CITY'S WATER ABUNDANT

FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS NO SHORTAGE IS FACED.

Cause for Plentiful Supply This Season Due to Additional Storage Because of Dam.

For the first time in many years Portland has passed through a summer without being faced with water shortage. Because of the steady increase in population, which brought about increased consumption of water, a shortage in the supply had come to be an annual event. The lack of a water shortage this year, according to City Commissioner Mann, in charge of the water bureau, was due to the additional storage facilities created at Bull Run lake by the construction of a dam, which permits the release of additional water when needed but prevents the waste of water during cool and wet weather. The use of water this summer has exceeded all past records, one day 71,000,000 gallons of water having been consumed during the 24-hour period.

"Constant improvements in the water-storage facilities saved Portland from a water shortage this summer," explained Commissioner Mann. "We have not yet completed our work, but when the plans devised by the engineers are carried to completion, Portland will never have to worry over a lack of water. Increase of population may cause the construction of the third line and to protect the city in the event of a break in either of the two existing lines. We have the plans for the third line and are making the survey, but are not rushing this."

VICTORY SPIRIT PREVAILS

INTEREST IN REPUBLICAN SUCCESS HELD UNPRECEDENTED.

Statement Made by Will Hays at Conference of Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Informal conferences of chairmen and vice-chairmen of the republican state organizations from 20 states at republican headquarters here were continued today. Will H. Hays, national chairman, in a statement, said: "The meetings have been most satisfactory. Reports show the same unprecedented interest in republican success. This is simply a still further reflection of the conviction on the part of a great majority of the electorate that republican success is the most important element making for the nation's greatest welfare. In this interest on the part of all that we have been urging and will urge. We have no time for back-biting, pulling or hauling. Continual charges and counter-charges accomplish nothing. Serious problems confront the people, and an honest effort to aid the electorate to act intelligently is the real duty of a political committee. To the discharge of this duty we propose direct effort. From this nothing can distract us. There has never been such a spirit of victory in any campaign as was evidenced in these meetings."

Strong delegations will be sent from Oregon, Idaho and Montana, and British Columbia also will have a large number of delegates. The congress is receiving the support and interest of railroad officials. The chambers of Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane united in telegraphing to urge Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific, to attend, which he finds impossible because of previous engagements that will call him east at that time. However, he gives assurance of representation from the railroad in the following telegram, received yesterday in Portland:
