CLEVELAND'S FAITH IN TRIBE UNSHAKEN

Fanatical Ohio Rooters Are Certain of Three Games.

SWAT RASH MAY APPEAR

Indian Batting Way Below Standard for Season and It May Be Factor.

BY GRANTLAND RICE,

The gubdued and pensive atmosphere that hovered over Brooklyn in the first two games of the world series is missing in this throbbing western citadel that has come upon pennant glory for the first time in its history.

Brooklyn may have been a trifle sombre over baseball in opening day last Tuesday, but Cleveland isn't. The overpowering stench from the games' greatest scandal plus two straight defeats by the hustling dodgers have failed to suppress the fanatical ardor in Ohio's metropolis fanatical ardor in Ohio's metropolis where they are all looking for Speaker's slugging sons of swat to take three out of four and start back for Brooklyn in the lead. Here you are in the home of the fan at heart the old-fashloned fan who is rampant and roistering, steeped in the old-fashioned faith that once beold-fashioned faith that once be-longed only to the south side rooters of Chicago before eight crooks and traitors sold them out. It is refresh-ing to step from the fog of scandal this buoyant exuberance of people who, through their idolatry of speaker and his men, still believe in the game

Fuith May Bent Robbins. It is with this loyal backing and support that the Indians will make their drive upon home grounds faced this year.

"Back home with old Covey ready to give us another start," is the slogan of the town. Faith may move moun-tains but will it be sufficient to move Grimes, Smith, Mamaux, Pfeffer and Marquard from the road?

You know Cleveland's answer but your Uncle Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn expects to leave here Tuesday night with the series either won or but one more victory needed to close out the spectacle. Brooklyn doesn't expect Coveleskie propeat, while Brooklyn is still confident that Mamaux or Pfeffer will pick up where Grimes and Smith left

They have earned but one run from our staff in the last 23 innings," remarked Robby last night, "and we will have three stars in Mamaux, Pfeffer and Cadore who have hardly warmed up. We can keep feeding good pitching through every game, and you know what this means in any world series."

Swat Rash Expected.

The Indians admit they were stopped a trifle abruptly in the last two games by Grimes and Smith, but back at home, where they have done their hardest hitting, they expect to start another sonorous chorus of resounding blows. Not only that, they expect Coveleskle, Bagby and Mails to hold the Dodgers in check, where the more confident of the clan are predicting four straight.

Or noneyman Hardware team vs. Salem Senators' baseball game will be staged at Oxford park Sunday. Manager Kracke is having the playing field placed in fit shape for the Sabbath day battle. The championship of Oregon is the prize the two semi-pro-

The Near Champ.

The Ne start. And if Brooklyn can only break even in these four games here she is a practical cinch to win Speak-er's big assignment now is to take three of four if the American league is to float the next world series flag. When Coveleskie steps out against Mamaux or Pfeffer, the pitching Pole should win. But with Covey out of the way and with Smith and Grimes ready to tackle Bagby and Mails, the odds are a bit the other way.

World's Series Comment.

World's series games serve to call attention to some of the unusual angles of baseball. Jimmy Johnston, Brooklyn infielder, is a case in point. Johnston served two full seasons in the Pacific Coast league—with San Francisco in 1913 and with Oakland in 1915—and local fanis know him weil, but not as an infielder, Johnston held down the outer field in his haleyon days and went up to the big leagues two or three times as a gardener before finally he made good with Brooklyn.

His first major league experience was with the White Sox in 1911. He was returned to the Birmingham club of the Southern league in mid-season. In 1918 at San Francisco Johnston established his remarkable record of 124 stolen bases and hit 304, so the White Sox took him up sgam the next spring. Johnston didn't seem to be able to strike his hatting stride and after a year in the majors the Sox sent him back to Oakland, still as an outfielder.

Joinston batted 385 for the Oaks and fielder.

Johnston batted 348 for the Oaks and then lymped to the Johnston batted .348 for the Oaks and stole S2 bases and then jumped to the Federals and it was under the peace pact that Brooklyn gained possession of the player. How Johnston happened to move in to third base after many years in the outfield we do not know. Certainly it is yather unusual and the more so because he seems to be able to hold his own with the really great third-sackers of the major leagues.

Bill Speas once put over a good one on Johnston. In the fall of 1913, when John-ston was dusting around the bases for the Seals ! Me a jack rabbit, it was thought an almost impossible feat to head him off once he made up his mind to steal a
