Rain Damages Prunes.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 1 .- (Special)—A heavy rain storm struck Clarke county last night and lasted all day today. It has done an im-mense amount of damage to the prunes left op the trees and in many parts, if not all, puts an end to the prune harvest. Some of the farmers have reported that they have lost as high as 60 per cent of this year's crop on account of rain.

GOLD IS BLAMED

Until Metal Is More Valuable, Population Will Continue to Decrease, It Is Declared.

The big, annual woolen goods sale of the Brownsville Woolen Mill Store at Third and Morrison, is now underway. This is the one big merchandising event of the year, eagerly looked forward to by thousands. Men's and boys' underwear, hostery, flannel shirts, pajamas, night shirts, sweaters and mackinaws as well as other articles have been reduced. Blankets, bathrobes. Indian robes, and anto robes have been marked down. See our windows today.—Adv.

With the high cost of living reducing the white population of Alaska, according to E. W. Nelson, head of the United States bureau of blological survey, now in the city, wild life is coming into its own and game is steadily on the increase in that section. Mr. Nelson, who has his headquarters in Washington, D. C. arrived in Portiand yesterday after purchased in the proposition of Alaska study in the United States bureau of the United States burea passing three months in Alaska Study-ing animal conditions there. He will remain through today in conference with Stanley G. Jewett of the local office and other district officials. "Until the value of gold rises high-er than its present relation to prices," Mr. Nelson declared, "people will continue to leave Alaska. Supplies and freight rates are high and wages average less than in the United States. Poor transportation interferes with development of the country. One of the big results of the exodus is the > aribou and mountain sheep, all but he caribou being particularly plen-liful on the Kenal peninsula." Alaska, he said, has two industries growing yearly in importance. One is the raising of blue fox on islands on the southeast coast, these having at present more than 3000 of the rare animals, extremely valuable for their fur. They breed much more freely than black fox and Mr. Nelson cited instances of where a pair at one place had 14 young and an-other pair had 12 during the present ncrease in many sections of moose, eason. The average is from five to even to the pair. Reindeer ranching is the other feature that is destined to increase the wealth of Alaska, he says. There are now 200,000 domesticated reindeer in the north, about 50,000 of them belonging to white men.

The animals are herded like sheep on the Arctic plains, where they live on the abundant growth of small veg-lation in summer and on reindeer hoss dug up from under the snow in winter. The young are hardy and are often born on the open plains when the temperature is below zero. They an soon follow their mother and in a few days are able to run with great peed. The value of reindeer lies in the meat and skins.
