Y. M. C. A. WORK DEVELOPS—Physical and religious activities among Young Men's Christian associations of Washington state are facing an era of great development, asserted H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Portland association, who returned yesterday from Olympia where he attended the annual conference of Washington associations February 4, 5 and 6. Preparations to meet the increased demand for physical training among both young and old men were part of the business of the sessions. A feature of the conference was the inauguration of a new state secretary, Lester Adams, graduate of McMinnville college and formerly active in association work in Portland. Mr. Adams had been general secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Billings, Mont.

FIRE CAUGHT BY ASHER—Hot ashes which had been deposited in a wood box started a fire in the wood shed at the home of Fred Sykes, 427 Harrison street, early yesterday morning. Damage amounting to $500 was caused to the house and furniture before fire apparatus extinguished it. The fire had smoldered for two days. Fire Captain Day, who investigated, ordered the arrest of Sykes for violation of the city ordinance prohibiting depositing ashes in a wood box. The home of Frank Patilla, Linton road and G street, was burned to the ground late Sunday night when the occupants left the place with a heavy fire in the stove.

REED JUNIORS ELECT PRESIDENT—James W. Gantenbein has been elected president of the junior class of Reed college, to fill the vacancy left by William Stone, who resigned to resume the duties of editor of the Quest. Gantenbein is the son of the late Judge Gantenbein and an active member in student activities. He was a member of this year's debate squad and coach of the freshman tug-of-war team. Aside from his duties at Reed he is acting secretary of the Northwestern College of Law. On his election committee were appointed and plans were made ready for junior week-end, which will be an event at the college some time this spring.

THREE JAILED, AS QUARANTINE VIOLATORS—Three warrants for the arrest of alleged quarantine violators were sworn out yesterday by Dr. George Parrish, city health officer. Those arrested are Mrs. A. Setters, a trained nurse of the Terry apartments; E. K. Dawson, of 1010 South Princeton street, and M. Coloratura, of 484 East Twelfth street south. The arrests were the result of investigations of quarantined homes made Sunday by the city health officials.

GRASS CLUB TO GIVE CONCERT—Willamette university gives club will give a concert at Century-Venue church, East Nineteenth and Pine streets, Thursday evening, February 17, at 8 o'clock. The concert will be the one given by the club in Portland this season. The programme will include college songs by the entire club, quartet and solo numbers and special entertainment features. The club is directed by Professor E. W. Hobson.

Main 7644.—Adv.

DAMAGE SUIT DISMISSED—Failure to bring suit in the 90-day limit specified on the bill of lading led to the dismissal of the suit of the Beaver Produce company against the Packer-McCormick Steamship company by Federal Judge Bean. The Beaver Produce company was seeking $230 for alleged damage to eggs in transit from California to Portland in November, 1918.

FINDER OF MONEY REWARDED—When on his way to work a few days ago, George Weiss, 1234 Commercial, composing room of The Oregonian, found a packet of bills, slightly more than $100, on the sidewalk. Mr. Weiss ingested an advertisement in the paper for the find. The owner's gratitude was conveyed in the shape of a $20 bill.

DRY LAW OFFENDER FINED $100—T. E. Everett pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the state prohibition law and was fined $100 yesterday in municipal court. He was also sentenced to serve 30 days in jail. Police found a quantity of moonshine whiskey in his possession.

WRECK COST $116,225—Officials of the Southern Pacific company yesterday announced that the wreck of an electric train at Bertha station, May 5, 1920, cost a total of $116,225 in damages. Approximately $100,000 in personal claims have been paid. The balance was for equipment.

Above—Philip Buckler, 18-months-old baby, who was taken from wreck on a sailor's back. Below—Mrs. C. E. Buckler, mother of the baby, who was a passenger on the Klamath, and her other son, Francis, now in Portland.

