

COLLEGES ON COAST AND SCHEDULES

Four-Game Basis for Football is Adopted.

FIRST PLAN IS CHANGED

Portland Is Chosen as Next Meeting Place of Pacific Coast Conference; Debate Is Heated.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 1.—(Special.)—After agreeing yesterday to a three-game football schedule for next season, based on the automatic rule in effect this year, the Pacific Coast conference brought up the whole subject again today and enacted an entirely new schedule whereby each conference college will play four conference games.

The change was made only after long and heated discussion. Luther Nichols and Fred Bohler, graduate managers of California and Washington State, respectively, were named as a committee to arrange a football schedule for the conference for the next six years, taking the 1921 schedule as the first year.

Long Trips Held to Minimum.

The two were instructed to arrange the games so that long trips will not fall upon the same teams twice during the six-year period.

Football dates for next year were announced as follows:

October 23—Washington State college vs. University of California at Berkeley; University of Oregon vs. Stanford at Palo Alto; University of Washington vs. Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis.

October 29—University of California vs. University of Oregon at Eugene; Oregon Agricultural college vs. Stanford at Palo Alto.

November 5—University of Washington vs. University of California at Berkeley; Stanford vs. Washington State college at Pullman.

November 12—University of Oregon vs. University of Washington at Seattle; Washington State vs. Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis.

November 19—University of California vs. Stanford at Palo Alto; University of Oregon vs. Oregon Agricultural college at Eugene.

November 23—Washington State college vs. University of California at Berkeley.

The 1921 coast league conference and field meet was awarded to the University of Oregon at Eugene. The date will be determined after some further discussion and put on a four-game schedule.

Under the new four-game arrangement each northern college plays both California colleges each season. One of the games is at home, the other in the north and one at home. Each northern institution has had one game a year with a southern college, alternating between them and going south this year and playing at home the next.

After once agreeing to continue this three-game schedule plan another conference was held at Eugene, Oregon, at which the conference changed its mind yesterday after some hot discussion and put on a four-game schedule.

The conference states and they are supposed to play each other in their season's "big game." Each California conference states and they are supposed to play each other in their season's "big game." SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA BARRED BY 3 SCHOOLS IN NORTHWEST

Aggies, Oregon and Pullman Fear Los Angeles Eleven Might Form "Big Three" With Berkeleyans and Stanford.

BY L. H. GREGORY.

THE real reason the Pacific coast conference at its annual meeting, just ended, declined to admit the University of Southern California to membership is a good deal different from the reason given for publication. The conference spoke of the distance to Los Angeles as an insurmountable bar to relations with Southern California. It is a handicap, all right, but the really insurmountable bar in justice to Oregon Agricultural college, University of Oregon and Washington State college want to see exactly as it is. It suits them to a "T" right now. They figure that as it is now composed the northern schools with four members hold the balance of power and can prevent the two southern varieties from dictating.

Head that in their fear of a possible "Big Three" combination between California, Stanford and the University of Washington. The latter has shown signs of not being entirely pleased with arrangements and would like to be included in a "Big Three" that would apportion the choice games to suit itself. So long as there are only two California members, this still would leave a three-to-three alignment. But with Southern California admitted, the addition of Washington to the California lineup would make it four against three.

Not that this contingency has come up. But Oregon, Oregon Agricultural college and Washington State think that it might come up, hence are determined not to play into the hands of such a combination by encouraging it to come up.

Still another ground of objection by these three to letting in Southern California is that the conference football schedule, which was drafted by the conference, is now automatic and self-adjusting. There are two conference states in each of the three conference states and they are supposed to play each other in their season's "big game." Each California member under arrangements to effect this year played two football games each season with northern teams, one at home and one at home. Each northern institution has had one game a year with a southern college, alternating between them and going south this year and playing at home the next.

After once agreeing to continue this three-game schedule plan another conference was held at Eugene, Oregon, at which the conference changed its mind yesterday after some hot discussion and put on a four-game schedule.

WEST'S GOLF RULES FOR EAST PROPOSED

Invasion by Western Association Suggested.

JANUARY 15 TO DECIDE

Changes Will Be Voted On at Annual Meeting—Some Regulations Held Not Practical.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Invasion of the east by the Western Golf association as part of a plan to bring all the golf clubs of the country under the same set of rules is proposed in amendments to the Western Golf association's constitution and by-laws submitted by mail to the directors today.

The West Pacific coast conference would include both southern California and one other college, either northern Oregon or Washington State. Leopards, tigers, cougars, panthers, bears and other jungle creatures who have been fed on raw meat for the last two months to have them sufficiently ferocious to feature in the football stadium, now have gone back to their normal diet of cigarettes.

Any suggestion made by Percy D. Hunsberr, famous as Harvard's former successful gridiron coach, is deserving of great consideration, for few men know the great American collegiate game better than Hunsberr. His suggestion is that the forward pass may reduce football to a gridiron football, and it is not without foundation of fact. There seems little doubt that Hunsberr's suggestion is a good one. Some changes must be made to better the aerial game.

It is expected that a meeting of the officials of the Pacific coast baseball league will be called within the near future in connection with the proposed new constitution. McCarthy has just returned from the east.

IT was not unusual that R.B. with its imported Sumatra wrapper, full-flavored, long-leaf filler, selling at 8 cents, should have acquired a national popularity—and because it is the same today in quality and price the public demand has grown steadily.

The automobile, flying low above the crowd, was piloted by the new French lout to luncheon at a boulevard restaurant, an afternoon which was the basis of today's inquiry.

Several men well known in sporting circles and one policeman were called before the jury.
