

CHARLES BONZI CASE SET FOR SEPTEMBER

Examination Is Waived on Mail Fraud Charge.

NO BAIL ATTEMPT MADE

John S. Dondoro, Described as Partner of Financier, Denies Guilt of $600 Larceny.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Charles Bonzi, discredited prophet of high finance, again was the subject of the attention of crowds today. He was taken before a federal commissioner for a hearing on charges that he used the examination and was taken back to jail in default of $25,000 bonds.

In the throng which filled the courtroom was John S. Dondoro, described as a partner of Bonzi in his Securities Exchange company in papers filed at city hall and named with him in a suit for larceny of $600 in bankruptcy proceedings brought by creditors several days ago.

Dondoro was charged with larceny of $600 in connection with the Bonzi scheme. He pleaded not guilty and was ordered held for a hearing September 19. Bonds were set at $50,000.

No Bail Attempt Is Made. There was no outward indication today of any attempt by Bonzi or his counsel to obtain his freedom on bail.

Bonzi said tonight that he was content to remain in jail after being arraigned.

Crowds in the courtroom gathered around him in an effort to grasp his hand and he smiled broadly in appreciation.

Bonzi told deputy United States marshal his downfall was due to withdrawal of support by a man prominent in the Boston stock circles. If given his liberty under guard for 60 days, Bonzi asserted, he could make good, dollar for dollar, on every promise and prove his solvency.

"There is likely to be a big blow-up within a few days," he quoted as saying. "If I tell what I know about a certain man prominent in Boston who has been a partner in the public benefactor, there will be a great change in sentiment."

Ponzi remarked as an instance of continued publicity that he had received a check for $5500 for investment before he left the jail today, which he turned over to the sheriff.

Attorney-General Allen announced that $15,000 of the funds of the old Colony Foreign Exchange company had been located in New York and that this brought the total of the company's funds accounted for to $150,000.

Liabilities Total $4,508,874. Ponzi's liabilities as uncovered by the state attorney-general totaled tonight $4,508,874, representing the claims of 10,200 investors plus the 60 per cent interest promised.

A run on the First State bank, a private institution doing business principally with members of the Italian colony in New York, and investors were said to be alarmed by indefinite reports that President Thomas Nuttle had refused to close the company which was involved in the Ponzi collapse. President Nuttle said he could produce three times as much money as was necessary to pay off the $1,000,000 of deposits.

U. S. MAINTAINS ITS LEAD

(Continued From First Page.)

A romance which started in New Zealand last year reached one of its exciting moments yesterday afternoon when Miss Daisy June Fowlds of Auckland, New Zealand, arrived in Portland, and was met by J. H. Hoppes of Salem, whom she will marry Tuesday.

Miss Fowlds was accompanied by her father, Honorable George Fowlds, former minister of education and a member of parliament in New Zealand. Her sister, Miss Agnes Fowlds, was also in the party which arrived in Vancouver, B. C., on the Tahiti Wednesday morning.

Miss Fowlds has lived in New Zealand since she was 12 years of age.

Only one American, Fred W. Fuller of the Dorchester club, qualified in the two forenoon semi-final heats of the 10,000-meter run. Another American, A. Patterson, Haskell of Kansas, a Zuni Indian, dropped out in the 20th lap of the first heat.

J. Wilson of England and Guillemot of France were among the stars in order of respective heats with the Frenchman winning his heat close to a minute faster than Wilson's time. The races were run in an occasional drizzle.

American Sets Pace at Start. In the second heat Fuller set the pace for three laps with Guillemot at his heels. From there on the pair, with Hoppes and Guillemot and Anderson of Denmark, alternated in setting the pace. Near the finish Guillemot sprang strongly into a 49-yard lead.

Nurmi, Finland, was second in the first heat; Maccario, Italy, third; Mabbis, France, fourth, and Gaston, Switzerland, fifth, all qualifying. Wilson's time was 33 minutes 49.1 seconds. Guillemot ran the second heat in 32 minutes 41.3 seconds. Maccario, Sweden, finished third; Anderson, Denmark, fourth; Fred W. Fuller, fourth and Garin, Switzerland, fifth.

