To aid in financing the 1921 wool clip of the northwest, organization was completed yesterday of the Western Wool Warehouse company, a $2,000,000 corporation which has purchased a warehouse site of three acres, equipped with a two-level dock at St. Johns.

The wool warehouse company was organized by a group of Portland and Oregon bankers, with several of the largest wool growers in the state, and it will operate an independent warehouse where wool, both consigned and unconsigned, will be handled, graded, stored and marketed. It will be operated by experienced wool men.

$200,000 Stock Subscribed. The warehouse will qualify under the United States bonded warehouse act designed to make wool receipts of warehouses complying with the act more negotiable.

Three hundred thousand dollars of the capital stock has already been subscribed by the directors of the company, Portland bankers and business men.

Construction of the first unit of the wool warehouse will be started within the next 60 days, said S. F. Wilson, vice-president of the company.

The establishment of this warehouse will be of tremendous benefit to the Oregon wool grower, said Mr. Wilson. "We shall be enabled to make, by rediscounting, up to $100,000,000 in wool loans, while in the off season the warehouse will be enabled to store grain and other commodities."

Site Bought for $275,000. The warehouse site was purchased from the American Iron works for $275,000. It consists of approximately three acres and is at the foot of Richmond street, iron works will rent back the property required for its foundry and machine shop. The property is improved with a modern dock, built by the Star Sand company.

It is planned to erect five units of a wool warehouse, each unit to house from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 pounds of wool.

FAIR OPENS TOMORROW

WESTERN WASHINGTON EXHIBITS IN PLACE.

Special Days and Entertainment Features Are Arranged on Big Programme.

FUYALLUP, Wash., Oct. 4.—(Special.)—The Western Washington fair will open the gates for its 21st annual exhibition next Wednesday morning. Featuring a two-day afternoon every exhibit will be in place.

The fair this year is declared to be one of the best in the west, and horticultural exhibits ever held in the west. The first fair was held in the Fuyallup valley on October 4, 5 and 6, 1904.

From a small show on a town lot to a $200,000 exhibition covering 30 acres, is the record of the fair. W. H. Paulhamus, who is nationally known for his work in developing the Fuyallup valley, has been president of the fair for the last 20 years, and the fair has grown in importance as an agricultural exhibition and one of the adjuncts that has helped to develop the valley, while the Fuyallup valley itself has come forward as a great berry region.

The fair association this year purchased 15 additional acres, a total of which is used for an amusement zone and the other half as a parking space for automobiles. During the progress of the fair from October 6 to 10 there will be many special days, including Seattle day on October 7, Tacoma day on October 8, and other special features dedicated to various sections of western Washington.

PORTLANDER AT HEARING

ALEXANDER NIBLEY WITNESS AT MEDFORD SUGAR PROBE.

Testimony Mainly Deals With Relations of George E. Saunders to Utah-Idaho Company.

MEDFORD, Or., Oct. 4.—(Special.)—At the federal trade commission hearing here today Alexander Nibley of Portland completed his testimony in the "combination in restraint of trade" charge against the Utah-Idaho Beet Sugar company.

His testimony, under cross-examination, related mostly to the relations of the company financially with George E. Saunders in connection with the Grants Pass sugar factory promotion and deal. He also told of the connection of Colonel J. E. Mundy of this city with the deal before the factory was financed and located at Grants Pass and told of Mundy's sugar project. The witness denied that he had told Mayor Gates or W. H. Gore that the Utah-Idaho company controlled all the sugar beet need and that consequently Colonel Mundy's promotion scheme would fail.

George Gorenson of Grants Pass testified as to the value of the various companies promoted by George E. Saunders.

Minneapolis Gives $125,000 Yearly for Symphony. Emil Oberhoffer, Conductor of Orchestra, Explains the System of Financing.

THE reason why the business men of Minneapolis give us a yearly guarantee of $125,000 for the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra is because they know by experience what real symphony costs and are willing to pay the price," said Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the symphony orchestra mentioned, as he sat in his room at the public auditorium last Sunday night after conducting a memorable concert in which 82 musicians played.

"Have you in Minneapolis any financial angel who contributes, say, from $5,000 to $10,000 a year to help orchestral expenses? The Boston symphony had and the Los Angeles philharmonic has such big financial help," was suggested.

"The largest contributor to our guarantee fund pays, I am told, about $800 yearly," replied Mr. Oberhoffer. "About 30 Minneapolis business men give $3000 each a year, and the balance of the $125,000 is made up of sums ranging from $100 each."

"Have you people any difficulty in getting that sum each year?" persisted the reporter.

"No sir," replied Mr. Oberhoffer, apparently with surprise. "I have never asked one man for one dollar for our orchestra. The money just comes in. From whom? From the business people of our city, Minneapolis. They believe symphony to be a good thing for our section, and are willing to pay. If the money were not forthcoming I would take it that the people of Minneapolis would not then want symphony. That is all there is to it. You would not expect a good school to exist year after year on tuition fees alone? The same with a symphony orchestra. It must get a guarantee fund each year or further symphony is not possible."
