BY MARK SULLIVAN.

But if President Wilson insists on his present attitude this could not lone and there would be four months' delay before a start can be made.

There undoubtedly is a statute that nakes it a crime for any American itizens to have dealings with the representative of a foreign government about an issue pending between that foreign government and our own. The statute was passed, by the way, in Washington's time at a period when the United States-was in the same kind of frenzied political ex-citement that we now have on the Pence, who is about 50 years old, same kind of issue an issue of for- came to Portland from Detroit, Mich., eign entanglements. The conversations would seem to be a perfect analogy to Senater Harding's recent case, even assuming that the Frenchman in this case was a formal representative of the French government. Government Has Only Right.

It is undoubtedly not only an obligation of statute, but also an obligation of propriety, that no foreign government shall deal directly with the leaders of party or with anyone else except the government. On the other hand, President Wilson himself in his Life-savers give exhibition tonight, Page 10. relations with foreign governments has most certainly not merely infringed but flouted the precise rules which he now cites to punish Senator Harding.
