickreall and Monmouth to Corvallis, with a "stub" or "spur" to Independence.

Dallas would not be reached by the Pacific highway, but a post road, with the assistance of the federal government and the county of Polk, was to be constructed from Salem to Dal-las.

Surveys were then made and contracts let for the proposed Salem-Dallas post road and for disconnected ballas post road and for disconnected stretches of the proposed Pacific highway. The court of Pelk county has expended and is willing to expend money on the post road, but has refused to prepare the so-called Pacific highway for paving, on the ground that under the law Dallas and Independence, as well as Monmouth, should be on the highway.

The commission then, in May 1820

This precipitated the fight.

Judge McCourt's Decision. The decision of Judge McCourt, dated July 19, 1920, involving the suficiency of the complaint, is inclosed for your information. You will note that the juge says:

The commission cannot designate that link of the Pacific highway described in subdivision 2 of section 6 of chapter 423, Laws of 1917, so as to leave Dalias or Independence a substantial distance from the road. Six or even three miles would be a decilation beyond the authority of the cummission. Dalias and Independence are points upon the road requiring observance in serious injuries to John C. Slavin, veteran musical comments of purpose of the complex of the control of the property of the commission. The condition of Mr. Slavin, found, yesterday unconscious from a fractured skull and concussion of the brain, near the residence of John J. McGraw, manal and constructing the road equivalent to that of a definitely described terminus—the road must be laid out and constructed to them.

The commission is given broad division of Mr. Slavin, found, yesterday unconscious from a fractured skull and concussion of the brain, near the residence of John J. McGraw, manal and constructed to them.

"The commission is given broad discretion in selecting the route of the highway between the several points named in the act, but the route or routes selected must lead from one to another of such points. The language of the statute is "McMinn-ville to Dallas." The requirement of a road to Dallas. The requirement of a road to Dallas would not be met by a road to Dallas would not be met by a road to be nearest point of which was six miles from Dallas. Neither would the requirement be met by a spur or branch extending from the highway to Dallas. One traveling the road authorized by the legislature would pass through Dallas—would go to Dallas—while he would not get mearer to Dallas than six miles traveling the road it is alleged the commission to building as the Facific highway.
