

BEST BULL CALF AT SALE BRINGS $1650

Prices at Auction Are Considered Disappointing.

SALEM COW NETS $1525

Prize Winners Are on Display at Night Horse Show Parade and Further Sales Are Billed.

As the first of the series of sales that will feature the Pacific International Livestock exposition, purebred Jerseys of prize-winning strains were sent through the sales ring yesterday afternoon. The top price of the day was $1650, paid for a top-notch bull calf. On the average, prices were a bit disappointing, but merely reflected business conditions of the present, it was pointed out.

The record price of $1650 at the Jersey sale was paid by Fox brothers, Silveston, Or., for Old Man's Darling, Cutbert, second, 10-month-old Jersey bull calf, owned by Pickard brothers, Marion, Or. Of the 22 blue-blooded Jerseys placed on auction, the first 28 brought $12,790, an average of over $450 each.

Gwendola Rosaire, 8-year-old cow, owned by L. P. Larden, Salem, brought $1525, second high money of the afternoon. N. C. Sorrensen, of Alaska, Wash., was high bidder. The same cow sold last May for $2050 at F. C. Doerflinger's auction at Salem. An eight-month bull calf, Stillton St. Mawer, Frank Lynn, Perrydale, Or., was bid in by H. M. Bana, Arago, Or., for $1360, the third highest price paid during the afternoon. A capacity crowd filled the arena, and the sales pavilion and bidding was keen, though spasmodic.

Washington Takes Prize.

Washington captured the grand prize for the finest cattle herd at the 1920 exposition, an event featuring a herd picked from all the cattle of the various breeds on exhibit. The Oregon group was second at the California third. Judging of the exhibit was completed yesterday afternoon on schedule, with the exception of the Jerseys and Guernseys. So great was the number of entries in these that it was impossible for the judges to finish in time. The awards in the remaining classes in these two breeds will be made this morning.

U. C. C. C. grand champion steer of the exhibition, and all prize winners in the fat class cattle, ewes and sheep will be auctioned in the main arena this morning at 10 o'clock. Strong competition is expected from prominent hotel men, packers and buyers of the city.

Today's Guernsey sale, which includes shipments from eight of the most prominent breeders of the northwest, will begin at 1 o'clock in the dairy sales arena. The sale is under the auspices of the Oregon Guernsey Cattle club. Practically every county in the state is represented at the sale. Heifers and young bulls of finest stock are included in the offerings. Shorthorns of the breeding type will be auctioned at the same time in the breeding stock arena. The finest herds of the northwest are represented among this year's exhibitors and much interest in this sale is evident among beef breeders.

Prize Winners Parade.

A parade of prize-winning Holsteins and Herefords was a feature of the night horse show. The entire arena seemed almost a moving herd of great beasts, groomed to look their very best as the crowned victors of the 1920 exposition.

"The quality of the Jerseys at the Pacific International is as good as any that I've seen in 30 years of judging," declared George W. Sisson, Jr., Potlatch, N. Y., director of the American Jersey Cattle club, who came from 3000 miles to judge the Jerseys here. Mr. Sisson was an interested spectator at the Jersey auction and expressed surprise that higher bids were not forthcoming. In fact, Mr. Sisson would have been more than an interested spectator if he had been nearer home. He was specially impressed with Gwendola Rosaire and said she sold far below her worth, according to eastern valuations.

40,000 See Show.

Total attendance for the week reached approximately 40,000 yesterday, although the rain of the last three days has kept records down. The three remaining days and especially the matinee horse show Saturday are expected to boost the total figures to 100,000.

The Guernsey breeders banqueted last night at the Benson and the Shorthorn men celebrated at the Multnomah. A meeting of the Mohair Growers' association was held at the Board of Trade building last night for the purpose of launching a movement to put the goat raisers on the map before the next exposition date. Honors among the Arizona breeders were taken by E. W. Van Tassel, Wenatchee, Wash., whose Willowmoor Peter Pan 25th and the Belle of Wenatchee, were champion and grand champion sire and cow, respectively.

F. H. Porter, Harb, Or., made a clean sweep in Red Polled championships in this breed. In the Jerseys, Walkiki farm, Spokane, took the junior and grand championship in the sire class with Esther Pilot of Walkiki, junior

Resinol does wonders for sick skins

That itching, burning skin-trouble which keeps you scratching and digging, is a source of embarrassment, as well as of torment to you. Why don't you get rid of it by using Resinol Ointment? Physicians prescribe it constantly. In most cases, it stops itching instantly and heals eruptions promptly. It is very easy and economical to use.

Sold by all druggists. Resinol Ointment should usually be used by Resinol Soap.

Large numbers are viewing the splendid exhibits from all over the state which are now in place in the Oregon state exhibit chamber. Oregon building, where the first annual Oregon corn show is in full swing. All are agreeably surprised at the remarkable displays, which reveal the fact that this is fast becoming a big corn-raising state.

