

RESIGNATIONS OF 12 TEACHERS IN DOUBT

Resignations Submitted After 60-Day Limit.

BOARD WILL TAKE ACTION

Meeting Set for Thursday to Decide Whether Punishment Shall Be Meted Out.

Certificates of 12 teachers of Portland schools whose resignations were submitted to the school board at a special meeting Thursday afternoon may be revoked if the board decides that such action is a proper penalty for their not submitting resignations within 60 days before the opening of school, which is required by law. The number to be considered on Thursday may be more than 12, but up to yesterday evening letters from only 12 had been received, stating that these teachers would not teach in Portland schools this year.

If the school board refuses to accept these resignations, the matter will be referred to J. A. Churchill, state superintendent. Under the law, he must revoke the certificates if the school board asks that such action be taken. His authority extends, however, only to the teachers to whom have been granted state certificates. In the matter of teachers who hold city certificates, the action of the school board is final.

Warning Believed Insufficient.

C. A. Rice, acting city superintendent in Mr. Churchill's absence from the city, feels that the teachers should have received some warning that the law would be enforced this year. The question in former years was whether to accept the resignations, even when they came in later than 60 days before the time that the school board released teachers from their contracts by "mutual agreement." Mr. Rice explains that enough extra teachers are elected in the spring to take the places of those who resign and to resign. This year more have resigned than usual, he states, so that about 15 more teachers are needed at the present time.

If the school board on Thursday accepts the resignations of the teachers, then their contracts will be closed, since Mr. Churchill has ruled that he can do nothing if the resignations are accepted. The school board of the 33 teachers whose resignations have been submitted in less than the 60-day limit.

The 12 teachers who came up before the board for consideration on Thursday and their reasons for resigning are: Saloma S. Bennett, elementary, to take up other work; Dora Patland, Clinton Kelly, ill health of father; Essie Foster, elementary, to go to Portland; Ruth Ghimley, Portsmouth, to go to normal school; Frankie L. McGarry, Ladd, ill health; Mary Luders, elementary, to go to Portland; Ruth Ghimley, Portsmouth, to go to normal school; Frankie L. CONTRACTS ARE HELD VALID

33 Portland Teachers Not Subject to Legal Ban.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 24.—(Special.)—The action of the Portland school board in accepting the resignations of 33 teachers who had not given the notice of resignation 60 days prior to the time for which they had contracted to begin teaching precludes the state superintendent from raising the question that the instructors resigned in violation of their contracts, according to J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of schools, who returned here today from Portland, where he conducted an investigation of the school records.

"I have your letter announcing the resignations of teachers in the Portland schools," said a letter written by Mr. Churchill and addressed to R. H. Thomas, clerk of the Portland school board.

"I also have before me an excerpt from the minutes of August 5, 1920, which reads as follows:

"By unanimous consent the resignations were accepted, effective at once, although time of notice does not conform to the requirements of the law and the clerk and business manager was instructed to notify the superintendent of schools of the instruction of the violations of law."

"The express wording of the law governing the resignations of the teachers states that the school board may release the teachers by mutual agreement, and the minutes of your board shows that these teachers have been so released."

Duty of Congress to Deny Orientals Admission, Says Representative.

ABERDEEN, Wash., Aug. 24.—(Special.)—Congressman Albert Johnson, after thorough examination into oriental immigration problems, has reached the conclusion that it is the duty of congress to deny admission to the United States to all Japanese, he told a gathering of about a hundred people at an English picnic near Montevano Sunday.

He declared in a short address that the United States should facilitate entrance of aliens who desire to become citizens, but should make it extremely difficult for their aliens to enter the country.

"The Fighting Chance," an adaptation from Robert W. Chambers' novel of the same name, which will continue to show at the Columbia theater until this week Friday, has for its theme two times which have been used perhaps more than any others in the history of the present time. The story centers around the fight made by a certain man to control his share of the estate which he inherits from his father, and by a girl to sacrifice wealth and comfort for love.

In the majority of best sellers and screen stories the hero has but to meet the girl and he immediately promises to reform. The girl accepts his promise and the fadeout shows their lips locked, implying that they lived happily ever after, and the producer of the picture has been raising the question that the instructors resigned in violation of their contracts, according to J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of schools, who returned here today from Portland, where he conducted an investigation of the school records.

And the man she loves realizes the force of her argument. This is background for the colorful drama, "The Fighting Chance," which through elaborate production and well cast actors has lost none of its lavishness, picturesque or romance.

MILK LEAGUE FOE DERIVED IN COURT

Nestles Food Man Called "Imported Buster."

CHARGE WINS APPROVAL

Dairymen Roar Until Judge Threatens to Clear Courtroom to Restore Order.

When Dan J. Malarky, attorney, referred to Frank S. Glass of the Nestle Food Products company as the "imported farmer marketing association buster" in the course of the hearing on the injunction sought by the dairymen, a roar of approval rose from a courtroom packed with dairymen. Circuit Judge McCourt had to threaten to clear the courtroom before order was restored.

