

CRANK MUM FOR 10 YEARS MAY BE BUMB

Convict, Prison Term Ended, May Never Speak.

HEARING DECLARED GOOD

Freak Says Tongue Got Him Into Trouble Years Ago, and Decade of Silence Follows.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 27.—(Special.)—Patrick J. Hanley, recorded at Lynn police headquarters as "Corky," returned to this city tonight to greet what old-time friends he could find, after completing this morning a sentence in the state prison at Charles-town of 25 years for stealing shoes valued at a quarter of a century ago at $84. His return was made by automobile after a day of sightseeing in Boston, a ride in the subway, another on an elevated train and later on a steam train.

Fascinated by his experiences and the sights he witnessed, all of which were new to him, he failed to break the silence he has maintained for ten years. His talk broke at the prison followed the discovery in his cell of an outfit from which lead half-dollars had been cast, the pieces of "money" being used to pay bets on sporting events held in the prison yard.

Conversation with Hanley during the trip was carried on by the use of pencil and paper pad. The last message he gave Warden Shattuck at the prison was "Do not let any one in my shack. Things worth $10,000 are in there."

Vandeville Offer Declined.—Just prior to writing that message and while he was darning the suit of civilian clothing in place of the prison gray, Hanley asked in writing if he could stay at the prison a few days longer in order that he might finish up his junk collecting business. During the last few years he has collected and sold to newspaper editors and other articles which might bring him a few cents. He still has some in his shack which he wishes to junk, but they have not been taken. In the shack also are five fancy pillow slips worth $5 each, watch fobs and other articles, which Hanley said he would like to sell to porters that they might start a museum.

Before arriving home tonight Hanley received an offer to go on the vandeville stage. He agreed to sign a contract and depart tomorrow, but his sisters would not agree. They are to keep him at their home in a suburb of Lynn and see that he does not find any of his old-time friends, who are police records. The sisters do not believe that he is feigning dumbness. The nearest he has come to speaking was when he made a guffural sound as he viewed an airplane sailing over Lynn harbor.

Hanley was quoted under the habitual criminal act after being found guilty of stealing shoes from the Horlick shoe factory in this city. Twice before he had been convicted of petty larceny. Since his commitment to prison the law under which he was sentenced has been repealed. He is 46 years old.

During his term in prison his hair has turned white, but he told a reporter tonight that he never felt better. He expects to find a job in a few days, although he has received considerable money while in prison and his relatives express a willingness to care for him.

Silence Follows Reprimand.—Corky did not become a human sphinx until after he had been in jail 15 years. There was a baseball game at the prison, Corky had a baseball on one team. He lost. The prisoner who won found that the half dollar was counterfeit and he was reprimanded. He searched and several lead half dollars and a plaster-of-paris mould were found. Corky was reprimanded.

It was then that he shut up like a clam. He hasn't spoken since. He would not talk today to reporters or warden. All efforts to make him speak were futile. "I'll tell you what Corky," said Warden Shattuck one day, "if you will speak out like a man and ask me to do it I will ask the parole board to grant you a pardon." Corky grinned, but didn't reply. "He can hear all right, and he answers all questions by writing upon paper. "Come on, Corky, speak up," he has been urged.

"My tongue has gotten me into too much trouble already," is his stock answer, written, of course.

PROBE INTO CONDUCT OF MARINES BEGINS

General Barnett and Major McClellan Witnesses.

CORRECTION GIVEN COURT

Ex-Commandant of Corps Declares Revised Figures Show 2250, Not 3250, Hatties Killed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Public investigation of the conduct of American marines in Haiti was begun today by the special naval court of inquiry, with the examination of Brigadier-General George Barnett, ex-commandant of the marine corps, and Major Edmund N. McClellan of the corps' historical division. The court will meet again tomorrow, but no further witnesses have yet been summoned.

