

D'ANNUNZIO IS NOT TO REMAIN IN ITALY

Poet, However, to Return All War Medals to King.

PRISONERS BEING TRADED

Order Being Maintained in Fiume by Special Police Organized by National Council.

TRIESTE, Jan. 2.—(By the Associated Press.) Captain D'Annunzio will not remain in Italy following his retirement as head of the "regency of Quarnero." It has been announced. It was declared he will go to Rome, where he will place in the hands of the king all medals awarded him during the war. Exchange of prisoners taken at Fiume began today. 143 regulars being surrendered and 100 legionnaires returned. Order was being maintained by special police organized by the national council, which the Italian government has offered a special detail of soldiers. Gabriello D'Annunzio, the poet's son, tried to enter Fiume yesterday. He was discovered by regular forces, who turned him back, threatening arrest. The provisional government of Fiume began disarmament of the legionnaires today, and the regulars entered the city tonight to collect the arms. All the poet's ships will leave the harbor tomorrow and will be taken to Pola. Within five days none of the poet's troops, with whom he had held Fiume for months, will remain and all arms in the city will have been turned over to Italy. The legionnaires will begin to leave the town January 5 and will travel in relays of 300 on special trains. All legionnaires will be enrolled with their original units. The regulars who will conduct the liquidation of D'Annunzio's forces will work quickly as possible to establish the independent state of Fiume. The provisional government is expected to hold a new election as soon as order has been restored. Fiume still is isolated.

This photograph, just arrived in the United States, is unusually interesting. Gabriele d'Annunzio, the poet-warrior, who has just surrendered Fiume, is shown in an intimate pose with his troops.

"Robbing Peter to Pay Paul"

A Little Mother Bird warbled "bye-bye" softly to her young, and flew confidently and courageously away in search of worms. A thoughtless boy cautiously climbed the tree and robbed the nest for the thrill of the moment and the satisfaction of giving fleeting joy to a companion.

A Little Human Mother left her babes tucked away fast asleep while she stepped out a moment. A wolf in sheep's clothing slipped quietly in to abduct the fairest for the satisfaction of the moneys received for his work.

So it goes, sometimes, in the lives of men. Mr. Smith bought a new suit at "a sale" price and the next day he saw the same thing advertised as "another reduction."

And so it will continue to go until the end of time. Always, there will be some innocent and confident ones without protection or who refuse proffered protection, who will suffer from this world-old System of "Robbing Peter to Pay Paul."

Most people, however, can see and recognize this unfortunate principle in the frenzy, the hysteria, the confusion, that now has seemingly come to a climax with some clothing merchants in their effort to successfully pursue The System of conducting "sales" and "re-sales," limited, as a rule, in time and goods offered; and then, perchance, "another reduction."

Our Golden Rule Policy provides absolute protection to those who believe with us, that Smith, who buys a new suit today, should receive just as much for his money as Jones, who buys tomorrow.

We invite all who believe in Equality—who are in sympathy with our effort to avoid Business Hysteria—who really seek the Truth—and who desire to encourage the effort toward a quick, safe and sure return to settled business conditions—we invite all such to come with us again to this space tomorrow, for

DYE INDUSTRY GROWING

PRODUCTION NOW IN EXCESS OF PRE-WAR IMPORTS.

Federal Traffic Commission Makes Report on Domestic Manufacture in 1919.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Marked progress in the development of the American dye industry was shown in a report made public today by the Federal Traffic Commission. Production of dyes during 1919, the report stated, was equal to, or in excess of the pre-war imports of the United States, with the exception of vat dyes other than indigo. Manufacture of vat dyes, however, was said to have made much progress despite the high technical skill, long research and large investment of capital. Although the average price of a pound of dyes in 1919 was the same as in 1918, the commission found that the consumer received better value, as the dyes produced in 1919 were of a higher quality, and in many instances were of a faster type. Total production of dyes in the United States in 1919 was estimated at more than 62,000,000 pounds, an increase of 8 per cent of 1918 manufacture, and of 28 per cent over pre-war imports. Many instances were said by the commission to have been found of a decrease in those dyes relatively easy to make, and the appearance of many new dyes. Output of certain dyes was said to have been developed to a point beyond the domestic consumption, and large quantities were exported, particularly to China and Japan. Little competition in 1919 from German dyes, the commission reported, adding that the rate of dyestuff production by Germany in 1919 had been about one-third the pre-war output.
