

STANDARD COURTS
Unqualified Indorsement Is Given Harding's Proposal.

Unqualified indorsement of Senator Harding's plan of bringing about world peace through the establishment of an international court of justice, of which The Hague tribunal might well be the foundation, and taking the good features of the proposed league of nations and at the same time leaving out those features which would endanger the sovereignty of the individual nations, was expressed by R. N. Stanfield, the republican candidate for United States senator at the republican meeting election.

Mr. Stanfield, who is in eastern Oregon looking after his large sheep interests, yesterday telegraphed from Huntington his indorsement of Senator Harding's plan, as outlined by the republican presidential candidate in an address Saturday afternoon at his home in Marion, O.

The message from Mr. Stanfield follows: "Harding's Proposal Favored. "Senator Harding's proposal for the prevention of war and maintenance of permanent peace through the institution of a world court of justice and a world association for conference is very clearly based on the following declaration in the republican national platform: "The republican party stands for agreement among the nations to preserve the peace of the world. We believe that such an international institution is essential to the maintenance of justice and peace and that the decision of impartial courts and which shall secure instant and general international arbitration whenever peace shall be threatened by political action, so that the nations pledged to do so, shall exercise their influence and power for the prevention of war."

"The foregoing declaration from the republican platform fully justifies Senator Harding's proposed plan for combining in one institution justice, supplemented by an international conference, all of the best features of the permanent court of arbitration of the League of Nations, and the present ineffective league of nations covenant as may be deemed worthy of adoption. Senator Harding is not a man to allow pride of authorship or opinion to cloud his vision or to lead him to ignore the best thought obtainable among his countrymen.

"Perhaps the outstanding characteristics of the republican presidential candidate is a willingness to recognize and co-operate with constituted authority, and this laudable trait of mind is the country as a whole in his expressed intention, if elected, to call personally into real effect, the ablest and more experienced minds of this country, from whatever walks of life they may be derived, and without respect to party affiliation, to formulate a definite, practical plan along the lines already indicated for the operation of the controlling foreign powers.

"As the leader of my party, the republican presidential candidate has now submitted to the country a definite plan for bringing about permanent world peace, a plan that is intended to submit international controversies for final decision to a judicial tribunal instead of to an administrative tribunal. It is a decision, threatening peace arises between two nations in the future, the disputed matter may be referred to the plan suggested by Senator Harding, would first be referred to an international conference, which would render a decision. If that decision should prove unsatisfactory to the disputants, it would then be appealed to the international court of justice, whose decision would be final and enforced by all of the nations not a party to the controversy. The plan already adopted by the nations to carry into effect the decision of the world court would undoubtedly be the first question to be determined at the initial conference of nations."

COMMITTEEMAN IN FIGHT

Contests May Overshadow Other Race in Washington Primary; War on for Chairmanship.

CORINNE GRIFFITH, IN A SCENE FROM "BAB'S CANDIDATE," WHICH IS BEING SHOWN AT THE RIVOLI.

TODAY'S FILM FEATURES.
Columbia—"The Murray." The "Right to Live." People's—Eugene O'Brien, "The Figurehead." Trilled by "Three."
Liberty—Mack Sennett's "Married Life," featuring Ben Turpin.
Majestic—Bryant Washburn, "What Happened to Jones."
Rivoli—Corinne Griffith, "Bab's Candidate."
Star—Viola Dana, "The Chorus Girl's Romance."
Circle—Anita Stewart, "The Globe—Madge Kennedy, "Strictly Confidential."

THE theme of "Bab's Candidate," the current attraction at the Rivoli, is especially appropriate at this time. The picture deals with the war and a political campaign and Corinne Griffith, as "Bab," the pretty and clever daughter of a star as a campaign manager. The action of the picture is laid in Washington, D. C., and in the "great common people" and the home of Senator Marvin, his daughter, and her sweetheart, a young lawyer who has a mania for making public speeches. He is also firmly convinced that he is the chosen one of the "great common people" and is willing to sacrifice a brilliant legal career to answer the call of the state legislature. But Bab has other plans and she carries them out with a skill that makes even the veteran politician, her father, admit that a valuable aid and an expert factor in the political game. The town paper, Henry Dawson, who is a fisherman, is called into service by the plotting Bab, who plays on the fact that he is a boyhood friend of her father and also costs the town $5 a week for up-keep.

The picture abounds in many interesting character parts. George Fawcett, as the senator, gives an excellent portrayal of a stuffy but big-hearted statesman. Then there is the small town "cracker barrel" politician who decide the fate of the nation and the world from a comfortable point of vantage around the village postoffice or along Main street. And there's a villain, Eben Sprague, a very crooked lawyer, but he is found out before he can do any damage. The scenic effects on the estate of the senator are exceptionally beautiful.

