sequently dying. During the hour before curfew, terrorism held sway, and when the streets were emptied of civilians loud explosions and rifle and revolver shots kept up until early morning.

Fires Seen Breaking Out. The explosions appeared to come from incendiary bombs, as persons who ventured to look from their windows saw fires break out in St. Patrick's street and daylight revealed the full extent of the damage.

It was not improbable that lives were lost in the fires. Several persons connected with the destroyed houses and business premises were reported missing.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon people were just beginning to venture again into the streets; the whole city was then in contrast of the military and it was understood that the officer in command assured the populace that the military would remain on duty indefinitely to prevent further destruction. The troops were in full fighting order, pickets with machine guns being posted at all vantage points.

SCORE OF FIRES BURN OUT

Special Train With Fire Fighters Sent From Dublin to Cork.

BELFAST, Dec. 12.—A score of fires had burned themselves out in Cork by 4 P. M. At 6:30 P. M. a special train left Dublin for Cork carrying Captain Myers, chief of the Dublin brigade, and a motor engine with crew.

A deputation of the citizens of Cork, said a dispatch received here, including the Protestant bishop and the town clerk, waited on the officer commanding the Cork troops and requested him to take measures to prevent a recurrence of the appalling damage to property. He promised to send out special military patrols.

The destroyed city hall in Cork was only excelled in point of size in Ireland by Belfast's great civic building. This was the third time it had been set on fire, the first being in 1793, when a fine organ, shared the fate of the municipal premises.

No confirmation has been received here of the shooting of the brothers, but it unofficially stated that one person was killed and 31 were wounded in the ambush which resulted in the reprisals.
