

REALTY PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR DENVER

Many Boards Will Hear Fred E. Taylor on Tour.

BIG MEETING PLANNED

Presidents and Executive Committees of 203 Organizations Have Been Invited.

On an official tour that will carry him to many of the principal cities of the country Fred E. Taylor, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will leave Portland tonight for Denver, Colo., where meetings of the executive committee, board of managers and advisory board of the national association will be held next week.

En route to Denver Mr. Taylor will stop at Boise, Idaho, where he will speak before the Boise chamber of commerce on Friday noon. He will also deliver an address before the realty men of Idaho at Boise that evening.

Two Others Going

Fred H. Strong of the Ladd Estate company, executive committee member of the Portland Realty Board and chairman of the Portland committee which is boosting for a large attendance at the next annual convention of the national association in Chicago, will depart for the executive committee meeting in a few days.

Members of all committees, as well as the ten vice-presidents and the past presidents of the national association, are expected to be in Denver. The members of the advisory board, consisting of the most prominent realty men in the country, will meet with President Taylor on the morning of September 20, the day preceding the gathering of the executive committee.

All Committees to Meet

For September 23, the day following the adjournment of the executive committee, the national committees on housing, taxation, the publication council and the committees in charge of the "own your own home" work, city planning, national legislation, finance, state license laws and state associations have been called by President Taylor to effect committee organization and discuss their respective programs for the year.

A special committee has been appointed to confer on Monday, September 20, with the officers of the farm land division relative to the plan outlined at the Kansas City convention for the annual convention of the national association to be held in Chicago, probably next June.

Mr. Taylor will return to Portland in the early part of October.

Many States to Be Visited

Immediately following the Denver meetings Mr. Taylor will pay official visits to the men of Omaha and Lincoln, Neb.; Council Bluffs, Des Moines and Davenport, Ia.; Chicago, Detroit and Buffalo, N. Y.

Trees Free of Disease

NO WHITE PINE RUST IN WEST, SAYS OFFICIAL.

Dr. Metcalf Making Tour of Inspection for Purpose of Detecting Disease.

The efficient inspection service at all ports on the Pacific coast has served to keep out plant diseases in this part of the country, says Dr. H. Metcalf of Washington, D. C., who is in the west investigating tree diseases.

In this way, he says, the Pacific coast has been saved from the sweeping epidemics among trees which have destroyed whole forests in the eastern states.

The main object of this trip, says Dr. Metcalf, is to see if there is any white pine blister rust among the trees on this coast. So far, Dr. Metcalf has not discovered any signs of the disease here. He is afraid that it may have been imported into the west on current bushes or on ornamental white pine trees.

It may have been imported here, it would mean that the sugar pine and western white pine would be exterminated eventually, he explained yesterday.

The government recently stopped the shipping of these trees west of the Mississippi river, he said, but he feared that the disease might have reached the west from trees imported several years ago. The disease has bothered trees in the east for the past ten years.

Dr. Metcalf came to Portland yesterday from San Francisco, where he here a few days and then will go to Spokane.

CO-OPERATION IS OBJECT

COMING RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS IMPORTANT.

Much Good for Pacific Northwest Expected to Follow Meeting Here October 4 and 5.

General interest in the forthcoming session of the rivers and harbors congress of the Pacific northwest states, called by the Oregon state chamber of commerce to meet in Portland October 4-5, is indicated in letters coming to the office of the secretary. What it may accomplish in behalf of closer co-operation between the people of the states is realized by men of vision, and among the speakers will be a number of leaders in transportation development, including some of those who have persisted in the use of the waterways of the region during the period in which rail competition has been a difficult task.

Secretary Quayle has just been advised by S. A. Thompson, secretary of the national rivers and harbors congress, Washington, D. C., that Marshal Shackelford, field secretary of that organization, is being sent from Dallas, Texas, as the official representative to attend the northwest rivers and harbors convention. The national rivers and harbors congress has been active in the development of rivers and harbors throughout the United States and has been recognized as the authority on the needs of the country along this line.

The Seattle chamber of commerce will send a strong delegation to the convention here, including A. F. Haines, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Steamship company; Kenneth C. Kerr, editor of the Railway and Marine News; and W. E. Henderson, former agent United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, now director of the international trade service of "Pacific Ports," published by Frank W. Harhouse & Co. The chamber advises Mr. Quayle that two additional delegates will be named within a few days. The Seattle chamber will also send a speaker to talk on the subject of foreign trade.

Colon R. Eberhard of La Grande, chairman of the committee on transportation and freight rates of the United States, and who has been named as the delegate from that organization, and writes that he will attend.

James M. Rhoades, managing secretary of the Everett commercial club, reports that the Everett port committee will name five delegates, and also the chamber of commerce and representatives from the city.

Property owners and other citizens of Jacksonville will hold a mass meeting Wednesday night for the purpose of discussing ways and means to combat the movement started by Medford and Ashland business men to have the courthouse removed from Jacksonville to this city. Colonel H. H. Sargent and others will speak in behalf of Jacksonville, and the Medford chamber of commerce will have representatives present to argue in favor of the removal plan.

It may seem like a small thing to the purchaser of furs, but nevertheless a few weeks' difference in the time a pelt is taken makes a tremendous difference in the finished fur piece.

You tell whether the animal from which the pelt was taken was captured at the right time of the year or whether it was caught too early or too late? Probably not. Your furrier could—but would he?

A pelt captured early in the fall, before the temperature settles down below the freezing point, is unprime, and is known as a "blue pelt." The fur of a blue pelt is invariably immature and the leather is weak. Had the animal been taken but a few weeks later the fur would have been far more valuable and would give immeasurably more wear.

Pelts taken a few weeks late—that is, after the temperature has risen to above freezing—are known as "shedders." This is because the animal was taken without their skins prime, so furriers will continue to buy these furs because of their cheapness, selling them at prices asked for prime skins at more reliable fur stores.

To the average purchaser of furs there is but one safe course open—select an honest fur dealer who knows his business.
