Farmer Aid Asked.

Bankers can and should aid farmers by assisting in establishment of cooperative warehousing and seiling or-ganizations. Chairman Joseph Hirsch of the agricultural commission of the association, declared in presenting the commission's report.

Besides urging revision of tax laws, restoration of liberty bonds prices more nearly to par value and development of an "intelligent and compotent" consular service in foreign countries to aid American exporters, Sol Wexter of J. S. Bache & Co., New York, told the bankers the public must be enlightened on the value of a money center such as Wall street.

The McFadden bill proposing a tax en gold used in industry and the aris to be paid to the mining companies to atimulate production was attacked and defended before the association. A special committee appointed to atudy the measure submitted a report study the measure submitted a report vigorously opposing the bill as an attack on "a basic element of the gold standard," while Representative McFadden, author of the bill, defended it, declaring that the addition of new gold to the nation's reserve would assist deflation and stimulate a healthy return to normal. A mo-tion that Mr McFadden's remarks be received with thanks and filed with the reports of the convention waz defeated. The convention then adopt-committee.

The special committe in its report contended that gold miners were only one of the many industrial sufferers from the war and might well look forward to a return of an industrial situation which would more than compensate for their present stringency.

Mr. McFadden denied the proposed bill was a blow at the gold standard, maintaining that its enactment would be accepted abroad as evidence of the determination of the United States to strengthen its gold reserve.
