It would also mean that he would be able to pile up a good sized bank-roll within a month's time without great deal of exertion, as the tenround fight here would be the only grind. The limit in Seattle is four rounds, and in Vancouver six thres-minute rounds. The plan will be L. Y. tried out in the near future.

Eddie Hill, former sports editor of the Seattle Star, the Seattle Union Record and Biff, has taken over the management of Georgie Brandon, local featherweight. Hill, who has always admired the battling tactics employed by Brandon in all of his mills, does not expect to have much trouble keeping the youngster busy. Hill is also dickering with several other boys whom he will take under his wing.

Babe Ruth could be president of the United States if he wanted to, but Babe doesn't want to. He's making more money than the president now and has less worries. In fact, the only thing that worries Babe now is the income tax collector. For the Battering Bambino will make a cool $100,000 in salary for the year of 1920, without exaggeration. Easterners Coming Out.

The result of the getting together is that Allen and Salt and the Mill walkie arena will co-operate to bring boxers from the east, and all three clubs will use them on top of their cards at various dates within a month. The expenses indured in bringing the topnotchers out and the railroad fares that pile up while they are in the northwest will be borne jointly by the three clubs.

With the increased railroad rates, it would have been almost prohibitive to bring a good boy and his manager from the east and stand the expense, which would amount to not less than $400, and probably as high as $600. Under the new plan this amount will be cut to a third for each club.
