Marriage With Daughter of Commoner Annuled, Heir to Throne Tours World Trying to Forget.

Portland was visited by a real prince yesterday when Prince Carol, heir to the throne of Roumania, stopped in the city on his world-wide tour made in the effort to forget his sad marriage to Mile. Jeanne Lambrino, Roumanian girl, which was annulled by his parents because the bride was not of royal blood.

No, he didn't wear hose instead of trousers and the story books lied when they said that a real prince always goes around with a crown on head and a scepter in his hip

This prince wore a Palm Beach suit, smoked cigarettes and talked about ordinary things like agriculture and mowing machines and commerce.

Prince Won't Posc.

"No, I won't pose," declared the prince in perfect English, giving a gesture with both hands decidedly not English, as he stepped from his special car at the Union station to face a battery of cameras. "You can get me as I walk along," he told the photographers.

The prince declared that his visit to this country was entirely unofficial, but admitted that he was interested in building up the commercial relations between his country and other countries of the world as a phase of the rebuilding of his country following the war. He also declared himself to be intensely interested in agriculture, as his nation was pre-eminently a nation of farmers, and announced his intention of stopping off at the University of Wisconsin at Madison for the purpose of studying implements in use here in agricultural work.

He Owns 700 Acres. 'I am a farmer myself," he said, referring to his 700-acre farm in Rou-mania which he is now developing and which forms his principal income. He declined to discuss the present situation in Europe or to speak about the present successes of the bolshevik

"I know nothing about that," he declared, "as I have been away from home for the last six months." He also denied that the present hasty voyage which he is making for home was in any way connected or influ-enced by the advance of the bolshe-

"The man who accomplishes the most with the gifts with which God has endowed him will have at least three qualifications. Let us define these as 'The Three Vs.'

First Is Vision. "First he will have a vision. The man who does things must first of all have a clear conception of the mission to which God has called him. man who does things must first of all have a clear conception of the mission to which God has called him. God Almighty has sent every one of us into the world for a purpose. When a man once knows what God's will for him is, then he may be sure if he will do it ne is bound to succeed. "A young man or a young woman who is going to accomplish something worth while needs to get a vision of the work to be done. I am not talking about visionary people who aspire and aspire and never perspire in order to make something transpire.

"We have plenty of people who simply aspire but never do anything until they expire. Emerson said, 'Hitch your charlot to a star.' Too many young people hitch their charlot to a garbage wagon.

Modern education is held to be a menace to the world by Rev. John G. Inkster, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Victoria, B. C., who specks on that topic at the First Presbyterian church of the times, he also declared to be a menace, because it should be free and honest and in his opinion it was neither, in many cases.

Quotations from Senator Harding's spech to the editors were read and praised, great hope for the future of the nation being found in such declarations by a presidential candidate as "There is sure progress for a simple living, reverent people, fearing God and loving righteousness. Fruit, Says Rev. Mr. Bennett.

"Figs and Thistles" was the topic of Rev. George H. Bennett's sermon at the Patton Methodist church yesterday. He said: "With pointed irony Jesus inquired, Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" He would teach consistency. The thistle is a symbol of evil. It is widely distributed, and of 500 species. It is an aggressive, bristling weed, harsh and repelling—like some people. But the thistle-down is one of the most ingenious and beautiful works of nature, employed in seed distribution. Thus, in both nature and morals, beauty and genius are often prostituted to perpetuating paroften prostituted to perpetuating par-asites and evils. He took for his text Acts 16:5-10, which reads: "When he had seen the vision, straightway he sought to go forth into Macedonia, concluding that God had called him to preach the gospel to them." Among other things, he said:

"The man who accomplishes the self-could not graft a Tig on a thistic. Christ teaches a similar difference exists between good and evil, and we are to do no evil, thinking good will come of it. Yet some lawless persons expect the thorny bush of selfishness to drop sweet fruits of charity. There is no hypocrisy among figs and thistics—but there often is among men.
