UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—Washington prospects for the Oregon game have steadily improved during the week and have raised enthusiasm on the Washington campus to breaking pitch. A large number of students accompanied the team to Eugene, a special car being reserved for last night and a large number leaving before that time.

Twenty-six men made the trip with the squad, including the trainer, manager and property men. The team left Thursday afternoon following an enthusiastic rally on the Washington campus.

The only probable change in the lineup this week is the shifting of Jimmy Bryan to fullback. Bryan has been on the line all year at guard and tackle and the change comes as a surprise. He is fairly fast and combines weight and driving power to advantage, ripping up the scrub line almost at will.

Line Considered Strong. Coach Allison has not definitely named the other men that will play for the Sun Dodgers, but it is practically certain that Ed Brown, Dalley or possibly Butler will be at halfback. Johnny Wilson will run the team as difficult as Bryan will complete the backfield.

On the line Captain Faulk and Bob Abel are playing. Ingram and Clark tackle. Hobbs is at center. With Smith at center this line presents a defense that Oregon will have difficulty in breaking. Ingram and Smith are going particularly well.

Team Morale Is High. A general speeding up of play and more open work on the offensive has characterized practice this week. The eleven men returned to Eugene did against the Cards, seeming to have regained the fight and teamwork that has been lacking.

Regarding Washington's chances, Coaches Allison and Solon are non-committal, contenting themselves with the statement that the Sun Dodgers will put up the best game of the season. The team left confident of victory and determined to win in last conference game of the season at any cost.

Oregon Lineup Is Trifle Heavier in Game Today.

Teams That Meet at Eugene Are Pretty Evenly Matched.

THE average weight of the University of Oregon football eleven, which plays the University of Washington at Eugene today is 173 pounds, compared to 171½ pounds for Washington. There is little to choose from between the two in the way of team weight and its distribution.

Oregon's forwards average 179 pounds, and the Washington forwards tip the beam at exactly the same average. The Oregon backfield averages 162½ pounds, to 158 pounds for Washington.

It is now almost certain that Reinhart will not be able to play in the quarter for Oregon, which means that Bill Steers will be shifted from half to quarter. There is also a possibility that Loughlin will play center, as Brick Leslie, the veteran passer, is laid out temporarily from tonsillitis.

BIG PRE-GAME RALLY HELD

Eugene Goes Wild in Anticipation of Football Contest.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—Tanks armed with glaring headlights and fireworks lighting the whole business section of Eugene, firewagons, trucks, composed the biggest pre-game rally ever held by the university, according to many alumni who are visiting the city.

Nearly the whole city of Eugene turned out to see the big celebration and all traffic was kept off the main street, giving it over to the student jubilee. Amid the roars of "Oregon, Rah, Rah, Oregon," and glaring lights "Oregon spirit" reached its zenith tonight, the evening before one of the biggest games of the year.

OREGON PRIMED FOR BATTLE

Lemon-Yellow Warriors Ready to Meet Sun Dodgers Today.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Lemon-Yellow warriors were primed tonight for the battle against the Sun Dodgers on Hayward field tomorrow. The men went through a light workout for the last time today.

GREAT BONFIRE MARKS FOOTBALL RALLY AT UNIVERSITY OF OREGON.

PILE PREPARED AND READY FOR LAST NIGHT'S LIGHTING.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The annual football rally at the University of Oregon, which was held at the center of the monster rally held tonight, was a success. Hundreds of alumni and university students gathered on the baseball field after the pep rally to listen to the inspirational talks by former students. The entire streets were given over to the rally and were lit up with red and green fire and slogans of the different organizations.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the university rose high amid the turmoil of the celebration. The rally was the first event of the home-coming week end.

has an excellent line. Coach "Shy" Huntington said it is anybody's game. Coach Huntington tonight had not decided his line-up. "Brick" Leslie, the regular center, has been in the infirmary since the first of the week and was released only yesterday. If he is not able to start, Bert Laughlin probably will take his place. The guard at which Edward played is another place which "Shy" has to fill which is worrying him. Either "Scotty" Strachan or Floyd Shields may start. The other line men probably will be the same as last week. Brown at the ends, "Spike" Leslie and "Tiny" Shields at the tackles and Carl Maats at guard. In the backfield there may be several changes. "Shy" may start his old backfield or Reinhart, Hill, Steers and King, but some of these men are not in the best of condition. Neither Reinhart nor Hill may be able to start. "In" has been playing. Coach Chapman and Tony Jacobberger to fall back on in that case.

