The filling of this post is likely to develop a contest between the west and the east before the president-elect finally acts. One of the most effective propaganda or samisations ever brought together has been framed up with headquarters in Washington, with limitless finances and an able staff of the best finances and the scenarior of the same of the complaint are the city of Scattle; W. So skillfully has this propaganda been handled that the promoters have been able to sell much of it to newspapers and magazines instead of giving it to them without cost.

Much of the fight centers around a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Nugent of Idaho and in the house by Representative Smith of the same state. The measure would authorize the construction of a reservoir on Fall river, 20 miles off the road which leads into the park from the Idaho side. By the construction of this reservoir an adequate water supply would be provided for all of the supper Snake River valley, where there has been some shortage the last two years, and enough besides for one of two other large projects.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 3.—(Special.)—
The 16th Idaho legislature, composed of 90 republicans and 8 democrais, inaugurated today, promises interesting developmenta. While everwhelmingly republican and there is danger from this fact of it becoming turbulent because of factionalism, members appear determined to enact as few new laws as possible and to give special attention to existing laws with a view to strengthening them through amendment. Wherever it is possible to eliminate duplication of work, the knife will be used, it seems to be genstrally understood.

Discussian with members-elect of the two houses indicates that there is a strong undercurrent for retrenchment in appropriations and a determination closely to scrutinize all estimates submitted. In addition there appears to be much duplication of work in a number of the departments and this, it is expected, will be cut down either through consolidation or direct climination. A number of the