An added feature is the Rivoli orchestra, led by Mischa Guterson, which played "Ave Marie" (Gounod). The programme is completed by the scenic effects on the estate of the senator, which show trapping in Montana, an international news reel and "Topics of the Day."

PASTOR SAYS FAREWELL
Rev. L. Myron Booser Leaves Medford for Corvallis.
MEDFORD, Or., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—At the last summer meeting of the churches of the city, which were held at the city park on Friday night, Rev. L. Myron Booser, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, delivered his farewell sermon to the people of Medford prior to his removal to Corvallis to assume the duties of student pastor among the Presbyterian churches of Oregon, the city of Corvallis, a position to which he was recently elected.
In accepting his resignation as pastor here this week the southern Oregon presbytery paid high tribute to Dr. Booser's Christian zeal, diplomacy and general effective work as a pastor and congratulated the synod of Oregon, the city of Corvallis, the Oregon Agricultural college and especially the students of that institution.

Members of the state committee are the county representatives chosen at the time the precinct committee meet in their respective counties. It probably is a month before the state committee can be elected and called together, and if so inclined Chairman Walker could delay the meeting a little longer. In any event, the new state committee will not be organized until a month before the campaign efforts in this state.

One of the bases of the fight on the part of the candidates being sworn in by the voters. This involves a canvass on the part of candidates for places on the party committee and in some precincts more interest has been stirred up over the committee contests than over the campaigns for the candidate for public office.
It is an open secret that a fight will be waged for the chairmanship of the republican state committee, as matters now stand S. A. Walker is a candidate for re-election.

FARMER SUFFERS, PLEA ARGUMENT AGAINST 4 PER CENT INTEREST BILL FILED.
Few Mortgages Will Be Renewed and Foreclosures Will Be Wholesale, Is Complaint.
SALEM, Or., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—While laborers and farmers would be the chief sufferers, hardship would be worked upon all citizens of Oregon were the constitutional amendment providing for a 4 per cent money in this state approved by the voters at the November election, according to a negative argument filed with the secretary of state by Charles Hall and George Quayle, president and secretary of the state chamber of commerce.
"Disaster and ruin would involve tens of thousands of home owners, farmers, small business men and other borrowers," said the argument. "Few if any mortgages would be renewed in Oregon and foreclosures would ensue by wholesale. In the morning, thousands of homes would be lost and farms would be surrendered by those who had toiled for years to improve them. There are many classes of people who need borrowed capital, including laboring and salaried people, who are buying homes and as yet do not own them free from debt, farmers who have to borrow in anticipation of their crops, farmers who mortgage their lands for the purpose of making improvements, livestock men who borrow the price of feedstuffs to condition cattle, sheepmen who borrow on their wool in the warehouse, business men who borrow to carry stocks of goods, industries which must finance purchases of raw material, public utilities which must finance cost of equipment and extensions, contractors who must finance payrolls, municipalities, irrigation districts, road commissions and every other class of productive industry."

Oakland Man Gains Twenty Pounds Taking Tanlac and Says Even the First Bottle Made an Astonishing Change in His Condition.
"No, sir, when I stepped on the scales and saw that I had gained twenty pounds in that week, I was surprised. For I have been eating like a wolf ever since I began taking Tanlac," said Walter S. Tucker, 1901 Sixty-sixth street, Oakland, Cal., the other day.
"Why, this medicine had rid me of a case of indigestion that troubled me for fifteen years. My stomach got into such a badly disordered condition I had to give up eating meats and eat only bread and fruit. I had formed gas that bloated me up as tight as a drum, and I would have burning pains in the pit of my stomach and in my chest. Sometimes I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach, my appetite almost left me, and I hardly ever ate a mouthful for breakfast. I had awful headaches, my kidneys were in bad condition, and I had such pains in my back I could never bend without suffering agony. These pains often woke me up in the night, and I would lie for hours suffering tortures and in the morning feeling so weak I could hardly drag myself to work. Every now and then I would have to lay off from work for a day or two.
"But I had hardly finished my second bottle of Tanlac before I felt an astonishing difference. I have now taken four bottles of this medicine and my appetite is tremendous and nothing I eat gives me the slightest trouble. I no longer suffer from gas on my stomach, and, in fact, I haven't an ache or a pain anywhere. I sleep soundly all night and wake up feeling ready for anything that comes to hand. Tanlac is sure a great medicine and I expect to keep a bottle on hand all the time."
Tanlac is sold in Portland by the Owl Drug company.—Adv.
