

COX HONOR GUEST AT SALEM DINNER

Speaking is Restricted by Inflamed Throat.

NOMINEE RETIRES EARLY

Informal Reception to Precede Address in Armory by Democrat This Morning.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—An inflamed throat which may prevent him from delivering any more extended outdoor addresses for a week or ten days, was suffered by Governor Cox of Ohio, democratic nominee for president at the November election, and he accepted the advice of his physician here tonight and retired to his quarters in the Marion hotel immediately following an informal dinner served in the main dining room of the hostelry.

Governor Cox arrived in Salem aboard a special car attached to a southbound electric train at 8:40 o'clock, accompanied by C. J. Smith, chairman of the democratic state central committee; Dr. J. W. Morrow, democratic national committeeman from Oregon; William Moore, collector of customs; George Alexander, United States marshal for Oregon; George I. Smith, register of the United States land office; B. F. Irvine, newspaper man and other hotel and Thomas Crawford of La Grande.

The presidential nominee and his party were met at the depot by Will E. Purdy, president of the local Cox-for-President club and secretary of the Marion county democratic central committee. After an exchange of greetings, Mr. Cox was ushered into an awaiting automobile and taken for a brief drive through the state hospital grounds. On the return to his hotel, Mr. Cox had an opportunity to view the state house and other of Oregon's public buildings.

"You have a beautiful city," said Mr. Cox, "and I am very glad to see the exterior of your state capitol. It compares well with those found in the larger and more densely populated centers of the east."

On arriving at the hotel Governor Cox found the lobby crowded with persons anxious to see him and after registering he took occasion to shake the hand of every person assembled. Even the bell boys and other hotel employees were included in his attention.

Cox Is Dinner Guest.

Governor Cox was then taken to his suite of rooms. A half-hour later he reappeared in the lobby and entered the dining room where he was the guest at a dinner served under the direction of local democrats. No attempt was made to have Governor Cox speak at the dinner because of the condition of his throat. Plates were laid at the dinner for 28 and the table was beautifully decorated with Salem roses and other flowers typical of this section of the state.

Without any ceremony other than temporary farewells, the governor left the dining room immediately following the dinner and went to his quarters for the night. Before retiring the governor's secretary gave orders that Mr. Cox was not to be disturbed during the night under any circumstances.

Throat Affected Several Days. Members of the party accompanying Mr. Cox to Salem from Portland said that the nominee had been suffering from an inflamed throat for several days, that his condition was not considered at all serious. Tomorrow morning, between 8 and 9 o'clock, Governor Cox will be the guest of honor at a reception to be held in the lobby of the Marion hotel. This will be the governor's last address in the armory, with B. F. Irvine presiding over the introductory ceremonies.

Large Crowd Anticipated.

Prominent democrats from many southern Oregon points arrived in Salem tonight to hear Mr. Cox's address, and it was predicted that he would be greeted by a large crowd. Friends of the governor said that the trip from Portland to Salem was without incident, save the laudatory remarks of Mr. Cox with reference to the beautiful country through which his train passed.

"I have often heard of the wonderful resources of Oregon," the governor told members of his party, "but I had no idea of the scenic beauties of your country until today."

Upon the advice of his physician, Governor Cox will not be interviewed tonight, other than referring all matters of desired information to his secretary.

At the dinner here tonight, in addition to the governor's party, were a number of local democrats prominent in the affairs of the party.

HARDING WILL PROTECT HOME INTERESTS, IT IS DECLARED.

Purpose of Republican Party in Two Words Averred to Be "Sound Government."

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 12.—Governor Coolidge, republican nominee for vice-president, today said that America "led by a patriot like Warren G. Harding will protect the interest of all people at home and perform ungrudgingly all her duties abroad."

"It is well to keep in mind," he said, "that unless we maintain our domestic institutions we shall have no foreign relations, unless we cherish liberty and prosperity at home, we cannot provide or defend them abroad. The welfare we seek is ever the welfare of America and if not of America alone, certainly of America first."