The third heat was won by Lumatainen, Finland. C. T. Clifton, England, was second; Heuet, France, third; Sperling, fourth; and J. Hatton, England, fifth. The winner's time was 22 minutes 2.5 seconds.

John Ahern, Ireland, was struck with cramps and forced to quit. D. F. Ahern, the American holder of the world's record for the hop, step and jump, was only able to finish sixth in that event today, just getting inside the qualifying line with his 13.75 meters. Sherman Landers, Chicago A. A., with 14 meters, finished fourth. The Finn Finns ran three Swedes made up the rest of the field for the final.

The results of the qualifying heat for the final was: Finns, Finland, first, with 14.50 meters; Almof, Sweden, second; Jansson, Sweden, third; Landers, Chicago A. A., fourth; Saklin, Sweden, fifth; Ahern, Illinois A. C., sixth.

American elimination in the Greco-Roman wrestling was completed this afternoon when Lindford, Finland, pinned the Finn Finns in the third round. The Finn Finns are three Swedes made up the rest of the field for the final.

The results of the qualifying heat for the final was: Finns, Finland, first, with 14.50 meters; Almof, Sweden, second; Jansson, Sweden, third; Landers, Chicago A. A., fourth; Saklin, Sweden, fifth; Ahern, Illinois A. C., sixth.

The American elimination in the Greco-Roman wrestling was completed this afternoon when Lindford, Finland, pinned the Finn Finns in the third round. The Finn Finns are three Swedes made up the rest of the field for the final.

The results of the qualifying heat for the final was: Finns, Finland, first, with 14.50 meters; Almof, Sweden, second; Jansson, Sweden, third; Landers, Chicago A. A., fourth; Saklin, Sweden, fifth; Ahern, Illinois A. C., sixth.

The American elimination in the Greco-Roman wrestling was completed this afternoon when Lindford, Finland, pinned the Finn Finns in the third round. The Finn Finns are three Swedes made up the rest of the field for the final.

The results of the qualifying heat for the final was: Finns, Finland, first, with 14.50 meters; Almof, Sweden, second; Jansson, Sweden, third; Landers, Chicago A. A., fourth; Saklin, Sweden, fifth; Ahern, Illinois A. C., sixth.

The American elimination in the Greco-Roman wrestling was completed this afternoon when Lindford, Finland, pinned the Finn Finns in the third round. The Finn Finns are three Swedes made up the rest of the field for the final.

COUNTY ROADS MAY SOON BE STREETS

Improvements Within Limits Held Imperative.

PROTESTS ARE EXPECTED

Property Owners May Object to Assessments for Sidewalks When City Assumes Charge.

Eighteen miles of county roads, lying within city limits, being portions of 14 different highways may become city streets if the proposal made at the last meeting of the county commissioners is followed out. If the county wishes to rid itself of the care of these roads, it will not expect to judge any objection, though protests may be made by property owners along the highways who will themselves directly assessed for new paving and sidewalks.

The proposal is being imperative that the city take over those parts of county roads within the city limits which are not assessed for sidewalks. Vigorous protests recently were made to city officials because sidewalks are not provided for children going to and from the Linton school along St. Helens road, and to the Creston school along the Powell valley road, where they are compelled to walk on the hard-surfaced pavement in constant danger from the heavy automobile traffic. The county has refused to build the sidewalks and has not desired to take over the county roads because city streets.

City's Attitude Changes. In the past the attitude of the city has been that the main arteries of the city should be kept up by the county, even into the limits of the city, but that is believed to be changing.

A. G. Johnson, assistant to Commissioner, said yesterday that the time for quibbling was past and that in many instances the city would have to take over the roads and put in greatly needed sidewalks.

"Property owners may be up in arms in some instances, but the refusal of the county to build sidewalks puts the matter squarely up to the city, which must do that by taking over the roads and assessing the improvement costs to abutting property owners," he said.

Fourteen principal roads which would be affected should the city take over county roads within its limits and the distances, are given by Mr. Johnson as follows: Powell Valley road, 2 1/2 miles; Foster, 2 miles; Division, 1 mile; Base line, 1 mile; Fremont, 1 mile; Greeley street extension to St. Johns River road, 1 mile; Taylor, 1 mile; Taylor, 1 mile; Barnes, 1 mile; Canyon, 1 mile; Patton, 1 mile; Marquand, 1 mile; Patton, 1 mile; Taylor, 1 mile.

