

3 AMERICAN TARIFFS UP ON FORDNEY TARIFF

Senate Finance Committee Tacks On Changes.

SCOPE IS BROADENED

Levy on Wheat Would Be Raised From 50 to 40 Cents—Dairy Products Would Be Added.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Three amendments were tacked on the Fordney emergency tariff bill by the senate finance committee today in its first day's consideration in executive session after the recent public hearing of the measure.

After the committee had voted 19 to 4 to open the bill to amendments, Senator Calder, republican of New York, and Jones, democrat of New Mexico, got provisions through which materially broadened the scope of the measure and Senator McCumber, republican of North Dakota, obtained acceptance of a higher import duty on wheat.

Wheat Would Be 40 Cents.

The McCumber amendment would fix a tariff on imported wheat of 40 cents a bushel instead of 50 cents carried by the bill as it passed the house. Senator Calder's amendment would add dairy products to the list already provided, establishing a tariff of six cents a pound on butter and cheese and their substitutes and two cents and five cents a gallon on fresh milk and cream, respectively. Under the Jones amendment, the import duty on hides, carried in the Dingley tariff law would be restored as a part of the Fordney measure for the ten months of its life.

While the senate committee was considering the emergency bill, indications developed in the house ways and means committee of a sentiment among some members to delay framing a new permanent tariff until international conditions became more stable.

In this connection the suggestion was made privately by several members of the house committee that a revival of either the Dingley or the Payne-Aldrich laws should be reported to as a stop-gap expedient. But there was also strong evidence that the majority members will not support rates higher than, and possibly not as high as, the Payne-Aldrich tariff provided.

From questions propounded during the day, the intimation was given that some committee members feel the present chaotic condition of exchange and low production costs abroad may make inadvisable the drafting of a scientific tariff law at this time. Representative Longworth, republican, Ohio, asked several witnesses if the committee could "safely base the rates to be carried in the revised law" on the present American production costs. He also inquired if, in their opinion, the committee could, at this time, devise tariff schedules which would operate effectively a few years hence, considering the present international exchange situation.

Democracy Reply Quick.

Democratic members of the committee were quick to reply, and Representative Garner, Texas, particularly, accused the majority of being ready to grant import rates which would serve as an embargo.

Chairman Fordney interrupted to ask William Ladd, formerly secretary to President Roosevelt and a witness before the committee, whether he had not "lived long enough to know that the republican party never had passed a tariff which amounted to an embargo." Before Mr. Ladd could more than nod assent Representative Longworth, republican, North Dakota, added:

"You have lived long enough to see the republican party go out of office by passing a tariff bill which was not readjusted to meet conditions." Members of the federal tariff commission were with the senate committee during most of its deliberations. It submitted, at the request of Chairman Penrose, the results of its investigation of the wool-growing industry for use when the wool rate is considered by the committee.

Decline in Wool Cited.

The commission's report said that the great decline in wool prices was the result chiefly of a world's surplus of the commodity, but added that several other factors entered into the falling values.

Of these the commission charged the drop in prices more directly to the buyers' strike and a stricter limitation of credit.

As to the production costs, the report showed that for running sheep on the range the per head expense was $6.64, $6.84 and $6.79 for 1918, 1919 and 1920, respectively. These figures compare with costs of about $2 a head in 1912.

The National Automobile Manufacturers' association was heard through J. Walter Drake, chairman of its foreign trade committee, who requested the ways and means committee in revision of the permanent tariff to reduce the duty on higher priced automobiles from 45 per cent to the basis of 30 per cent now prevailing on lower priced machines.

Mr. Drake said he presented the request with the full consent of manufacturers of high priced machines, who, he said, "have taken the broad attitude that what is good for a majority of the manufacturers in the trade is good for all."

Chemry Tariff is Asked.

SALISBURY, Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Senator McNary today telegraphed the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association that he appeared recently before the senate finance committee and offered argument in favor of a tariff of 3 cents a pound on cherries in brine, filberts and walnuts. The committee was said to have taken Senator McNary's request under advisement. In case the committee should not accept Senator McNary's offer, he said he would offer an amendment to the original bill on the floor of the senate.

MAIL AND $80,000 LOOT

No Trace Found of Four Sacks Stolen During Day.