It is for the purpose of advancing that welfare that citizens associate themselves in parties. If I were asked to state the purpose of the republican party in two words I should say "sound government."

"When the war began the American people granted powers to the executive like of which were exercised by no other person on earth. Those powers have not been surrendered. Under them, so far as I can judge, the power exists to put a draft into effect tomorrow and impress our citizens to be sent to fight anywhere in the world. It is not enough to say this will not be done. I object to the existence of any such powers in time of peace. The only agency now seeking to bring this condition to a close is the republican party."

REFUGEES SAIL FOR HOME

780 CHILDREN START ON LAST LEG OF JOURNEY.

Motorboats Crowded With Alleged Radicals Kept at Distance From Piers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Beaming with smiles, 780 Russian refugee children began last night the last leg of a round-the-world trip to their homes in Petrograd, sailing from New York aboard the steamer Yomi Maru, chartered by the American Red Cross.

The refugees have been here since August 20. They were sent out of Petrograd during 1918 and were taken in charge by the Red Cross at Vladivostok.

Motorboats crowded with men who police believed were radicals, lately instrumental in having some of the children protest against returning to their homes by way of France, raced up and down the harbor last evening.

Harbor men would not let them come near the piers, however.

GOVERNOR COX WILL SPEAK TWICE TODAY

Democratic Nominee in City on Western Tour.

SALEM SPEECH IS SLATED

Special Afternoon Meeting Is Arranged for Women; Reception on Trip Proves Hearty.

(Continued From First Page.) two groups on the platform, one the friends of Senator Chamberlain, and the other the democrats who are fighting him but who are voting for Cox and Roosevelt. They could be readily distinguished by the difference in the badges worn.

Salem Trip to Be Strain.

The very first thing to happen was when J. J. Sinnott, sergeant-at-arms in the house of representatives, who is in charge of the Cox special, informed Dr. C. J. Smith, democratic state chairman, that the Oregon itinerary would have to be changed. Mr. Sinnott said that the trip to Salem and the speech there would have to be canceled. Immediately Dr. Smith, Senator Chamberlain, County Chairman Hedlund and Walter B. Gleason, county secretary, went into executive session with Mr. Sinnott and argued him out of the idea.

Specialist's Verdict Hopeful.

Meanwhile, Governor Cox was asleep in his car, with orders not to be disturbed, so the awaiting committee of welcome had to disperse without a hand-shake or even a sight of the candidate. About 9 o'clock Governor Cox was taken by Dr. J. W. Morrow, national committeeman, to the Multnomah, which is headquarters for the party in the city, and there Dr. Chamberlain was sent for to treat Governor Cox's throat. Dr. Chamberlain said that the condition was not serious and that recovery would be quick if the candidate did not have to make so many speeches.

There was a fear expressed by some of the correspondents on the train that the laryngitis might necessitate cancellation of the tour, but Dr. Chamberlain did not consider this as imminent. However, a man was hired in Portland yesterday who will accompany the governor for the rest of the trip to look after his throat and general physical condition.

The throat trouble started at Butte, Mont., where the governor spoke out doors in a cold wind. It increased with the campaigning and succeeding days. When he began his speech in Seattle Saturday night, he could hardly be heard for the first time since he left his home in Chicago. He has been in Portland since Monday, where he spoke out doors in a cold wind. It increased with the campaigning and succeeding days.

While not exactly "viewing with alarm" such a scheme, friends of Senator Chamberlain did not propose overlooking any bets. They got into action Friday and feel that they have been successful.

Elton Watkins, democratic presidential elector and president of the Jackson club, used the long distance telephone to apprise Clarence L. Reamer, in Seattle, of the alleged plot. Mr. Reames is a friend of Chamberlain, so he called into consultation with Governor Cox and plan seeds he canvassed the situation. They wired to former Senator Turner, at Spokane, the high lights of the supposed conspiracy, with a request that he watch that end of the game and head off any Portlander who might get close overlooking any bets.

