

HOSEWIVES HEAR LIVELY WORD TILT

Women's Council Queries Dan Kellaheer.

CANDIDATE IS SPEAKER

Mrs. Alexander Thompson Questions Mr. Kellaheer's Ability to Lower Carfares.

Mrs. Alexander Thompson and Dan Kellaheer engaged in a lively tilt at the meeting of the Housewives' Council yesterday afternoon. When Mrs. Thompson challenged Mr. Kellaheer's ability to reduce the street car fare.

"We want to know just how you can make good your promises," said Mrs. Thompson. "We are in favor of reducing carfare, if possible, but we want to know how it is possible."

"I don't think that would happen," said Mr. Kellaheer. "That won't do," said several women, all speaking at once. "We want to know right now," said Mrs. George Williams.

After the president, Mrs. J. C. Othus, had read the order, Mr. Kellaheer said that he would attack the Portland Railway, Light & Power company in connection with the rate on the company would admit that it had broken its contract.

"What would you do about the public service commission?" queried Mrs. Thompson. "The commission could be abolished by vote of the people," answered Mr. Kellaheer.

"I don't think that would happen," said Mrs. Thompson. "I don't think that would happen," said Mrs. Kellaheer had stated that the press of Portland and the courts as well were controlled by the Portland Railway Light & Power company. Mrs. Thompson asked if Mr. Kellaheer was going to put all the big papers out of business.

"It might be nice," she said, "but can you do it?" "Mr. Kellaheer did not answer the question directly.

Mr. Kellaheer was the only candidate for mayor who appeared before the club in person yesterday. George W. Caldwell spoke briefly in favor of Herbert Gordon for mayor.

S. B. Houston, the first speaker of the afternoon appeared in behalf of the state market commission act. He spoke of the dangers from the non-partisan league, explaining that the proposed measure will be of benefit both to the producers and consumers, and will contract the league workers.

He told of the operation of a similar bill in California, where the producers have been greatly benefited. He read many letters from co-operative associations in California, and in California, endorsing the measure.

The question of whether the office of state market director should be appointed or elective was discussed by the members of the council, but no vote was taken. Mr. Houston asked the appointive office, saying that he believed the governor was the man to select the best person for the position.

Mrs. Thompson spoke briefly on the measures on the state ballot, giving both sides of the question at issue. The council had intended yesterday to adopt resolutions to be presented to the business meeting.

The president has called a special meeting for tomorrow afternoon to be held at 2 o'clock in room H of the Central Library, when resolutions will be passed. Mrs. Othus asks all members to be present.

FURS AND MYSTERY

By N. M. UNGAR.

In this article we might aptly change the title to Furs and Fabrics, for really there is no mystery about the reason a dealer permits a customer to leave his store with a coat of Grimer, and the impression—perhaps subtly or otherwise created—that she has a coat of fur. Long credit is his. Quite clever imitations of seal, nutria and beaver are often but plush cloth fabrics.

There is but one place to buy furs. That is a fur store of the first class. For furs must wear commensurate with the amount of money invested, and therefore only a master of fur trade should build your fur apparel. This transaction only begins when you pay your money, and as you are satisfied with the durability of the fur and feel that it has worn you good money's worth.

Your money cannot buy more than true worth. The feeling of mental satisfaction, the security of the knowledge that other people's analysis of your coat will reveal their respect for your judgment and good taste, the purchase of your fur-piece, will be justified, if you choose the shop of the experienced and reliable furrier.

Fabric imitations, when sold as such, will serve a purpose. But to the person who possesses a genuine fur comes the feeling that it is the last word in refined luxuriousness.

Whether you buy the moderately priced pelts or those of the rarest and fur-bearing animals, be sure and ask for a guarantee that the garment is as represented on the label.
