

WIND CAUSES LOSS TO UNPICKED FRUIT

Pears at Hood River Are Reported Damaged.

PHONE SERVICE CRIPPLED

Many Apples Also Blown Down and Trees Are Broken; New Snow Falls on Mountain.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Growers from different districts today reported that wind yesterday and last night took a heavy toll of pears, estimates of loss ranging from 10 to 15 per cent. of the total yield. While the apple loss was less, much of this fruit was blown down. The wind, one of the severest ever felt in portions of the valley, broke trees in some localities. The telephone system was badly crippled by wind felled trees. The sky cleared last night and a trace of frost was reported in orchard districts of higher elevation. No damage, however, resulted. Clem Blakney, government camp guide, climbing from the south side of Mount Hood yesterday and descending to Cloud Capp Inn, reported that two feet of fresh snow had fallen on the mountain today and Saturday. The life line used in making ascents on the north side, was entirely covered, and r. Blakney had to descend by clinging to rock pinnacles. He declared the view from the summit, with six snow peaks in sight, superb. It is expected that the new snow will melt sufficiently to uncover the life-line for parties that expect to ascend Hood on Labor day.

CHEHALIS GRAIN IS HURT

Cessation of Rain Welcomed by Many Farmers.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—After the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday this morning turned clear, and farmers, who had great quantities of grain still in the fields, were pleased with the change. While some of the grain was hurt slightly by being discolored, the damage was negligible compared with what it would have been had the rain continued another week. Many farmers had their grain under shelter, while others had already finished threshing. Yields this season are well up toward a record, except an unusually heavy crop of hay, vetch and similar feeds was made.

Kelso District Loss Thousands.

KELSO, Wash., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—The worst wind storm that ever swept this section at this season of the year caused heavy loss to farmers, particularly in the diked lands, where the grain was just ripening. A large acreage of grain was leveled. The damage will run well into thousands of dollars. Telephone and electric lines were put out of commission by the storm. The main line of the North Coast Power company was disabled between Castle Rock and Vader.

Rains Put Out Santiam Fires.

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Rains of the last few days have put an end to all of the forest fires in the Santiam national forest. The moisture has also abated, temporarily at least, the danger of new fires getting a serious start.

Rain Hurts Centralia Harvests.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Unharvested crops were damaged considerably by a wind storm that visited Centralia and vicinity Saturday night and yesterday. The wind was accompanied by a heavy rain.

ALASKA TO MAKE PAPER

MILLS WILL BE RUNNING IN SHORT TIME, PREDICTED.

Colonel W. B. Greeley Returns From Trip Through South-eastern Section.

Large pulp and paper plants will be operating in Alaska within a short time, predicts Colonel W. B. Greeley, United States forester, who has been on an inspection trip in Alaska since July 29, together with George H. Cecil, district forester, and John A. Guthrie, forest examiner. Mr. Cecil returned to Portland yesterday from Alaska, but Mr. Greeley left for Washington, D. C., from Seattle. This was Mr. Cecil's fourth inspection trip over the Alaskan national forests. His last trip was made in 1917. He made the trip with Colonel Greeley to gain first-hand information regarding the conditions there, the extent and quality of the timber resources and the outlook for pulp plants in southeastern Alaska. The party arrived at Ketchikan on July 31 and covered southeastern Alaska, visiting the towns of Petersburg, Wrangell, Haines, Juneau, Thane, Sitka, Craig, Tenakee, Killisnoo, and inspecting in detail many of the national forest timber operations. Visits were made to the proposed pulp plant on Fort Snethisham, to sawmills, canneries, whaling station, marble quarries, mining operations, hot springs, etc.

PROPERTY OWNER LOSES

Work Totalling Already $1,000,000 Will Not Be Held Up.

"It hardly is fair to hold up a project on which nearly half a million dollars already has been expended, and which should prove of great public benefit, because of the complaint of the owner of one small piece of property situated at a far corner of the project," commented Presiding Circuit Judge Tazwell yesterday in denying the petition of Mrs. Lewis C. Stafford and D. C. Wier, seeking an injunction against the Multnomah county drainage district No. 1.

The controversy was over property in tract "B" of Love's addition on Columbia slough. The plaintiffs asserted that the construction of a dike now under way would raise an embankment 17 feet high adjoining 125 feet of their property, destroying water frontage facilities. The defense pleaded that the property was not injured and that the work was of extreme public importance and already well under way.
