

FRAUDED INVESTOR FAIRS LENTENCY

J. F. Callahan Says Jay Hough Suffers Enough.

PROSECUTION MAY LAG

Wealthy Idaho Mining Man Says He Has Only Golden Rule for His Religion.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 11.—With a watch containing bonds to the sum of $265,000, alleged to be forged and worth but a few pennies as waste paper, James F. Callahan, wealthy Wallace (Idaho) mining man, today conferred with Prosecutor Meyer of Spokane county concerning his business activities with the investment firm of Milholland & Hough, which, according to a confession authorities state was made to them Sunday by Jay E. Hough, junior partner, embezzled Callahan out of a very large sum. It was stated tonight that Callahan's losses probably would total $410,000, as he also had a large cash fund in the firm's care.

Hough is held in jail on a charge of embezzlement. John B. Milholland, senior partner of the firm, police authorities state, ended his own life Sunday night while they were searching for him on a warrant charging a like offense. Funeral services for Milholland were held today.

"I shall not proceed against Jay Hough other than the law requires," Mr. Callahan said tonight. "The money is gone and prosecuting will not bring it back. He is suffering more about it right now than I am and feels a whole lot worse. It is a lot of money to lose, but I have not the heart to attempt to punish him more than he is being punished or than he will be in the ordinary course of the law's action."

Further in regard to the prosecution of Hough, Mr. Callahan said: "I haven't much religion or law in my makeup, but I like to treat my fellow men as I want them to treat me. Only people generally don't treat me that way."

Prosecutor Meyer, it was learned tonight, is now collecting data with a view to prosecuting Hough for his part in the alleged embezzlement. Hough in his confession, authorities state, declared all the money obtained was used in speculation. Mr. Callahan plans to return to his home in Wallace tomorrow.

DISABLED HEROES LONELY

SOLDIERS IN HOSPITAL FEEL THEY ARE FORGOTTEN.

Legion-Federal Inspection Shows Human Wrecks of World War Need More Consideration.

"Too often disabled soldiers in our hospitals feel that the world has gone about its business entirely forgetting them and the great victory, the price of which they paid in blood and will continue to pay," commented Thomas N. Swale, department commander of the American Legion of Washington, who was a Portland visitor yesterday. He has just concluded a three weeks' tour of hospitals in the state of Washington, in which wounded veterans were receiving care.

There is little complaint to make about the management of the hospitals," he said. "Though there are conditions which can be bettered, and which the American Legion is doing its utmost to improve, the principal cry is one of loneliness."

One result of Mr. Swale's tour, in company with federal officials of the war risk insurance department, is a board for vocational education and public health service, and G. H. Lewis, chairman of the hospitalization committee of the Washington Legion, has been a flood of jams, jellies, flowers, cakes and such attentions in their wake when legionnaires and townsfolk near hospitals awoke to a realization of the neglect of the wounded fighters.

Mr. Swale arrived in Portland accompanied by Mr. Lewis, Bradley T. Powlaka, northwest director of the bureau of war risk insurance; Roy Taylor, representative of the federal board for vocational education; A. R. Brown, also from the vocational board, and Dr. E. W. White, field representative of the United States public health service.

The party met with Lane Goodell, vice-commander of the American Legion of Oregon; Edward J. Rivera, state adjutant, and Ben F. Morrow, state executive committee man, in the Morgan building in the morning, and visited the hospital at Vancouver, Wash., and the Smith-Reynolds post clubrooms in that city in the afternoon.

The thrilling dramatic moments of "While New York Sleeps" are still attracting crowds at the Columbia theater, and Manager Raleigh announced yesterday that the popular melodrama will be held over until Saturday.

The picture presents a novel and interesting treatment of three episodes in the life in America's metropolis. The action is shown in three distinct playlets, each with a different plot, but carried out by the same cast of skilled players.

The settings of the little dramas are varied, and include scenes in a fashionable suburban mansion, the cabarets of Broadway and the dismal waterfront district of the East side.

Marc MacDermott contributes one of the most remarkable screen characterizations seen here in a long time. He is cast in the third play as an aged paralytic, unable to express himself verbally, but his eyes, as a witness of a brutal murder, and the tale of the tragedy becomes

BABY HOME IS PLANNED

MODERN, FIRE-PROOF STRUCTURE CONTEMPLATED.

