

LIFTING OF BID FOR DEMOCRATS COSTLY

Indictments May Follow San Francisco Hospitality.

FEDERAL PROBE ASSURED

Officials Frankly Admit Conviction to Supply Delegates to Convention With Liquor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—(Special.)—City and federal officials frankly admitting that they connived to supply democratic national convention delegates with 40 barrels of whiskey and gin, in violation of the prohibition law, the federal grand jury ready to begin tomorrow an exhaustive investigation of the activities of an alleged wholesale bootlegging ring, and Mrs. Gladys K. Warburton, prohibition director, making an official complaint to Washington of interference by Collector of Internal Revenue Wardell, the prohibition situation in San Francisco today had reached sensational proportions.

Indictments Are Expected. In announcing that the federal grand jury, convening tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, would probe the alleged withdrawal of liquor in wholesale quantities from bonded warehouses by a ring of illicit liquor dealers, United States Attorney Silva declared he expected several indictments to result.

Justice Waits on Shoes. Aberdeen Prisoner Loans Footwear and Can't Be Removed. ABERDEEN, Wash., Oct. 6.—(Special.)—The process of justice was retarded for several hours because of the withdrawal of shoes from a woman prisoner, wanted by Portland police as a witness in an important case, who was scheduled to leave for the morning in company with a federal officer. When train-time came the woman was loudly lamenting that she had loaned her shoes to a fellow prisoner, a woman, who, according to officers, had no shoes when arrested.

County Budget Adopted. Grays Harbor Commissioners Make Place for Community Leader. ABERDEEN, Wash., Oct. 6.—(Special.)—The budget for Grays Harbor county, totaling $1,030,190.50, has been approved by the county commissioners with the exception of an item of $4110 for an assistant county agricultural agent.

Alleged Kidnaper in Court. CHEHALIS, Wash., Oct. 6.—(Special.)—Charged with kidnaping her own daughter, Emma Jane Fitzgerald, Mrs. Georgia Jacobus of Toledo, was brought here to appear in justice court. Following the hearing it was decided to file an information against the woman direct in the superior court. Following a divorce custody of the children was awarded the father.

City's Hospitality Praised. The plan to make the delegates' stay in San Francisco as pleasant as possible did not emanate from city officials, it was plain. It was a tip straight from Washington. The liquor was withdrawn ostensibly for the San Francisco hospital, but the patients of that institution got none of the "medicine." All the summer colds were being enjoyed by the Bourbon delegates, although some of them drank "rye."

Acting Mayor Ralph McLean, commenting on the disclosure of the distribution of liquor to the delegates, today said the story amused him. "Everybody knew it," he said. "The roof of the house was off, and San Francisco was entertaining in the San Francisco-knows-how way. There was no prohibition enforcement officer in town. The lid was off and as a result newspapers all over the country praised San Francisco's hospitality. Attorney-General Palmer was here. I don't know whether he got any of the booze, but there was plenty if he had wanted it."

Signing Permit Admitted. Dr. Hassler readily admitted signing the permit for the withdrawal of the liquor. He said: "If there is any explaining to do about this matter, let the others do it. I'm not explaining. I signed a requisition for liquor in my capacity as acting agent for the San Francisco hospital. It was for one barrel. Then certain officials said there was something wrong with the requisition and signed another in blank. I don't know how many barrels were withdrawn. I was told that the whiskey was to be used in entertaining the democratic delegates and that there would be no trouble. That Washington was satisfied. I can't see why this fuss is being made now when everybody knew what was going on."

Frank M. Silva, now United States attorney, but who at the time was prohibition director, said today he knew nothing of the diverting of the liquor. There was no doubt that the liquor permit had been issued to the San Francisco hospital, he said.

William J. Jordan, assistant prohibition supervisor, said he remembers the transaction well. "We all knew about it but we were told to lay off," he said.

Collector of Internal Revenue Wardell was greatly surprised and said he had heard nothing of the withdrawal of whiskey for use by the democratic delegates. The 40 barrels was distributed among the headquarters of the democratic national committee, Cox, Palmer, McAdoo, Tammany and the lesser candidates, according to reports.
