

SUSPENSION ADVANTAGES
MEMORIAL SQUAD HEAD

Sergeant Ellis Is Involved in Liquor Scandal.

2 PATROLMEN SENTENCED

Huntington, Russell and Chief of Prohibition Detail Get 30 Days Without Pay.

Suspension from the police bureau for 30 days without pay was the punishment inflicted upon Patrolmen Russell and Huntington by Mayor Baker for having an informer with liquor. Like punishment was meted out to Police Sergeant Ellis, superior officer of the two men, for failing to report the incident to the mayor or chief of police.

The suspension of the two patrolmen dated from the time they were suspended by the police efficiency board, more than a week while the suspension of Sergeant Ellis will begin on the day he returns from his vacation, which, incidentally, began when the present trouble first began to brew.

Men Have Good Records. The splendid records of Patrolmen Russell and Huntington in their years of service on the police force, together with the fact that it was established in the hearing conducted by the mayor that neither policeman dealt with the informer with a view of personal profit, but rather to increase the efficiency of the bureau in the arrest and conviction of bootleggers, saved both men from discharge.

Overzealous Act of Act. The evidence does not show that Huntington or Russell profited personally from any liquor deals which Marshal, the stool pigeon, read the mayor's decision in part. "Rather, it shows that their motive was to bring about arrests and the conviction of bootleggers by using the information thus bought from Marshal, with liquor, and their zeal as officers is the only motive for their conduct suggested by the evidence.

Marshall Given Immunity. "The vicious and unavoidable result of the men's conduct was that Marshal, himself a vicious and notorious bootlegger, was given immunity from the law. As pointed out by the assistant United States attorney, who appeared before the mayor at the conviction of Marshal was rendered impossible. He had a free hand to dispose of not only the liquor he received from the informant but any other liquor he might be able to get hold of, and was immune from interference.

Practices Declared General. The mayor in his findings brought out the fact that the accused patrolmen had excellent records, and that the practice of giving a portion of the evidence collected in arrests with informers seemed to have been more or less in effect in the whole bureau.

Sergeant Aware of Deal. In dealing with Sergeant Ellis, who was not present at the hearing, and against whom charges had not been brought, Mayor Baker pointed to the record in the trial of the two patrolmen. He declared that the uncovered evidence established the fact that Ellis was aware that Marshal obtained a portion of the liquor taken from two bootleggers by Russell and Huntington. Although Sergeant Ellis failed to report the conditions to either Mayor Baker or Chief of Police Jenkins, said Mayor Baker, who considered that a neglect of duty which could not be overlooked.

Other Decisions Rendered. R. N. Taylor, a patrolman, was found guilty of having made an improper display of his revolver and of having used profane language in making an arrest, in an opinion handed out by the mayor yesterday. Patrolman Taylor was reprimanded by the mayor and ordered back to duty because of the fact that he had already suffered suspension since October 18, without pay, and will be forced to pay a judgment of $100 as a result of a verdict brought against him in the circuit court for false arrest.

In the same order, Patrolmen Ragan and Meacham were reprimanded for a display of poor judgment. Their conduct became known through testimony offered at the Taylor hearing. According to the mayor, Ragan and Meacham, in investigating a report that moonshine liquor was being sold at a certain house, knocked at the door and when it was opened by a woman demanded that she was the chance of getting a drink.

Conduct Called Inexcusable. "There was no excuse for such action by the patrolmen, and in the information they then had or in any information afterwards obtained," read the mayor's findings. "Such conduct cannot help but bring discredit upon the police department and upon all officers thereof. Every man's home is entitled to respect, and every woman is entitled to respectful and courteous attention and treatment."

of the club, Dean Elizabeth Fox vice-president and Miss R. Louise Fitch secretary. The other members are: Miss Tina Dinsdale, Miss Mary Brownell, Miss Powell, Miss Grace Robertson and Miss Winifred Deuth. These people were stationed at different places during the war and not two did the same kind of work, nor were they at the same place. France, Roumania, Italy and Russia were countries in which these women served.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 23.—(Special.)—Plans for the Women's auxiliary of the American Legion, who will hold a bazaar at Library hall Saturday, December 4, indicate a new record for such affairs locally. The valley's most deft fancy workers have been busy for months, as have women who have a valley-wide reputation as cooks and confectioners. The following women are committees of departments: Mrs. H. L. Hasbrouck, dry-goods; Mrs. A. H. Barry, cooking; Mrs. L. L. Murphy, doll show; Mrs. F. H. Button, grab bag; Mrs. J. W. Ingalls, white elephant; Mrs. V. R. Abraham, candy; and Mrs. A. C. Costa, country store. Mrs. Murphy, who spent several seasons in charge of junior chauntains, is the only woman in charge of the Riding Hood for children visiting the bazaar. The proceeds of the bazaar will go to an American Legion building fund.

The national poster contest, conducted under the auspices of the girls' work department of the Y. W. C. A., closed November 20. Several posters were submitted by Portland high school girls, and these have been sent to field headquarters in Seattle. The best poster was by Ashland, and will receive a prize of $25 and her poster will be used in advertising Y. W. C. A. summer conferences for high school girls in 1921.

Community Service classes in folk and ethnic dancing, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Plack, will start this evening at 8:45 in the Y. W. C. A.