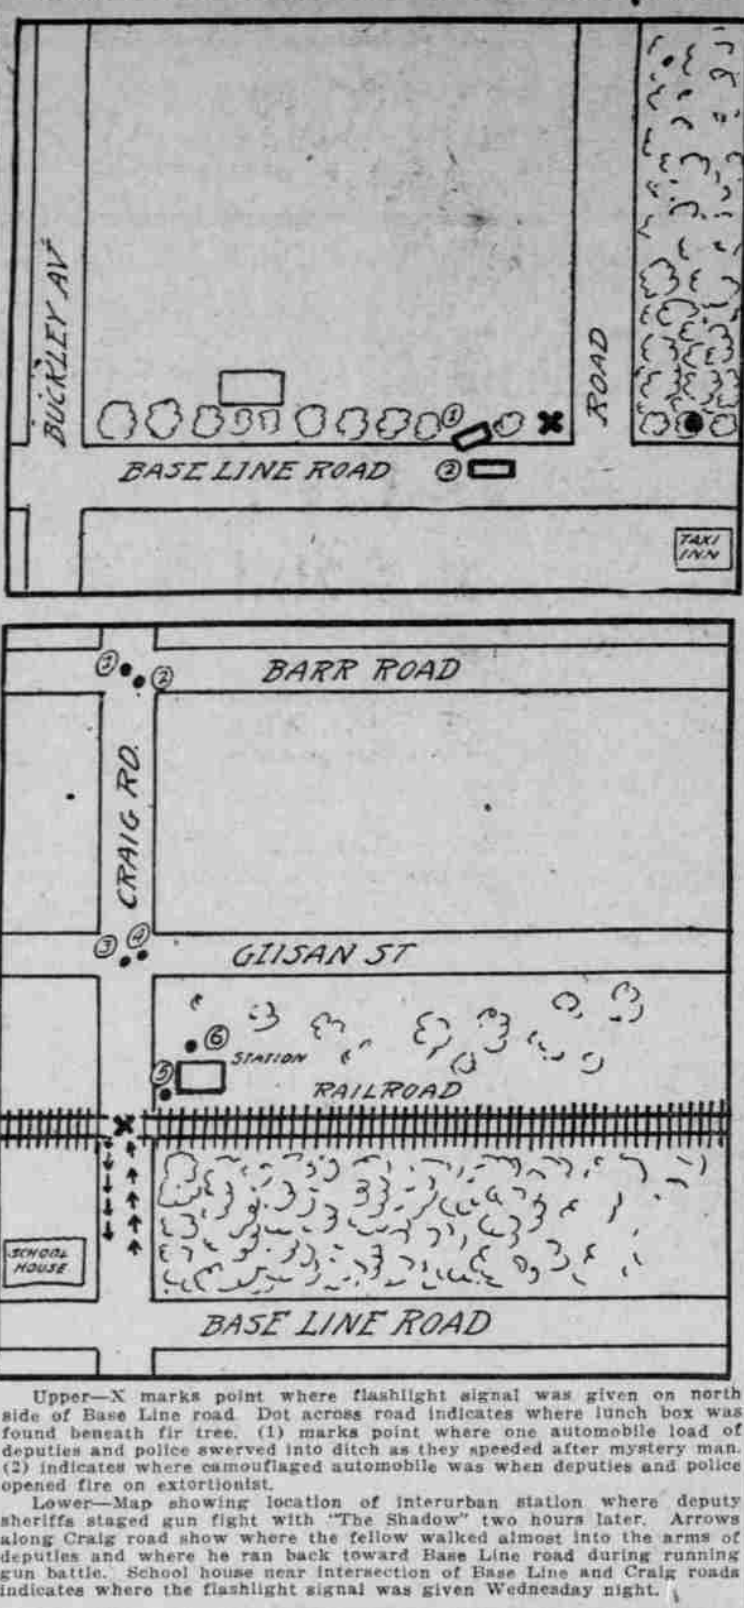

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 14.—No trace of the four sacks of registered mail which disappeared here today had been found tonight.

One of the sacks was said to have contained $80,000 in cash to be used to pay off coal miners at Benton.

Bid Bond Issue Approved.

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 14.—The Philippine senate today passed a bill providing for flotation of $10,000,000 of bonds in the United States, for construction of irrigation systems and other permanent public works.

In the rear of Mollenhour, rushed up and together the officers gave chase. The shadow ran down Craig road, toward Base Line road, but turned to his right as he ran. He gained quickly on the pursuing officers.

Man Kneels and Fires.

When he had gained a lead of approximately 150 feet, "The Shadow" stopped and knelt and took careful aim as he sent three more bullets in the direction of the officers. Then he speeded on and was lost in the darkness. This was the last seen of him, although the woods and fields were combed by nearly 100 officers until daybreak.

As soon as this skirmish between the deputies and "The Shadow" became known, the guard stationed toward Craig road and every possible avenue of escape was carefully scoured until dawn.