Y. M. C. A. WORK EXPANDING—A keen appreciation of educational facilities and of physical training is shown by the world war veterans of British Columbia than before the war, said A. S. McAllister, Y. M. C. A. general secretary, of Vancouver, B. C., who is a visitor in Portland. He said the educational and agricultural courses featured by the Young Men's Christian association had enjoyed rapid expansion since the close of the conflict and that most of the students were ex-service men. More interest than ever is shown in physical activities, said Mr. McAllister. "Y. M. C. A. classes in Vancouver now number 200 boys and men. Among these are 235 business men. Western Canada is grateful to Oregon, Washington and Idaho men for the invitation to participate in the annual Seabeck summer school." Mr. McAllister attended the state Y. M. C. A. conference at Olympia, Wash., last week.

IDAHO DAIRIES COMBINE—Oregon Expert Confers With State Council on Legislation.

Fred W. Merrill, managing director of the Oregon dairy council, has returned from Boise and Payette, Idaho, where he was called into consultation by the recently organized Idaho dairy council on the matter of proposed dairy legislation for Idaho. All the dairy interests of the state have merged themselves with the council, and as the clearing house of the dairy industry bills affecting all branches of the industry are passed upon by the council before going to the legislature.

Two bills of importance to the dairy interests were recommended by the council, one providing for a minimum of 8 per cent butter fat for ice cream manufactured in the state, instead of 14 per cent, as the law provides; and one prohibiting the use of the words "dairy," "creamery," and any other expressions belonging particularly to the dairy industry, in advertisements of oleomargarine and other butter substitutes. The 8 per cent butter fat is standard for Oregon, Washington and Montana.

CUTTING EXPECTED SOON—Crew at Work Repairing Tracks for Resumption March 1.

ASTORIA, Or., Feb. 7.—(Special.)—Practically every logging camp in the lower Columbia river district has a force of men at work overhauling machinery, repairing tracks and equipment and in some instances extending railroads farther into the timber.

The only camp cutting timber is that of the big creek logging company near Knappa which is operating on alone. The general plan now is for the majority of camps to resume operations about March 1, but much will depend upon the conditions of the market.

BILL AFFECTS SCHOOLS—Salaries of Rural Teachers Are Concerned in Measure.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Or., Feb. 7.—(Special.)—A bill introduced by Senator Upton provides that a school district, or a union high school not exempt from county high school law, which has been standardized by the state board of education, shall receive the same amount of money for its average daily attendance of pupils resident in the county as the cost of the average daily attendance in the county central high school.

The basis of cost shall be the amount paid for the teachers in the county high school, plus 28 per cent of the teacher cost.

CAR COMPANY WILL CONFER OVER IDLE

City and Concern Plan Conference for Today.

REPAIR WORK POSSIBLE

Engineer Believes That 1000 Men Could Be Employed by Company in Reconstruction.

F. I. Fuller, vice-president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co., will confer with A. L. Barbur, commissioner of public works; City Engineer Laugaard, and members of the American Legion commission on unemployment this morning, relative to employing a number of men in carrying out the proposed plan of the company for the repair and reconstruction of its tracks throughout the city.

An urgent request will be made to the street car concern to start upon its programme immediately, so as to provide work for the hundreds of unemployed men in the city. The same appeal will be made to railroads and electric lines who have tracks on or across the streets of the city which must be repaired.

The Portland Railway, Light & Power company is far behind schedule in the work it assured the public service commission as being essential," he asserted, "I am in favor of bringing it to the attention of the commission, and possibly having another readjustment of fares, this time downward."

1000 Jobs Available.

By bringing this schedule to date, Mr. Laugaard asserts, the company could employ 1000 men for a period of 60 days, thus greatly relieving the unemployment situation in Portland.

The appeal to the railroads is part of the plan of the Legion's special commission, which has been designated by city council and the board of county commissioners to solve the unemployment problem in Portland.

Mayor Baker and all the members of city council expressed themselves as strongly favoring Commissioner Barbur's move in the trackage situation. Councilman Bigelow favored it even to the point of belligerency.