WILLAMETTE OFF TO GAME AT TACOMA TODAY.

College of Puget Sound Is Believed to Be in Better Shape After Two Weeks of Rest.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY, Salem, Or., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—A rousing send-off by the varsity band and a gathering of the entire student body was given Coach Mathews and a squad of 17 football players who boarded the train last night for Tacoma, where they will buck the line tomorrow against the College of Puget Sound eleven.

The sound evening, according to reports, has placed everything on the line and a two weeks' layoff has brought the Grizzlies back into tip-top shape for the game. Scouffsky, end, was the only regular who was not in condition to accompany the squad on the present trip, although Ramsey will not be in at guard unless necessity demands it.

Following are the men who left with Coach Mathews last night, the first named men in each case being the probable selections for starting the battle: Center, Ealm; Bird's guards, White, Nickel, Ramsey; tackles, Basler, Lawson, Rarey; ends, Barnes, Lyman, Gansan; quarter, Irvine; halves, Rarey, Zeller, Power; fullback, Watpat, Sherwood. In case of injury to Irvine, Power will likely be Mathews' choice for the pilot berth.

A light workout was held yesterday afternoon prior to the Salem high school game and a good signal practice will be in order at the stadium some time today, in order to acquaint the men with the field and loosen up the stiff muscles.

LASKER GIVES UP TRIP PLAN

Originator of Civilian Control Plan Is "Through With Baseball."

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A. D. Lasker, originator of the Lasker plan of baseball control, tonight let it become known that he had given up a trip to Panama with President-elect Harding to attend today's baseball meeting and that Senator Harding had requested him to remain at the meeting here rather than join him in the trip southward.

Senator Harding called me by telephone a few days ago to ask me to join him, but when I told him of the meeting scheduled for today he told me by all means to stay here. He said he was very much interested in baseball and hoped everything would be settled peacefully.

WASHINGTON'S BIG STICK IS RECOVERED

University's Treasure Is Found in Portland.

THEFT IS MYSTERIOUS

Express Company Sends Relic, Insured for $1000, Back to Its Owners Under Guard.

The "Big Stick" of the University of Washington, which disappeared from the Washington campus Wednesday night, was retrieved Thursday night at the Portland office of the American Express company and was sent back to Seattle under strong guard. The club, which was one of the chief treasures of the Washington university, was en route to the University of Oregon at Eugene when recovered. The relic was insured for $1000 and the express company was as eager as the Washington students to prevent its loss again.

The O. A. C. beaver, another of the college relics, which was missed from its usual resting place at the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house, at Seattle, has also been found and its erstwhile custodians have begun a diligent search for it. The beaver, originally the property of the student body of Oregon Agricultural college, was appropriated some years ago from that institution by the University of Washington. Suspicion pointed boldly at the University of Oregon campus as a good place to look for the missing beaver.

BEAVER ON EUGENE CAMPUS

Animal Said to Be in Safe Keeping and There to Stay.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—The Oregon Agricultural college beaver that was taken from the Oregon Delta house at the University of Washington two days ago has mysteriously made its appearance on the Eugene campus. No one seems to know from whence the beaver was taken or anything about it. The fact remains, however, that the animal is here and, according to certain students, it is in safe keeping.

The Washington stick which was taken at the same time the beaver was taken, is on its way home, it is believed. It is rumored that the stick never passed the Portland express office, although nothing definite is known in Eugene.

The Oregon man who brought the beaver to the campus tell a rather strange story of sleeping under the train banks and generally staying out until arriving in Eugene. The stick was of such size that it could not be carried and so was expressed, probably in its own home now, or at least that is the belief of the students on the campus.

The Oregon man who brought the beaver to the campus nearly obtained the much-prized Washington big stick shows carefully laid plans to bring it to Eugene. Two Oregon students left for Seattle several days ago. When they arrived on the Seattle campus they visited every house, generally finding a sleeping place in a trunkload of trunks and expressed it top shape for the game.

Washington men learned of their loss and got out a search warrant, which was served on the train in Portland. The Washingtonians immediately followed it and in Portland obtained a federal injunction which prevented the express company from shipping the prize to its destination.