General Barnett told the court that his charge of "indiscriminate killing" of natives in Haiti which prompted the inquiry had been based on the record of the court martial of two marine corps privates, Walter E. Johnson and John J. McQuilkin, Jr. He corrected a previous announcement that a total of 3250 natives had been killed in action or otherwise during the five years of American occupation of the republic, explaining that an error in arithmetic made in the historical section of the corps resulted in this announcement. He had learned since, he said, that the total was 2250.

Casualty Table Submitted.—Major McClellan, in whose office the casualty list was compiled, submitted a table showing the recorded number of bandits killed. He said that very few met death otherwise than in action. Native casualties in 1915, the first year of the occupation, were placed at 212; those in 1916 at 50; in 1917 two; 1918, 35; in 1919, 1861, and in 1920, 90.

The witness explained that the large casualty list last year was due to attacks in force by the bandits on Port au Prince and to campaigns conducted in the hills.

Barnett Explains Meaning.—General Barnett said he wanted it made clear that his letter of last year to Colonel John H. Russell in which the reference was made to "indiscriminate killing" of natives was based only on the record of the trial. He added, however, that the statement of counsel and testimony in those cases so shocked him that he had directed further investigation. He reiterated that by "indiscriminate killing" he had not meant "promiscuous" killings, but rather execution "without judgment."

In marking the letter to Colonel Russell personal and confidential, General Barnett said he had two reasons. The first was that he had already written an official letter to Secretary Daniels covering the case. The second was he did not want it to become "public property."

WIFE MURDERER SUICIDE

OLAF ANDERSON HANGS SELF IN ASTORIA JAIL.

Letter From Sweden Says Aunt and Sister Are Confined in Asylum There.

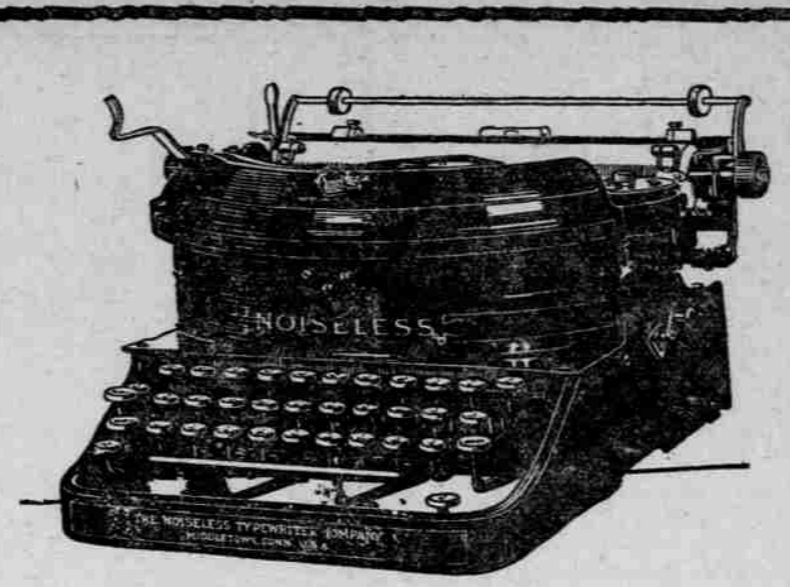

ASTORIA, Or., Oct. 27.—(Special.)—Olaf Anderson, confessed wife murderer, hanged himself in his cell at the county jail today.

The body was found about 9:40 by William Young, a trusty. Anderson knotted a towel about his neck, tied it to the grating of his cell door and strangled himself by raising his feet and holding himself suspended in the air. When found his hands were resting on the grating and his knees were bent, but his toes touched the floor.

Anderson threw his wife, Minnie Cecil Anderson, into the Columbia river near Tongue Point while on a picnic with their two little children August 10. He said at first that his wife committed suicide by jumping overboard, but the true story of the tragedy was told by the 4-year-old son, and later Anderson made a confession admitting his crime.

An official report was received this morning from the superintendent of an insane asylum at Vastervid, Sweden, saying that an aunt and sister of Anderson are confined in that institution.
