

MEXICO RECOGNITION WAITS EXPLANATION

Effect of Article 27 in Constitution Eyed.

U. S. UNDER PRESSURE

High Department Official Says Plea of Corporations Will Not Avail Anything.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Recognition of the new government in Mexico by the United States will be withheld, it was said today at the state department, until Mexico has made clear the effect to be given to article 27 of the Mexican constitution relating to property in Mexico.

Strong pressure of speedy recognition is being brought to bear on the department by some business and other interests, but a high officer stated emphatically today that no corporation, no group of corporations and no group of individuals was going to deliver American recognition to Mexico.

It was made clear that the United States was not demanding as a preliminary to recognition repeal of article 27, but it was stated that if the operation of laws enacted under that section were made retroactive, the American government could not accord recognition.

The United States, officials explained, is actuated by a desire to protect American interests in the southern republic, and in its study of the whole situation has invited and received from American corporations and individuals having interests in Mexico statements as to conditions there and the present application of Mexican laws.

Early recognition of Mexico was forecast in a statement issued at the department some weeks ago, but apparently it is not much nearer now than it was then. Whether recognition will come before the present administration at Mexico City turns over the government to President-elect Obregon on December 1, apparently still is undetermined.