Chief Jenkins, who was in personal charge of the police posse, telephoned to police headquarters for additional men and Captain Burns dispatched all motorcycle policemen and every available patrolman to that section by automobile and patrol wagons.

Because of the nature of the country through which the manhunt was staged, it was almost an impossible task to surround the fugitive, and even with the heavy force of armed guards, his capture would have been only a matter of luck.

The entire country, except for small patches of fields and a few scattering farm houses, is heavily wooded, and the innumerable little country crossroads gave the fellow every advantage in making his escape under cover of darkness.

Mayor Baker, who accompanied Chief Jenkins and who remained with the manhunters throughout the night,

WHAT CONGRESS DID AS ITS DAY'S WORK.

Senate.
Adopted the New resolution, with the Lenroot amendment, stopping all recruiting until the American army reaches a minimum of 150,000 men.

Passed the bill to establish a government-controlled nitrate plant by a vote of 54 to 25.

Frank B. Willis of Ohio took the oath as senator, succeeding Warren G. Harding, who has resigned to become president.

Harry M. Daugherty saw some senators today and said Harding's "literate" and "astute" character and cabinet selections was exaggerated.

House.
Passed legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and took up Indian affairs bill.

Resolution for disarmament of railroads was taken up in conference at once without fear of embarrassing Harding administration urged before foreign affairs committee.

Railroad heads called on congress through interstate and foreign commerce committee for law providing for payment of amounts ready to make up guaranty intended in transportation act.

Grain exchange operators protested against legislation that would prevent hedging at hearing before agricultural committee.

Tariff hearings continued before ways and means committee.

ERSTWILE PACIFIC BAKER FIGHTER NOW

Big Army Now Obsession of Belligerent Secretary.

FEAR FELT FOR TREASURY

Congress Leaders Vision Enormous Deficiency if Heady Secretary Is Not Halted Soon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, once a roaring pacifist, so placarded and proclaimed, is the hardest man in the world to stop now that he has changed his mind and is going in the other direction.

It is the zeal of the convert, the zeal of a reprogrammed mind, say those men in congress who pleaded and proselyted for preparedness at the time when this country was being surely drawn into the war and Secretary Baker could not see it. Those who preached preparedness when it was needed are fearful now that the war secretary is going to spend all the money in the treasury before they can stop him.

He has gone so much farther than the amount appropriated for the new army under reorganization act that congress visions deficiency appropriations soon that will aggregate not less than $100,000,000. It is true, congress leaders admit, that the reorganization act provided for an army of 290,000 men, but the same men are needed for the immediate enlistment of so large a number only appropriated for an army of 175,000.

Congress May Call Halt.

The secretary of war informs congress that he has enlisted 230,000 men and is not going to stop short of 280,000 unless halted by congress. Chairman Wadsworth, of the senate ways and means committee, and Chairman Kahn of the same committee in the house, have ordered him to stop, but he smiles and replies that they speak only as individuals.

But two resolutions are pending which are expected to stop him. Senator Wadsworth has introduced one of them in the senate, and the other in the house is sponsored by Representative Hull of Iowa.

The charge of the light brigade was small town stuff and characterized by nothing half so bold as the assault now being made upon some senators and members of the house by those fearless patriots who during the late war feared not to do and die if they were only permitted to do their doing and dying at home.

Pacifists Now Militant.

This brave army of Americans who successfully repulsed every attempt to gather them into the army which helped lick Germany, and by their valor and self-sacrifice came to be known as "slackers," are aroused to the very tips of their toes by the recent telegram sent by F. W. Galbraith Jr., commander-in-chief of the American Legion, to Chairman Volstead of the house judiciary committee.

Major Baker Also Armed.

Major Baker himself was armed, and before additional possesmen were rushed to Craig road after the running gun fight between the deputy sheriffs and the shadow, he was armed with an hour held down a guard post along a lonely spot of Base Line road.

According to Deputy Sheriff Mollenhour, who got a faint glimpse of the fellow during the momentary gun flashes, "The Shadow" is about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs from 150 to 180 pounds. He appears to be about 30 years old. He talked with a distinct foreign accent which he took to be German. Empty shells picked up along Craig road showed that the shadow was armed with a German Luger automatic. He emptied his nine shells during his running fight with the deputies.

No Chances Being Taken.

The police believe that he carried the lunch box in order to make early morning pedestrians believe he was going to work. A man carrying a lunch box would have attracted but slight notice if he were seen walking down any of these country roads.

The police also believe that the "Shadow" is well acquainted in the district in which he operated. This is indicated in the fact that when he was first fired upon near Taxi Inn shortly after 1 o'clock, he made his way through the woods to the same place where he hid himself the night before when the first attempt to capture him was made.