The Washington students in Eugene planned to have the iron "hook" here to display at the rally, or at least to bring on the field during the game. It is believed that the hook was sent by express to Eugene by 200 University of Washington students as consignors. These men, it is said, must appear at Eugene before the prize can be delivered. The original plan was to chain it to eight Seattle bus stop signs to the Oregon rooters. It is not known whether or not the hook will appear at the game.

SIR BARTON OWNER ACCUSED

Racing Commission Charges Attempt to Embarrass It.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 12.—The Maryland Racing commission in a formal statement today charged Commander J. K. Leese, owner of Sir Barton and other noted race horses, with having sought to embarrass the commission by refusing to allow Jockeys Carroll Shilling to ride at Pimlico yesterday, after he had been temporarily reinstated by the racing commission's order. Shilling was suspended by the New York Jockey club for alleged rough riding at Havre de Grace in 1912.

That statement declared that Ross "has asked repeatedly for Shilling's reinstatement."

Commander Ross was quoted as saying that there would be no attempt to have Shilling ride in Maryland this season.

CHEHALIS TEAM IS JOLTED

Vancouver Springs Surprise by Winning Game, 64 to 0.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 12.—(Special.)—Some enthusiastic football fan of Chehalis waited until the final of Chehalis waited until some time last evening, when he thought the game would be over, and then called Vancouver and asked to be connected with some one who would tell him the football score between Vancouver and Chehalis.

Central connected with one who knew and he replied, "64 to 0." "In whose favor was it, Chehalis, I presume?" "No, Vancouver." A silence and then the inquirer fairly asked, "Was anyone hurt?" He was told that no one was injured, and hung up the receiver.

The Vancouver players had arranged a dancing party for the Chehalis players and their friends last night following the game, and though they did not leave the city for home until 11 o'clock, they did not show up at the dance hall.

YALE-PRINCETON BIG GAME IN EAST TODAY

Rival Is Slight Favorite Over Old Eli.

HARVARD, BROWN PLAY

Pennsylvania-Dartmouth and Cornell and Columbia Contests Also Draw Interest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Chief interest in the eastern football games tomorrow centers in the Yale-Princeton contest. Several others, including the Pennsylvania-Dartmouth, Pittsburgh-Washington and Jefferson, Cornell-Columbia and Harvard-Brown conflicts will attract local attention.

Princeton enters the contest a slight favorite over Yale and with an excellent record of victories. All football form, however, is likely to go awry in the Princeton-Yale game as has been demonstrated time and again when these ancient rivals clash.

It has been laid down as a football axiom that Yale never is worse than the money wagers against either Princeton or Harvard and with an occasional exception this is true. Because of her impressive early season record and tie with Harvard last week, Princeton has been quoted in certain quarters as a one-sided favorite over Yale.

Princeton, under the coaching of Roper, has undoubtedly developed a fast, well drilled machine with an attack built around several players of individual talent and ability. Lourie, Garrity, Keck and Murray fit in well with the system of quick dashing runs, ball following, blocking and forward passing. The offensive appears to be better developed than the defensive.

Against this machine, Yale will hurl eleven of great potential ball power, but which has shown little ability to take advantage of its full strength. Whether Yale under the rivalry and stress of facing Princeton will suddenly rise to the full realization of its strength and batter its way to victory by sheer power, only the game will demonstrate.

FANS GATHER AT PRINCETON

Final Preparations Are Made for Big Gridiron Battle Today.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—The Princeton football team today completed its preparations for the annual gridiron struggle with Yale tomorrow. The squad received only a brief workout and Coach Roper expressed satisfaction with the showing of his men.

Princeton tonight received the advance guard of what was expected to be one of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a football game here. Arrangements have been made for seating of 52,000 spectators in the stadium and it was said several thousand more would be accommodated with standing room.

Princeton was a slight favorite in the betting tonight with Yale supposedly the odds on. There were very few wagers placed at these odds, however, most bettors and Coach Roper expressed holding out for even money.

Yale has suffered one defeat this season, at the hands of the strong Boston college eleven, while Princeton to date remains undefeated.

Harvard-Yale Numbers Dropped

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—The players of the Harvard football team will not be numbered in the game with Yale, for in any other contests, Coach Yale has announced to-night. He said the principal reason was to protect the system of play in which Harvard has been years in building.