Mr. Malarky's accusation came after a strenuous objection had been made by Charles Bell, attorney for the Portland-Damascus Milk company, against introduction of any evidence regarding the Nestle Food products marketed by the producer as compared with that received by the distributor.

Figures Are Cited.

In a general statement of the case that Mr. Malarky was making, covering the organization of the league, in which he said the fundamental principle was to lease the land between the producer and the consumer, he cited figures which showed that the consumer is now paying for milk 6.5 cents a quart and the farmer and 8.3 cents to the distributor.

"That is just the issue we won't go into and that is the testimony we don't care to have enter in this case," objected Mr. Bell at this point.

"Oh, but that is the testimony we want in this case," retorted Mr. Malarky. "We want to show the people the reasons for the fight against the dairymen's league. We want to show them that the milk distributors are not philanthropists; that they are fighting the league, not in the interests of the consumer, but to serve their own private interests."

Objection Is Overruled.

Judge McCourt overruled the objection and said that he would use his own discretion as to what evidence was material to the case. The hearing, which will continue for several days yet, the league seeks to enjoin the distributors and the Nestle Food products company permanently from any efforts to persuade members of the league to violate the contract with the dairymen. The entire morning was occupied with the reading of the pleadings by A. F. Fiegel, attorney representing the dairymen, and a motion was made to have the case closed on that showing, without oral testimony. This was denied by Judge McCourt and in the afternoon Mr. Malarky outlined the history of co-operative marketing, its purposes, and the organization of the dairymen into a marketing association.

"The Nestle company in 1919 entered into a contract with the dairymen and Bandon, in Oregon," said Mr. Malarky. "By reason of their enormous wealth and pursuant to their policy of monopoly, they paid prices for milk than smaller private creameries were able to pay. The evidence shows that as soon as the plants of their competitors were compelled to close, they dropped the price 15 cents a hundred pounds per cwt. to the dairymen, later dropping it 25 cents more."

Public Policy Held Violated.

The attorney said that the distributors were to be direct to the league members instead of the league in the hope that they would be paid the full amount, not making any return to the league, but helping to break it in that manner.

"Your honor," said Mr. Malarky,

"This question of co-operation is a big one. It extends throughout the entire nation. The self-interested profiteers on the farmer work are the ones who are giving strength to the non-partisan league and radicalism."

Mr. Bell protested that the farmers' marketing agreement between the dairymen and the league was void as against public policy. He averred that the league was a monopoly of the milk production, irrespective of whether or not they had an organization.

Hector McPherson, chief of the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture at Oregon Agricultural college, testified on the stand that in his opinion, the binding nature of the contract between the dairymen and the league was the greatest thing that has ever been achieved in the history of co-operative marketing.

League Director Useful.

"Under earlier contracts, less binding," said Mr. McPherson, "thousands of co-operative marketing associations failed for the very reason that the contracts of the organization with its members lacked this irrevocable feature."

C. H. Johnson, a dairyman living near Gresham, asserted that he had received closer to cost of production since the organization of the league than he ever had previously. Under the old system, he stated, there was a steady rise in the price of milk as it depended on the ability of the farmer to sell or the inclination of the distributor to pay.

This was also a director but he wished controlled the league. He asserted that J. A. Churchill, president of the league, also was a director but had no more voice in the management of the league than any other member and that he received not one cent of salary as president.

HAPPY OVER HER SON'S RECOVERY

Young Miller Is Back at Studies As Good As New—Mother Praises Tanlac.

"I am most grateful for words for what Tanlac has done for my boy," said Mrs. C. M. Miller of 909 Sixth avenue, who writes:

"Soon after we arrived from E. Alaska last fall, he had a severe attack of the flu, became very weak and run-down that for months he was hardly able to do a thing. He lost his appetite and became like a wolf in 17 years. He seemed to have no strength, and after waking a shiver and shiver, he would tremble all over. He was very nervous, could not sleep well at night, and just seemed to be tired all the time."

"I saw so many accounts in the papers of people who had been greatly helped by Tanlac, I decided to let him try it, and I'm glad I did for I never would have believed any medicine could do a person so much good. My very sick boy had an appetite like a wolf and rapidly picked up in strength. He has already gained 15 pounds in weight and says he feels as well and strong as he ever did. He is no longer nervous and sleeps like a log the whole night through. Now, when he is back at school doing fine. Tanlac certainly is a wonderful medicine and I can strongly recommend it to anyone needing a medicine to build him up."

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing. It can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

WHY?
Study the photographs taken of normal and abnormal spines. Note the normal spine the contraction or settling of series of vertebrae.

LOOK AT THE RESULTS: the nerves which conduct vital energy to all organs of the body are impinged or pinched between the vertebrae at the place where they leave the spinal canal and cord. The organs supplied by the affected nerves can no longer function correctly, their supply of vital nerve energy is obstructed, they become INACTIVE, PARALYZED, DISEASED.