"If the Portland Railway, Light & Power company is falling down on the expenditures which it outlined to the public service commission as being essential," he asserted, "I am in favor of bringing it to the attention of the commission, and possibly having another readjustment of fares, this time downward."

Much Could Be Done Now.

Weather conditions enter strongly into the matter, according to Mr. Barbur, but there is a great amount of work which could easily be started immediately, and relieve the unemployment situation correspondingly.

Portland firms are lining up behind the Legion commission solidly, according to Jay R. Coffey, director of the body.

"We are getting really splendid support," said Mr. Coffey, "and I believe we are going to have a great success. One concern has placed with us an order for more than 100 men. Another firm, which requested that its men be released from Seattle and eastern cities from the same situation, the commission is appealing to all industries and business firms to employ as many people as possible."

In line with the Legion commission's appeal that all employees of independent means be supplemented with heads of families out of employment, the department of public works announced that several of its men had been temporarily released, and their places filled with men who had children to support. Other concerns are contemplating the same steps.

Mrs. Griffin, father of the rescued child, is chief mechanic's mate at the navy torpedo station at Keyport, Wash. He came to this city three days ago with his wife and two sons, Philip and Francis. The family made their home with Mrs. Taylor after he returned to his station.

Mrs. Buckler was Mrs. Lois Taylor. She was born at the Dalles, and passed the early part of her life there and at Amity, Or.

RESCUED BABY IS HEROIC

PHILIP BUCKLER OF PORTLAND, SAVED FROM KLAMATH.

Fortitude of 18-Months-Old Infant When Carried in Ash Can to Safety Is Feature of Wreck.

The 18-months-old baby who left the wreck of the steamer Klamath Saturday morning in an ash can is Philip Buckler, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Buckler of this city. The thrilling rescue of this infant and his fortitude throughout the excitement were among the chief features of the wreck, as reported in press dispatches.

The steamer Klamath, which went on the rocks Saturday morning at Del Mar, Cal., 80 miles north of San Francisco, was reported yesterday to have broken in two, and it is expected that she will be a total loss.

Word that Mrs. Buckler and her child were coming to Portland on the Klamath was received Friday by Mrs. E. C. Taylor, 544 East Thirty-seventh street, who is Mrs. Buckler's mother.

The only other word she has received was a brief wire from Mrs. Buckler Saturday, saying that all were safe, but that the experience had been too terrible to describe.

Mrs. Buckler, father of the rescued infant, is chief mechanic's mate at the navy torpedo station at Keyport, Wash. He came to this city three days ago with his wife and two sons, Philip and Francis. The family made their home with Mrs. Taylor after he returned to his station.

Mrs. Buckler was Mrs. Lois Taylor. She was born at the Dalles, and passed the early part of her life there and at Amity, Or.

THE possession of great sums of money was not altogether an unmixed joy with the early English merchants. There were no banks. Perforce they kept their money in their own homes under the care of apprentices. Soon it became very fashionable for these apprentices to run away and join the army.

Light-heartedly they took their master's crowns and Caroluses with them!

Other merchants stored their money in the mint in the Tower of London. The King broke up this practice by seizing all the money there for his own use!

Being safe neither at home nor with the public authorities, the depositing of cash with the goldsmiths—who had great vaults secure from fire and robbers—came about quite naturally.

Receipts were issued for deposits and interest paid. Money was loaned and rents collected. "Goldsmith's Notes" (receipts) passed for cash, many traders giving and receiving nothing but paper. The advantages of this new system were felt in every part of London. Banking had become a separate and important trade.

Now, as then, Safety and Convenience are fundamental reasons for the existence of banks. Modern ingenuity has developed these phases of banking to the nth degree of perfection.

Our booklet "The First National Bank West of the Rockies" gives you a very vivid idea of the service a great modern bank, like The First National, renders to the community. Ask for it.
