SOCIETY

THE hollday week will start with the Chi Omega ball as the smart event of this evening. The party will be held in the ballroom of the Multnomah hoter and will be one of the biggest benefit festivities of the season. Many prominent society folk will attend and will entertain groups of friends. The party is for the bene-fit of the social service fund of the sorority and is claiming the interest of the alumnae from several colleges and universities.

Tomorrow the University of Oregon dance will be another event of note. It will be given in the same hotel. For Wednesday several events are scheduled, and throughout the week galety will prevail but society women and girls will take time to help in the appeal for funds for the starving children of central Europe. Mrs. W. C. Alvord and all her co-workers will devote special efforts toward making Portland's holiday offering a credit to the best and highest ideals of the Judge Rossman Remembers Those The programme was of the kind classed as popular—meaning that it did not contain popular songs, but lighter compositions suited to the likes of an everyday audience, with-out any intricate symphony number in it. Added to these popular selections were Christmas carols sung by selected voices from Portland church choirs. Taken all together, the audience liked the whole programme and stamped it with their warm approval. Now that the series of popular concerts of the Portland Symphony or-chestra has been opened so success-fully, the path is now open for other music treats of the series to follow.