While it is not so generally known as it might be, Oregon produces quite a large crop of corn, the 1920 acreage being 70,000, with a grain production of 420,000 bushels. Practically every county in the state is represented in the fine exhibits, which have been tastefully arranged and are open to the inspection of the general public daily. They will be in place for 30 days, during which the members of the state corn show committee are hoping that all who possibly can will visit the rooms and see what the state can produce. There is no admission charge.

ROAD UPKEEP DECLINED

REPAIR OF HIGHWAYS CAUSES CITY-COUNTY DEBATE.

Each Thinks Other Might Maintain Traffic Arteries Out of Its Own Share of Funds.

Instead of taking over all county roads within the city limits, as suggested by the board of county commissioners, the city council will recommend that the county take over and maintain all city streets which are main highways within the city limits.

No official action has been taken by the city council, although City Commissioner Barbur has outlined the plan to the city council and received tentative endorsement of the plan.

The majority of the county roads which the county commissioners wanted the city to maintain were arteries leading into the city, according to Mr. Barbur, and in addition there are a number of streets, such as Sandy boulevard, which cannot be classified as city streets, and it is these that the city will request the county to take under its wing.

Commissioner Barbur argued that the county received between $600,000 and $700,000 annually for road building and maintenance, compared with $30,000 which the city received to care for street maintenance.

ACCUSED PAYS 2 FINES

Defendant Assessed for Offenses of Self and Confederate.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 17.—(Special) Percy L. Bartlett was tried before Cedric Miller, justice of the peace, Tuesday, on a charge of having venison in his possession.

He said that he was in the mountains with a horse and when coming out met a man who had killed the deer. The hunter offered him half of the deer if he would pack it out on the horse, and this he consented to do.

"Well, that being the case, I will fine you $50 and costs and will fine the fellow who killed the deer $50, and you can pay both fines," drily said the justice.

The fine was paid and the judge was not informed who killed the deer.

Spokane Horses Entered.

Miss Cornette Flak of Spokane, Wash., enters and also rides her wonderful five-gaited Arabian, Mr. Fleming also spoke of Clagstone as nearly a perfect specimen of the equine race.

Miss Eulalia Maiden, also of Spokane, rides her pet five-gaited Chester K. Another animal worthy of a more extensive mention.

I cannot go on and mention even a 30th part of the high-class animals and their owners present. I wish I could, for I dislike to pick out from a couple of million dollars' worth of horses a dozen or less. The thing for the reader to do is to go out to the night show and see many wonderful spectacles of stunts performed every evening. I suppose you love the horse? I hope so, for if you do not you are—well, scarcely human!

City Not Responsible for Injuries.

That the City of Portland is not responsible for injuries Dora Vandergriff received in 1918, when she tripped over a coal chute lid in the sidewalk in front of the Alder hotel, was the opinion given yesterday by Circuit Judge Kavanaugh. He said:

OLD PLUVE WASTES HIS TEARS UPON MARVELOUS HORSE SHOW

Famous Owners of Noted Animals Are Paving Way Here for Most Brilliant Yearly Exhibition of Prize Winners Ever Assembled.

BY ADDISON BENNETT.

OLD MAN PLUVE still was shedding tears, very wet tears, in this section yesterday and it was well that the animals and humans at the livestock show in North Portland were well housed. Of course we expect rain in this neck of the woods about this time of the year and our expectations usually are gratified—often more than gratified—but we do think Jupe is overdoing things slightly this year. However, let's be optimistic enough to look through the clouds and the "mist" and see bright sunshine as a finale of the great show.

I wonder how many Portland folk really and truly realize that the night horse shows are the best ever held on the Pacific slope? I wonder how many of them realize that in the five-gaited thoroughbreds there are 14 of the best animals in that class ever assembled in one ring in this country outside of the great New York and Chicago shows?

Mr. Fleming then went over the entries and the names of famous owners, animals and riders now participating in the nightly events. They may not have them set down in the proper order of merit. I rather wish you to think my mention a sort of let me first mention a near neighbor—Mrs. Wayne W. Keyes of Tacoma. Mrs. Keyes is one of the most famous exhibitors of fancy riding and driving horses in the country. Mrs. Keyes has here her famous prize-winning five-gaited Arabian, Mr. Fleming also spoke of Clagstone as nearly a perfect specimen of the equine race.

Miss Eulalia Maiden, also of Spokane, rides her pet five-gaited Chester K. Another animal worthy of a more extensive mention.

Famous Headmaster Returns.

And there is Headmaster from Pasadena, Cal., another well-known performer, owned and entered by Revel Lindsay English of Pasadena. See how the Pasadena folk feel towards our city.

From Seattle comes Juan Sawyer, owned and entered by George E. Fleming, who has entered Silver Dora Vandergriff in the first class. Mr. Plummer also has Maxey Bingen and Halgrita the Great here and other fine animals. From Medford, Or., we have Alice K. Dare, entered by Mrs. Ruth W. Clemens. This animal, says Mr. Fleming, is at home among any prize winners.

H. S. Burnham of Colorado Springs, Colo., has entered Silver Dora Vandergriff in the first class. Silver Dora has taken away prize money in what is called the high school class.
