

COLLEGES TO TEACH RUNNING BUSINESS

Management Course to Be Added by Most.

PLAN WELL FINANCED

President of Drexel Institute Declares Big Corporations Are Giving Support.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A course in "management education" to provide a sufficient number of properly trained executives for the industries of the United States will be established in a majority of the American colleges, according to an announcement made today by the Associated Press here today by Dr. Hollis Godfrey, president of the Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, formerly commissioner of the advisory commission of the council of national defense.

The plan, an outgrowth of a convention attended by representatives of industry and colleges in Philadelphia last March, is backed by corporations representing a capitalization of $24,000,000,000. It is the result, Dr. Godfrey said, of these two factors coming to a definite working agreement for the first time through the establishment of the council of management education, an organization formed "to study mutual problems in order that the colleges may render the greatest possible service to industry."

Plan Being Perfected. Dr. Godfrey, chairman of the new body, assisted by Dr. Samuel P. Capen, general director of the American council on education, representing the 230 colleges and Dr. Frederick C. Ferry, president of Hamilton college, are perfecting the plan which contemplates establishing practical courses in the schools, assisting undergraduates and others to choose their life's work, by facing through the students and teachers in industry during the summer months and by introducing extension courses for men now in industry. By the summer work, students will be enabled to defray their expenses at college, obtain an insight into American industry and enable the executives to select future management men.

The council of management education, which was formed, it was said, to become "a clearing house for all industrial and educational matters in the country to promote the mutual understanding of the mutual problems of industry and the college and to keep perpetual inventory of the educational needs of industry and of the ability of the colleges to meet these needs," has opened temporary offices in the Drexel building, Philadelphia, until headquarters are furnished in Washington.

Annual Appropriation Made. An annual appropriation of $100,000, entirely borne by American industry, has been made to carry on its work. All of the courses and scholastic recommendations, he said, will be passed upon jointly by the council of management of education and the American council on education, before being forwarded to the institutions of learning. Within one year, it is estimated, $60 million will have included the extension industrial courses and all will be provided with the industry's material resources to base undergraduate work.

The council, according to Dr. Godfrey, is the only war organization which has carried operations into time of peace. Nearly all of the education bank funds are being used in the Council of National Defense. When the armistice was signed these men decided to devote their educational knowledge gained during the war to an expenditure of millions of dollars should not be lost. Accordingly, plans were set in motion to turn this information over to industry. A survey of the needs of industry was made under the auspices of the Technological Clubs Associated of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

CULLS' EGGS WORTH $2.69, WHILE FEED COSTS $5.53.

Oregon Agricultural College Will Inform Poultry Raisers of the Best Methods of Culling.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Or., Sept. 26.—Culling out 70 weak layers from a flock of 222 hens on the farm of Ralph Oglesby, Banks, Or., reduced the weekly yield of the flock only 50 eggs. The culling was done by A. S. Wainwright, poultry specialist, and Hubert E. Cosby, extension poultry specialist of the state college. The flock unculled produced 3574 eggs in the week before culling. The culled flock of 212 hens laid 3324 eggs in the week after culling. The culled birds in and laid 85 eggs under precisely similar conditions. The market value of the culled eggs was $2.85, Mr. Cosby figures in the Oregon Poultry Life. A cent a day for feed for each hen the cost of feed alone for the culled was $5.53 for the week—a net loss of $3.34.

Charles Forward, Or., Sept. 26.—(Special)—Charles Forward, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Forster, of this city, is a self-made boy. While attending high school he worked mornings before school and evenings after school hours. He graduated from the Oregon City High school in June, 1919. Sergeant Dimminger passed through Bend on his way to his Lake county ranch home, which he had left in December, 1917, to answer the call to the colors. Participation in major engagements on the western battle front, in service with the intelligence department almost from the moment of his arrival in France nearly three years ago, until August 25 of the present year when he embarked at Antwerp for the first leg of his return trip to America, represent in brief, the experience of the central Oregon soldier. Sergeant Dimminger's story included reminiscences of the red uprisings in Germany, and trips into Austria, Hungary, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.