Commissioner Muck opposed the construction of a retaining wall along Montgomery drive by the county on the ground that other county roads needing such walls had been denied them by the commissioners.

U. S. Nationality Saved. "I do not hesitate to say that the senate saved American nationality in 1919 and 1920, when the executive proposed to surrender it. The senate preserved our independence of action when the executive insisted that a foreign council should decide our future place in the activities of the world.

"The practices of the senate are not so ancient or so firmly fixed that they do not yield to reform, and the senate is not insensible to intelligent public opinion. It has been suggested that in case of a republican victory the incoming president should propose to the senate to have some say in determining the policy of government. I gladly accept these suggestions literally and in full. I believe that the senate is functioning again. We need it to save America. It submerged itself for the real interests of the war and surrendered to the executive because we wanted to marshal all of our forces and resources under one authority, and we need restoration of constitutional government as much as we need restoration of the stable ways of peace.

Senate Will Have Voice. "If a republican administration is chosen you can be certain that the senate, theoretically, if not actually, will have something to say about the foreign relations as the constitutions contemplates.

"There has been no failure on the part of the house, because that body joins the senate in the abiding policy of committing this republic to fidelity of contract. If we failed to keep the word of our contract, we should be held in contempt.

"This thought may well be applied to the proposal that this republic can subscribe to Article 10 and enter the league of nations and submit to the rule of a council of foreign powers, on the theory that only congress can make the declaration of war. It is true that only congress can make an appropriation of money to carry out a covenant with a foreign power, but if this nation agrees to accept the rule of a foreign council, then we should be guilty of bad faith.

Perfidy Held Intolerable. "I would think it much better to hold aloof from international relations than stamp that relationship with perfidy from the beginning.

"I want Americans to understand that a republican administration stands unalterably, avowedly and proudly for a constitutional government, with the recognized and sustained powers of the legislative and judicial branches of the government, as well as that of the executive.

"I want members of the house to feel themselves a part of a republican administration, seeking to preserve the interests of the senate to understand and the public, that the executive has its functions to perform in the fulfillment of promises to the people. I had never have a higher sense of the senate than that of all the political bosses.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

"The tendency has been for the executive to arrogate to himself all powers of government. Maybe it is dishonouring to go back to our constitution, but I can well believe it will be a wholesome change.

WOODLARK FLY REPELLANT

WOODLARK FLY REPELLANT—Pis. 40¢, qts. 60¢, 1/2 gal. $1.00, gal. $1.75 Motor Ether, 1 lb. 85¢

AMERICAN STABILITY AIMS

"We had a period of popular resentment of the existence of our courts, and for a time there was the suggestion that we should submit their decisions to popular sanction. There isn't much choice between venous assault on the integrity of the courts and the momentary clamor about eliminating the senate from responsibility in government.

"I do not know whether the idea of submitting the decisions of our courts to popular sanction is a reflex of the mob mentality which has broken out in ordinary correspondence. I am sure that government will not be influenced by any element in American life made influential through its physical might, or strength of possessions, but that representative government shall remain the only form of government that we can have.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

WOODLARK FLY REPELLANT

WOODLARK FLY REPELLANT—Pis. 40¢, qts. 60¢, 1/2 gal. $1.00, gal. $1.75 Motor Ether, 1 lb. 85¢

AMERICAN STABILITY AIMS

"We had a period of popular resentment of the existence of our courts, and for a time there was the suggestion that we should submit their decisions to popular sanction. There isn't much choice between venous assault on the integrity of the courts and the momentary clamor about eliminating the senate from responsibility in government.

"I do not know whether the idea of submitting the decisions of our courts to popular sanction is a reflex of the mob mentality which has broken out in ordinary correspondence. I am sure that government will not be influenced by any element in American life made influential through its physical might, or strength of possessions, but that representative government shall remain the only form of government that we can have.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of a series of speeches by civil war veterans from Kenton, O., having induced him to make a brief talk when he visited the city last week. To them he reiterated his belief that it was for American rights that the war was fought, and that those who were elected there would be no surrender of American nationality.

"The speech was delivered from the front porch and was cheered by a delegation of members and former members of the Ohio legislature. It was the second of