When Governor Cox arrived in Seattle, Mr. Reames, et al, accompanied the candidate to Tacoma and back to Seattle and in that time they talked turkey to him regarding the situation in Oregon, which Mr. Reames referred to Senator Chamberlain and the democrats who are fighting him. Although this conference was reported in Portland, still, the Chamberlain men at the union depot yesterday looked anxiously when the train arrived to see if any anti-Chamberlainite stepped off the cars.

There were at the depot a delegation from the Cox-Roosevelt club composed principally of Chamberlain opponents, but these were somehow shouldered to the background and the Chamberlain friends adroitly placed themselves around Cox at every opportunity.

The Multnomah, two of the anti-Chamberlain men sought to interview the candidate. They went up to the governor's room, but on being identified they were informed that Governor Cox was resting and would not be able to see anyone.

Governor Cox's advance agent, who was in town Friday night, expressed great satisfaction at the information that Senator Chamberlain would introduce the presidential candidate at the auditorium.

The Cox and Chamberlain alliance in Oregon is quite complete and the senator was with the governor during the day yesterday more than any other person.

DEMOCRAT CHANGES HIS VIEW

John H. Kirby to Vote for Republican Nominees.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(Special.)—John H. Kirby of Houston, Texas, president of the National Lumbermen's Manufacturing association, a native of that state and an old-fashioned democrat who has been active in party matters for more than 30 years, though he has never sought public office has acted as chairman of state conventions and delegate to national conventions, and has always contributed to democratic campaign funds, is not going to vote the democratic ticket this year. In his reasons, Mr. Kirby gave out the following:

"I cannot conceive of the people showing further confidence in my party, when for eight years we have constantly increased their taxes and reduced their liberties. I believe in a government of laws and not a written constitution, and laws which would require us to expend our commissions, and a constant multiplication of taxations.

"I cannot subscribe to the monstrous idea of this government owing a higher duty to the peoples of other nations than it owes to its own citizens. I believe in a nationalism which places America first and not in an internationalism which would require us to expend our taxes or sacrifice the lives of our sons in fighting wars which did not involve the honor of our country or the welfare of our people.

"The democratic party is honey-combed with socialism. Its continuance in power will imperil the republic. There cannot be any compromise between the right of individuals as set up in the bill of rights under our constitution and the sophistry of socialism so plausibly presented.

"The republican party saved the union. It is now up to it to save the republic."

BOND BROKER ARRESTED

DISPOSING OF STOLEN SECURITIES IS CHARGE PREFERRED. Detective Declares Bonds Sold Were Part of $5,000,000 Stolen by Wall-Street Messengers.

BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 12.—A man said to be Lord H. Wilson, advertising man and bond dealer of Chicago, was arrested here Saturday by J. J. Gegan, detective-sergeant of New York, charged with having received and disposed of $50,000 of the $175,000 in Liberty bonds which it was alleged were stolen from a Wall-street bond house last year by Benjamin Binkowitz, a messenger, who afterward was murdered at Milford, Conn.

The man who was entertaining a party en route by automobile to Yellowstone Park, consented to waive extradition and left here tonight in the custody of Gegan for Chicago.

Wilson, according to Gegan, admits having had the bonds, which were traced to him after two of them had turned up last month in the federal reserve bank of Kansas City, but is said to have maintained that he did not know from whom he received them.

Gegan is one of the numerous detectives assigned to hunt down the conspirators, who are said to have directed the theft of bonds and securities valued at $5,000,000 in Wall street during the last two or three years.

He said tonight that if Wilson can be induced to reveal the source from which he obtained the bonds the police of New York probably will obtain a line on the murderers of Binkowitz, the messenger, who is said to have been one of a number of instruments used by the conspirators in carrying out the raid on Wall street.