Present Waverley Refuge to Be Replaced as Soon as Necessary Funds Are Obtained.

A modern, fire-proof building, in which to care for its little inmates, will be erected by the Waverley baby home at the earliest possible time, according to the plans of the city health officer, it was pointed out in proceedings of the organization's annual meeting, just held.

Dr. Allison said the intention is to build on the present site and to move the building now there to another position and continue its use exclusively for hospital purposes. The plans for the new structure are being obtained by means of memberships of $100 each and the outlook is encouraging, it is said.

However, Mrs. Allison stated, she and the other officers and members of the board are anxious to complete the amount necessary just as rapidly as possible. The heating plant has been completed.

Mrs. Allison's annual report shows that the home closed the year in the best of health. At the beginning of 1920 it housed 47 babies and during the 12 months admitted 168 more. Of these, 88 have been returned to their parents or guardians and 36 have been adopted into good homes, according to the report. There were four deaths during the year.

At present there are 53 babies in the home, all in a healthy and happy condition, says the report.

Total receipts for the year were $21,671 and disbursements $21,373, leaving approximately $300 in the treasury. The property of the home consists of the land where the home is now situated, covering about three acres in Waverley addition; one lot in Brighton park and one in Woodstock addition. The valuation of this property is placed at $26,000 and the building at $22,000.

A vacancy on the board, caused by the death of A. L. Keenan, was filled by the election of Arthur W. Brookings. Mrs. Allison, J. A. Henry and Edward Drake were elected as trustees to serve four years. The others, who complete membership of the board, are as follows: L. E. Kern, Mrs. William Shepherd, Mrs. Charles H. Dodd, Mrs. F. S. Akin, Mrs. J. Francis Drake, Mrs. F. C. Knapp, Mrs. A. F. Piegel.

Officers will be elected at a meeting scheduled for 5 o'clock next Monday in the baby home office.

PRINCE HEARING REOPENS

Winthrop Hammond Cross-Examined in $100,000 Fee Request.

Hearing of the petition of Winthrop Hammond for a fee of $100,000 for services to the late Thomas France during his guardianship, was reopened before Judge Farwell in the probate division of the circuit court yesterday.

Cross-examination of Mr. Hammond as to matters referred to in direct testimony taken in December continued throughout the day. C. M. Ideman, attorney for Dr. H. P. Ong, executor of the estate, who is opposing the $100,000 claim, attempted to obtain information which would convince the judge that the duties of Hammond were not of the extraordinary character which would entitle him to so heavy remuneration.

Mr. Hammond is represented by Attorneys Wallace McCamant and Middleton & Clark; the executor by Ideman; L. T. Hayward, a nephew, by D. P. Prince, and the Worcester Bank & Trust company, trustee under the will, and other residuary legatees, by Rogers MacVeagh.

The Prince estate in Oregon is valued at more than $300,000, and East-Columbia holdings make the total more than $1,000,000.

UNION TERMINAL FAVORED

Kiwanis Indorse Movement Looking Toward Railway Central.

Indorsement of the move to retain a union terminal for Portland was voted yesterday by the Kiwanis club at its regular weekly luncheon at the Benson hotel. The resolution, presented by Dr. J. Clarence Jones, set forth the advantages of a union station and pledged the club to work with other civic bodies in an attempt to secure the privilege.

Dr. A. F. DeKeyser lectured on increasing one's efficiency through proper care of the eyes. Proper care of the eyes, combined with exercises to strengthen the muscles controlling them, would eliminate a large percentage of the trouble which now is corrected by glasses, Dr. DeKeyser said. Motion pictures and stereoscopic slides were utilized by Dr. DeKeyser in his explanations of the function and structure of the eye.

The luncheon was the first since the installation of new officers. J. H. Rankin, president for 1921, presided. A number of visiting Kiwanis were present as guests of the Portland club.

The legislative committee of the post was instructed to take up with the state legislature the matter of appointing a committee to work with a similar committee from the state of Washington. The body also went on record urging congress to prohibit the influx of Japanese to this country.

Abolishment of the Oregon public service commission on the theory that its burdens and disadvantages far outweigh its benefits to the public was demanded by the Portland Housewives' council in a resolution unanimously adopted at its meeting yesterday in the central library.

That the commission has granted rate rises to practically every public utility without giving heed to the protesting voice of the women and the common people was one of the many charges hurled during the stormy meeting.
