PLACE IN HISTORY IS GIVEN TO MINTYRE AND HEATH. Companionish of 30 Years Is Regarded as Worthy of Recognition. Each Plays Perfectly Into Other's Hand Even When They "Ad Lib." BY LEONE CASS BAER. EVERY one in a while someone prints a list of famous affinities, beginning with ham and eggs, going on down the line through rock and rye, beer and skittles, Antony and Cleo, Venus and Adonis, coffee and slinkers, onward and upward, Napoleon and Josephine, drunk and disorderly, "republicanism and prosperity, Damon and Pythias and so on ad infinitum. In the list of famous companions of history should go the names of James McIntyre and Thomas K. Heath, inseparable for some 30 years. Doesn't the union of McIntyre's lowly, humble, self-effacing darkey with Heath's pompous and flashily cultured dignitary of fine raiment and original vocabulary in earnest argument answer completely Noah Webster's idea that an affinity is an attraction that exists in various degrees between different elements causing them, when brought together under proper conditions, to form a new condition? They have been mental affinities for so long that each plays perfectly into the other's hands even when they "ad lib," that is make up stuff as they go along. All the time they are putting in fresh jokes or trying old ones on unsuspecting public. It's the old ones they calculate that get the laughs. Just now the two ebullient jokersmiths are interested in politics. "I am a dyed-in-the-wool democrat," says Thomas Heath, "and to show you what I think of my party I am going to vote for Harding. I have been a loyal supporter of democracy all my life, but this season I have changed clear through. Changing politics, I find, like a change of linen; you feel sort of refreshed and more self-respecting afterward." James McIntyre says he believes in personal liberty and while he never has made the mistake of underestimating the strength of the prohibition party, he still has visions of dislodging it and its activities by electing congressmen of liberal ideas. "I never did like whisky, never touched it even in the westiest days, but I certainly did like my mug of beer," says Mr. Heath, "just because a lot of people, irresponsible, cannot look out for themselves, a whole nation has to be prohibited from having its beer. That is not my idea of individual rights and privileges. "The actors' absentee voters' act, passed by the New York assembly, gives us traveling actor folk chances to vote when absent from home on professional business. That is provided we claim New York state as our residence. Men and women of the theater by the thousands keep abreast of politics, and are a power that can work great good for themselves as individuals and for general society."

In the Public Try This Test on Your Glasses! Can you see to read your newspaper with perfect ease and also perceive objects at a greater distance? Or, must you peer over your reading glasses or remove them entirely if you wish to see at a distance? If you cannot see both near and distant objects satisfactorily with the same pair of glasses, then you need Kryptoks, the invisible bifocals. Kryptoks combine near and distant vision in one single pair of lenses, without the CONSPICUOUS LINE, SEAM OR HUMP so common to old-style double-vision glasses. COLUMBIAN OPTICAL COMPANY FLOYD F. BROWER, Mgr. "Any lens in 60 minutes" 145 Sixth ANTI-VACCINE FOES GROW Social Workers of Oregon Oppose Bill Up in November. The Social Workers' association of Oregon has gone on record as opposing the anti-vaccination bill, which will be voted on in the November election. The legislative committee of the association reports that the passage of such a bill would be a backward step, in that it would make possible the removal of all safeguards now thrown around the citizen and the children of the community in matters of health. The committee approves the present methods of enforcing the laws on vaccination in Portland. Mothers to Banquet Veterans. KELSO, Wash., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Service men of Kelso will be banqueted on Armistice day by the mothers of service men, organized at a meeting last night. —It Continues Today— A MANUFACTURER'S GREAT SALE ON MEN'S and BOYS' CLOTHING THE BROWNSVILLE WOOLEN MILLS Makes a Sweeping Reduction 1/4th or 25% Off on All Prices! This is an over-production sale. We have on hand hundreds of Suits and Overcoats, the output of many months from our big factory. Recent publicity given to "lower prices" has caused merchants throughout the country to cancel their orders. As a result of this—we have placed this entire stock on sale in all of our five big stores. It means that we must dispose of this surplus stock or shut down our factory, or run on part time at the most. Our prices have always been lower than other stores because of our "Mill-to-Man" methods. Now that we have cut our prices 25% on top of that—you can appreciate that we are actually selling hundreds of Suits and Overcoats for less than wholesale—and many below cost! This is a sale that the public has long wanted—and the hundreds of old and new customers who bought clothing in our five big stores since Wednesday is sufficient proof that in this sale you get more than your money's worth.
