OHIO POLL SHOWS HARDING IN LEAD

Latest Figures Indicate Defeat of Cox.

STATE HELD REPUBLICAN

Seems to Have Switched Into Republican Line

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington. Oct. 1.-Harding is gradually running away from Cox in the Cin-Ohio. Up to Wednesday a total of 8451 voters had been polled, of whom at least half reside in rural sections outside of Cheinnati and Hamilton county. While Harding led in Ham-ilton county (Cincinnati). The percentage of his margin over Cox greater outside that county, running Cox an exceedingly close race some strongly democratic communi

The last figures give Harding 4857 and Cox 3594. Republicans who will vote the democratic national ticket this year number 255, and democrats who will go to the republican ticket number 804. The women's vote in the same poll shows 213 for Harding missioner, Is Appointed to and 161 for Cox.

Even money is now bet in New York that Harding will carry Ohio by 40,000 and odds of 8 to 5 that he will carry the state.

Odds on Harding Gain.

At the same time, even money is offered in New York that Harding will carry that state by 200,000 and the odds on the outcome of the presidential contest have shifted from 4 to 1 on Harding to 5 to 1. The repub-lican drift in New York is so perceptible that odds are now offered on the last session of the legislature. Judge Nathan L. Miller, republican who nominated Herbert Hoover at the Chicago convention, being elected governor. Odds on Miller are 8 to 1. Indiana, which was classed as doubtful for several weeks, apparently has switched into line for Hardng and probably the entire republical state ticket, according to careful polls made in widely separated sections during the last few days. Senator Watson, who has been rated as weaker than either the national or state tickets, seems to have the edge World Seems Disgusted. The democratic New York World, supporting Governor Cox, pays its respects to both the republican and democratic parties today, saying: "There is no public respect for either the democratic or the republican party as such and no large measure public confidence in either of

But what is more interesting in the World editorial, incidentally, is the startling admission on the part of this Cox newspaper that the demothis Cox newspaper that the demo-cratic nomines was put over by cer-tain hig bosses. The World says:
"Governor Cox had a much stronger claim on the democratic nomination than Senator Harding had on the re-publican nomination. His record as governor of Ohio gave him a status of his own in the San Francisco con-vention, but what really nominated him was the determination of a lit-tle group of democratic bosses to tle group of democratic bosses to beat McAdoo because of quarrels and will provide the farmers with a capa-ble leader who will place them on a better business basis, as has been done in California, it will be far cheaper for the state to bear the expense than for the merchants to face ruin. Further, does it not appear logical that a state director at this time would do much to keep the non-partisan league out of Oregon, for it should be re-membered that California has a state market director; that the league has not entered that state, nor is it likely to, for the reason the farmers of California are already organized in their co-operative marketing ex-

"The Portland campaign to combat non-partisan leagueism is being con-ducted in the interest of the entire state and as this matter has been be-fore us since the early part of this year and the non-partisan league generally known for the past five years and also what co-operative marketing has done for commercialism in Caltornia, it seems strange that a secre tary of a merchants' body, unless he was ignorant of the facts, should permit his board of directors, without first pointing out the dangers, to assume the responsibility of condemning the state market commission act, the primary object of which was to keep the non-partisan league out of Oregon. It is further strange that any board of directors of any body should so misuse its power, which is inferred by the wording of the resoinferred by the wording of the resolution, to speak for the entire organization without first obtaining an expression from the body."
