COX'S'SENATURIAL RING' TALK RISKY

OBLIGATION IS INEVITABLE

Harding Indebted to Senators, Cox to "Wets."

TRIBUTE PAID TO SMOOT

No Menace in Utah Senator's Support of Republican Nominee, Says Mark Sullivan.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19 .-(Special.) - Governor Cox has begun to sults. talk about Senator Harding's personal relation to a big political "ring" and to a "senatorial oligarchy," and today, in his address to members of the Ohio legislature, Senator Harding began to talk back in the same strain. This is not the most dignified kind of argument for Cox to start. And it doesn't exalt the campaign for Harding to reply with "you're another." But since the candidates themselves have begun it, it is permissible for an outsider to make an examination of both the glass houses from the and especially from the point of view of the independent voter.

Both Under Obligations

To your correspondent there has always seemed to be an odd coincidence between Senator Harding's relahim at Chicago and Governor Cox's relations to the politicians who put him across at San Francisco

In the first place, each of the candidates is under extraordinary obligations to a single politician. Gover- high, nor Cox is indebted for his nomination to Ed Moore more than to any
