FISH RUN IS HELD GOOD

ROGUE RIVER CATCHES EXCELLENT SAYS SHOEMAKER.

More Salmon Reported Caught Than Canneries Able to Handle.

Grade of High Quality.

Fish are running in the Rogue river and other coast streams better than in any other previous season, according to Carl D. Shoemaker, executive secretary of the state fish commission.

"Warden McDaniel wrote me recently, 'Salmon are running better now than at any time this season. Something around 5000 were caught last night.' This means about 60 tons of fish brought in by the gillnetters in single night," said Mr. Shoemaker.

Mr. Shoemaker said that the following day he received another letter from Mr. McDaniel stating that there were "more fish than the canneries can handle." Frederick Mackey, cannery manager, telephoned the fish were splendid chinook of fine color and flavory with high content.

"F. P. Kendall, manager of the 'American Can company,' Mr. Shoemaker continued, 'told me that reports he had received from the Rogue river district verify Mr. Mackey's statements and the factory is rushing time to the cannery by express. A heavy run also is being experienced on the Umpqua, Siuslaw, Alsea and Tillamook rivers. The fish are of the spring variety, which is the most sought after in the markets of the world.'

"This condition prevailing in the coast streams is due to hatchery methods applied by the Oregon fish commission, whereby large numbers of spring eggs are taken and, when hatched, held in feeding ponds for six to nine months before liberation. 'Fishing conditions are better on the coast streams than in many years past'.

EARWIG REMEDIES LISTED

Agricultural Department Methods Given in Letter.

Information on how to fight the earwig which has been imported into this country and has become a serious pest on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. The department has a bulletin, No. 666, on this insect and its control. The following is a brief summary of the control methods recommended. A contact spray will probably give the best results at this time of the year. The formula of an effective spray is: 20 ounces water, 20 ounces water 98 ounces, nicotine sulphate (40 per cent) 20 teaspoonfuls. Dissolve the nicotine sulphate in the water first. Then add the rest of the water and nicotine sulphate. This makes one gallon of stock solution at an approximate cost of 50 cents per gallon.

This spray, being a contact spray, must actually hit the insects and hit them well. It is not assured. For this reason thorough spraying must be done at night, the insects being hit with a fine mist as they crawl over the trees, plants and grass. To supplement this night spraying, it is well to treat with a fine mist of the same material any crevices where the insects are plentiful through the day. The spraying of heavily-infested areas should be repeated at intervals of three nights until results are satisfactory. Trapping is the chief method of control recommended by European authorities. The best trap appears to be a three-inch inverted over a nine-inch stick set in the ground close to plants and other vegetation. The earwigs hide in the excrement and can be pulled into the trap by a piece of water which has a thin film of kerosene on its surface.

Some success in controlling earwigs has been reported by European authorities in the spring. However, we do not recommend it at this time of the year.

GREEK IS ELIMINATED

Requirement Dropped in Selection of Rhodes Scholar.

The Rhodes scholar to be chosen from among the college men of Oregon on September 25 will not be required to know Greek either before or after he goes to Oxford, in October of next year, it was announced today by C. H. Gray, secretary of the committee of selection. The authorities of the English university last spring abolished the old requirement that every candidate for a degree at the university must at some time or other show a knowledge of the Greek language.

This makes many more men in the United States eligible for the scholarship and makes the scholarship greatly more attractive to the American college man.

DAM MAKES WATER SURE

SHORTAGE QUESTION FOR CITY SOLVED FOR MANY YEARS.

Three-Foot Rise at Headworks Within 24 Hours Registered. 50,000,000 Gallons Used.

Twenty-four hour tests of the effects of the new dam at Bull Run lake proved conclusively yesterday that the water shortage question is solved for many years. The city now has two or three times as much water as it has had in any season of the year. The water supply will be adequate until the city outgrows the capacity of the pipe lines.

Unofficial figures show that the opening of the new dam at the lake caused a rise of three feet in the water at the headworks within 24 hours. Prior to this every drop of water in the city was going into the pipe lines to fill the reservoirs. The reservoirs were just about holding their own against the heavy drain in the city. With the rise in the river it was possible within a few hours to fill the reservoirs and it became necessary to express my opinion as to the benefits of prohibition. I held that poverty was a frequent cause of physical and mental decay, and that poverty often resulted from intemperance.

with the compliment and the confidence manifested.

"My stance on the question of prohibition should be fairly well known. I believe it to be the greatest national health measure ever adopted. My belief happens to be expressed in a book published about a year and a half ago entitled 'Democracy in Reconstruction.' I was asked to prepare a chapter on 'Democracy and Public Health,' and in that I took occasion to express my opinion as to the benefits of prohibition. I held that poverty was a frequent cause of physical and mental decay, and that poverty often resulted from intemperance.

"I intend to accept the prohibition nomination, nevertheless, at this time, even though official acceptance may be banned by law," she continued. "It was through the columns of the Sunday Oregonian, which I was reading on my way to Portland last Sunday, that I first learned of the action of the prohibition party. I was pleased

"I am delighted that the prohibitionists should have desired to nominate me for representative, even should it prove illegal for me to accept both democratic and prohibition nominations," said Dr. Esther Pohl Lovelace yesterday in commenting on the report that Attorney-general Brown believed there was a legal obstacle to a person accepting the nominations of two parties.