Because of the fact that he failed again in his determined effort to extort $25,000 from Mr. Ladd, the officials are inclined to the belief that the "Shadow" will make every effort to carry out his threat to exterminate members of the Ladd family, and for that reason they are taking no chances of any kind.

CORK MAYOR TESTIFIES

The stand by Peter MacGinley, brother of the late lord mayor of Cork, and a fellow stowaway with O'Callaghan, and by four sailors of the American steamer West Cannon, which was hijacked by the stowaways, Newport News, Emil Perolt of Oakland, one of the sailors, declared that he was robbed of his money, passport and other personal possessions, beaten almost into insensibility and threatened with death by a detail of British soldiers on the streets of Cork, December 11, while the West Cannon was in that port.

"I was walking along the street when I heard the usual command 'put 'em up,'" Perolt said. "I had a lead from experience that this was an order to lift my hands, and obeyed. The leader of a bunch of soldiers, who has been an officer, I am not familiar with their uniforms, searched me and found my American seaman's passport."

"Oh, you're a damned Yankee!" the leader said, and struck me in the face with his fist. The others beat me, and, after taking all my possessions, they backed me against the wall and leveled their rifles.

"Ready, aim. Now, you Yankee, sing your American song," the leader said. "I was turned loose and went to my ship."

"The captain of the ship took the matter up with Mason Mitchell, consul at Queenstown, who in turn referred it to the British general in charge of troops in Cork, and was told that nothing could be done to find the culprits."

Perolt said he had written a letter to the state department regarding the matter. The witness described the burning of Cork, comparing the destroyed city with San Francisco after the earthquake.

MacGinley declared that American merchant marine officers in uniform were not immune from search, and said that in spite of his American citizenship, his sisters thought it was not best for him to sleep at home where he was in Cork.

out retribution enjoy the blessings of a national liberty he lacked the manhood to help defend."

Telegram Brings Protest.
The publication of this telegram has not yet forced the disclosure of the names of slackers, but it has brought many protests to Washington from certain men of military age who fear that their names might be included in the list by some inadvertence. And these nervous patriots appear to be located in almost every nook and corner of the United States, indicating that the slacker list may have been much larger than anyone ever suspected before.

SENATE WOULD HALT BAKER

Resolution Ordering Secretary to Quit Recruiting Adopted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Over the protest of the majority of the military affairs committee, the senate today adopted a resolution offered by Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin republican, directing the secretary of war to cease recruiting for a reorganization of the regular army is cut down to 150,000 men.

The vote was 54 to 28. Party lines were not observed, the senate republicans being almost equally divided both in support and opposition. Senator Phelan, democrat, California, introduced a similar resolution, notified Vice-President Marshall that he would ask the senate tomorrow for a reconsideration of the vote on the ground that the senate had not been fully informed concerning the objections of General Pershing and Secretary of War Baker to the resolution.

Should Senator Phelan fall in his endeavor to bring about reconsideration, the resolution will go to the house.

Chairman Wadsworth of the military affairs committee, did not ask for a reconsideration of the resolution because the senate a few minutes before, by a vote of 54 to 28, adopted a motion of Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, fixing the army's maximum limit at 150,000, thereby rejecting the committee's proposal to make the figure 175,000.

This vote was taken, although General Pershing and Secretary Baker, at an executive session with the military affairs committee just before the convening of the senate, objected to any serious cut in the size of the army. General Pershing suggested 200,000 as the minimum limit.

Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, asked if the number of officers was affected, and the chairman responded that the "only way to discharge officers is by death or court-martial for dishonorable conduct or bad conduct as defined by the military code."

Several amendments regulating the application of the reduction were adopted, the most important of which would require the war department to maintain all services on an equal basis, equal to 53 1/2 per cent of the total strength in each branch contemplated by existing army and organization statutes. Another would authorize the discharge of any enlisted man upon his application, if approved by the secretary of war.

Committee estimates were given the senate that the present size of the army, about 215,000 men, would be reduced to 150,000 by next December.

PRISONERS ARE RELEASED

Two Men In Vancouver Jail for Months Are Set Free.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Carl Gerson, charged with second-degree assault, and who has been confined in the county jail since August 15, 1920, was today ordered released upon lack of evidence.

B. D. Maxwell, charged with stealing a bicycle and a car, who was arrested on October 16, 1920, was ordered released today.

Maxwell, 32, had, newly-elected county attorney, in going through the records found these men in jail and took up the matter at once. Investigation showed little evidence and Judge Simpson of the superior court of Clark county, ordered them released.
