E. B. Fitts Acquires Fame as Judge of Cattle.

OREGON'S RATING RISING

While Youngest Jersey Common wealth in Union, It is Most Successful; Breeders Watch West.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COL-LEGE, Corvallis, Sept. 12 .- (Special. The dairy cattle judging ability of E B. Fitts, federal and Oregon agricul tural college dairy extension specialist for Oregon, is in demand in different states of the country and in two cities of Canada. His fame as a judge of milk producing qualities and as a demonstrator of these qualities to breeders and the public in general is spreading with the fame of Oregon, the youngest but most successful Jer-sey state in the Union.

His services are just now wanted by Utah, Connecticut and Massachu-setts: by Vancouver and Victoria, B C., and by some dozen county and dis trict fairs of Oregon. He has already judged dairy cattle in most of these points, having been at Victoria when Prince George was guest of honor at its first fair. He has judged the dairy exhibits at Utah a number of times but will not be able to do so this

His value as a judge is said to be no greater than his value as a demon He always takes advantage of the educational opportunities af-forded by exhibits of dairy cattle, and in making the awards explains the points of superiority carried by the winning animals. This is appreciated by breeders, who find it of great as-sistance to them in selecting stock for exhibition and breeding.

"Milk producing inheritance or abil-ity in dairy animals, both young and old, is nearly always associated with a conformation or development of form that one can readily learn to recognize," said Professor Fitts.

"Fairs, expositions and judging demonstrations offer splendid educa-tional opportunities, and those breed-ers who carefully follow the judging work and compare their own animals with others on exhibition and with the ideal type are making marked headway in their breeding work."
